

It's slip-'n'-slide time on roads again

Icy roads and sudden fog caused multiple car crashes throughout the Northwest suburbs yesterday morning. On one stretch to Ill. Rte. 72 between Ill. Rte. 53 and Arlington Heights Road, eight cars were caused damage during the morning rush hour. In all, county sheriff's police were called on 50 minor incidents in the northern half of Cook County.

In this accident scene, police said what looked like a long pile up of automobiles on Higgins Road was really a series of two-car crashes that tied up traffic and added to the foggy morning blues.

For a full rundown of yesterday's accidents, see Page 8.

Senate committee hearing indicates more trouble ahead

No quick end to Chicago-area gas squeeze

by KAREN BLECHA

At least one thing is certain about the severe gasoline shortage in Chicago and the suburbs: It will continue.

Officials of major oil companies testified at Senate Commerce Committee hearings in Chicago yesterday that the gas shortage in this area will last through February and possibly longer. The shortage, they said, will go on despite between 6 to 7 million additional gallons of gasoline expected to be funneled to the Chicago area from the State of Illinois' reserves.

The hearings, in the federal building in Chicago, were called in an effort to head off another gasoline marketing squeeze like the one that occurred during the last week of January. Sen. Adlai Stevenson

III, D-Ill., who chaired the hearings, said testimony would help the commerce committee determine whether changes in government or industry policy are needed to avert another squeeze.

OTHER TESTIMONY at the five-hour-long hearings showed:

- Chicago and its suburbs are experiencing a much more severe gasoline shortage than the rest of Illinois.

- Officials of the Federal Energy Office (FEO) and the Illinois State Fuel Allocation Office do not have enough information on available oil supplies to design a workable allocation plan for the Chicago area.

- Oil company officials, consumers and gasoline dealers blame each other for the long lines and waits to buy gas.

Oil company representatives also criticized the media for causing "panic buying."

"There is no question that the problems of January will continue," said Charles A. Walsh, Jr., vice president of Atlantic Richfield Co. "As of Feb. 11 in Chicago, 53 per cent of our allocated gallons for the month had been delivered to dealers. As of the 11th, 10 per cent of our dealers had taken their total allocation for the month."

Even if the Arab embargo on oil is lifted, Walsh said, it would take 60 to 90 days until the crude oil starts flowing into U.S. refineries.

H. RINKEMA, regional vice president of Amoco Oil Co., the largest individual supplier of gasoline in Illinois, said the demand for gas in the Chicago area is overwhelmingly heavier than the demand downstate. He said that in January, Amoco sold 39.6 million gallons of gas in the Chicago metropolitan area while it sold 10.9 million gallons in its Springfield district and 8.6 million gallons in its Rockford district.

On Jan. 29, he said 123 Amoco stations in the Chicago area were out of gas, while only three in the Springfield district and 12 in the Rockford district had the same problem.

"None of our work is bringing any more gas into Illinois," said James W. Cook, coordinator for the State Fuel Allocation Office. Cook said his office has

Gasoline by the numbers here?

Gov. Daniel Walker said Wednesday Illinois may join those states basing gasoline purchases on odd and even license plate numbers.

He said the system would be instituted only if the gasoline shortage continues or worsens and that in his view it would not be rationing.

"The odd-even way would be a way of cutting down long lines at gas stations and it would be fair," he said.

Walker also said some of a 12-million-gallon March allocation of gasoline pegged for Illinois priority users such as police, fire departments, hospitals and farm equipment users could go to the state's motorists.

"If we find that we don't need all that amount, I will do my utmost to divert some of it to other uses," he said.

Wheeling Road widening tops list

3 major street projects may get federal funding

by LYNN ASINOF

Three major Wheeling street projects are being proposed as priority programs to qualify for funds offered under a new federal highway funding system.

The projects include the widening of Wheeling Road between Hintz and Palatine roads with traffic signals at Hintz Road, traffic signals at the intersection of Elmhurst and McHenry roads, and the widening and improvement of Manchester Drive.

Residents have complained about traffic problems in all three areas for several years.

If the projects qualify for funding, the village will pay 30 per cent of the cost while the federal government will cover 70 per cent. All projects are dependent upon approval by the Federal Aid Urban Systems program and the financial assistance provided by that program.

Village officials learned of the program earlier this month, and rapidly developed a report on the three most needed street improvements in Wheeling.

THE PROJECTS will now be reviewed by a committee of the Northwest Municipal Conference, which has received at least two priority projects from each of the 15 member municipalities. The committee will rank the projects based on impact and feasibility, and pass its recommendations on to the state for further review.

Wheeling officials have placed their number one priority on the widening of Wheeling Road. In the report to the municipal conference committee, officials noted a bottleneck on Wheeling Road as traffic feeds from the four-lane roadway north of Hintz Road into the two lane road which runs south to Palatine Road.

The report states that this stretch of Wheeling Road serves as a main artery for 110 industrial plants. With the installation of traffic signals at Hintz Road, the project is estimated to cost $301,850.

Wheeling's second priority goes to the installation of traffic signals at the intersection of Elmhurst and McHenry roads. The report notes 18 accidents at this intersection in 1973 and 21 in 1972. This project is estimated to cost $38,000.

THE WIDENING and improvement of Manchester Drive is being suggested as an alternate priority for review by the committee. Manchester Drive serves as the only east-west link for Milwaukee Avenue and Wolf Road between Dundee and Hintz Roads.

The village is in the process of obtaining right-of-way dedications for Manchester Drive, now only a half street. The estimated cost of this project is $28,000.

Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles Zettek, chairman of the conference committee, said several factors will be taken into consideration in ranking the projects. He said his committee will consider the impact on the Northwest area, the cost of the project, the amount of work already done on preliminary plans and the municipalities' ability to pay 30 per cent of the cost.

ZETTEK SAID he expects the ranking of proposed projects to be completed in the next month. He said, however, he still does not know how much federal money is available under this program.

"We're still trying to find out what moneys are going to be made available," he said. "Right now we are anticipating between $5-6 million."

Wheeling Trustee Ed Berger said that this federal money might allow Wheeling to begin projects it otherwise could not afford. "I don't want to make any promises to anyone on this," he said. "It's a chance to get money we didn't have."

Football program open house topic

The Wheeling Park Football Board will sponsor an open house at 7 p.m. Sunday to acquaint residents with plans for upgrading the park's football programs.

The new organization was formed to improve the boys' program and tackle football programs. The group is expected to become active in fund-raising for better equipment, and will also participate in coaching.

The open house will be at Neptune's Den, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd., and will include a presentation of the group's program and informal discussion. Refreshments will be served.

Planning unit tells how schools can save energy

The planning committee of the Dist. 23 school board has recommended further steps the district may take to reduce the amount of energy used in schools to conserve fuel.

The two-page report, presented to the board at a recent meeting, said the district has already reduced its power consumption an estimated 5 per cent by turning off unnecessary school lights and lowering thermostats.

The report listed five steps that could be initiated immediately to further reduce power consumption and listed another three steps as future considerations and three other steps as emergency measures.

AMONG THE steps proposed for immediate action are:

- Consider cutting the use of showers for adult activities now being run on Saturdays and after hours at schools.
- Disconnect power on weekends to cold storage units such as soda pop machines and machines where no spoilage will occur.
- Remove lights on vending machines.
- Look into possible savings by lowering hot water temperatures in showers.
- Schedule copy machines to run in peak copy time only.

AS FUTURE considerations the report listed:

- Consider choice of equipment (new and replacement) on efficiency and efficiency change basis.
- When school hours can be changed, schedule hours for maximum use of daylight hours.
- If possible, set school calendars so maximum heating and cooling periods (seasonal) are not school attendance days.

LISTED AS EMERGENCY measures are:

- Cut night and weekend programs as required to reduce power.
- Reduce lighting level to the state minimum requirement.
- Cut school attendance days as allowed without a cut in state aid.

Board member Vincent Battaglia also suggested the district consider limiting the hours which schools may be kept open for night activities to 10 p.m.

The board accepted the report and agreed to consider the proposals.

Firm tells shakedown attempt

Tekton Corp. was the victim of a 1970 zoning shakedown attempt by former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman James Stavros, according to a Tekton representative involved in the company's Cedar Run project in the Village of Wheeling. Stavros demanded the payoff at a March 1970 meeting in a Des Plaines restaurant, the company representative told The Herald. Stavros as one of six persons indicted Jan. 31 by a federal grand jury in connection with alleged extortions in the village. His attorney, Joel Murray, said Stavros would have no comment on the charge.

Hospital disputes MEG story

Lutheran General Hospital yesterday disputed a police estimate that four ex-employees arrested Tuesday night had stolen $25,000 worth of drugs from the hospital. "There is no listing or no knowledge of anything of any consequence taken from the hospital," said Tracy Stern, a Lutheran General spokesman. Officials became suspicious about a month ago after discovering a supply room medicine cabinet was tampered with, he said. The hospital notified Park Ridge police who called in agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) an undercover anti-drug agency. The MEG probe resulted in the arrests of the four former employees on various charges of sale and possession of drugs.

Schaumburg joins transit unit

The Village of Schaumburg has decided to join the Northwest Suburban Mass Transit District, an agency made up of communities along the Milwaukee Road's west commuter line between Chicago and Elgin. The village turned down an invitation to join two years ago because of concern over future district taxing powers but officials are now taking a different view in part because of their plans for a transportation center near the Milwaukee Road line.

Residents surveyed on Rob Roy

Mount Prospect wants to know if its residents are willing to pay higher taxes to avoid development of a 4,500-unit housing complex on the Rob Roy golf course on Euclid Avenue. A survey will ask citizens if they: 1. Want to finance purchase of the site for an estimated $8 million to $9 million 2. Favor development with an open space buffer zone around the edge of the complex or 3. Believe the village should reject Kenroy, Inc.'s annexation proposal, thus forcing the developer to obtain zoning from Cook County.

Policeman just a 'sandbagger'

Hoffman Estates police needed a heavy object that could be dragged out of rear auto seats as part of a physical agility test. A 150-pound sand bag worked three times and then broke. Policeman Michael Mulcahy volunteered and 58 dragging-outs later he regretted it. "I was awfully sore," he said.

Sen. Percy endorses proposal

$2 to $3 minimum gas sales Monday?

Chicago-area gasoline dealers will insist on a minimum sale of $3 worth of gasoline for full-size cars and $2 for compact cars, starting Monday.

The announcement was made Wednesday by Robert Jacobs, head of the Illinois Gasoline Dealers Assn., following an association board meeting. The board met briefly with U. S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., who endorsed the minimum sales proposal.

The minimum purchase move was taken to discourage drivers "topping off" their tanks, and to reduce lines at Chicago-area service stations. "These nickel-and-dime filiphs must be stopped," Jacobs said.

BOB ESSERMAN, an officer of the IGDA, said an ultimatum was presented to the Federal Energy Office Thursday. If the demands are not met by an unspecified date, a 10-day strike will be called. "If it's going to be effective, it has to be long enough to really hurt," Esserman said.

Esserman said the IGDA and the Indiana gasoline dealer group, representing 6,000 operations, are demanding:

- A 2-cent-a-gallon increase in dealer profit margins.

- 100 per cent allocation of gasoline, based on 1972 deliveries.

- The right to give regular customers preferential service.

- The minimum sale of $2 to $3.
- Full disclosure of where gasoline supplies are going, and why.

- Allocation of added gasoline supplies to the Chicago area.

Commenting on FEO chief William Simon's move to prohibit dealers from limiting sales to regular customers, Esserman said, "We're not going to abide by it." He added, "The problem is, there is not enough gasoline to serve regular customers." Dealers could serve the general public during regular hours and regular customers during "off hours," he said.

Percy earlier issued a five-point plan for relief of the energy crisis in the Chicago area. Included in his proposals were voluntary adoption of the Oregon Plan; use of more recent figures on fuel consumption which reflect population growth in the past year for proper allocation; and use of emergency "set-aside" reserves that would make an additional 9 million gallons of gasoline available to the Chicago area each month; a shift in refinery production to greater gasoline supply, rather than fuel oil, and a rollback of propane prices.

'By appointment' only way: gas station operator

"I can't operate without appointments. There's no other way for me to do business. I'm in the middle of a block and cars will just block the streets. And I'm not going to have my men flag away cars. They aren't going to get shot at or spat upon or humiliated or degraded just over the price of a gallon of gasoline," said Don Wilson.

Wilson, who operates Northwest Marathon, on Dundee Road near Arlington Heights Road, has been selling gasoline by appointment only for a month. He said he has been told his system is illegal according to federal fuel allocation regulations.

"I called them up and they told me I was liable to a $2,500 fine and arrest. I'm going to sue the government, they're the only one left. I can't get through to anyone else," he said.

WILSON DID MEET yesterday with U.S. Senators Charles Percy and Adlai Stevenson, but he is less than satisfied with the results.

"Yeah, I rode around Chicago a little bit with Percy, but it was like he is running for office," he said.

Sen. Stevenson held hearings in Chicago and Wilson said he thought he would be able to testify about the "little guy" running a station.

"They didn't want to hear. All they wanted to hear was Robert Jacobs of the gas dealers association. Are they bypassing the little guy? Yeah, I'd say 100 per cent," he said.

WILSON SAID he is becoming frustrated trying to sell gasoline in the Northwest suburbs. "I was trying to follow the order of doing things — working through our senators because it's a federal problem. It's total chaos. You just can't get through to these guys."

Wilson said he has 24,000 gallons of gasoline to be delivered this month, but he said he won't be able to sell it without causing a mammoth traffic snarl.

The administration asked Congress Wednesday for a billion-dollar boost over the next 15 months in benefits for the jobless — including those out of work because of the energy crisis. SLA: preaches love, uses violence

From United Press International

The Symbionese Liberation Army is a newcomer to the underground revolutionary movement in the United States.

It preaches a goal of creating a "new world system" based on love. But, so far, violence has been its trademark.

The SLA has claimed responsibility for the Nov. 9 assassination of popular Oakland, Calif., School Supt. Marcus A. Foster and for the Feb. 4 kidnapping of publishing heiress Patricia Hearst.

The group has sent four letters to news media. All were long dissertations on its philosophy which is, to summarize, war against fascism.

Police intelligence sources feel the SLA is an army in name only. About all investigators can learn is that it has, at the most, 25 members.

Checks of leftwing leaders have turned up nothing about the group. They say they have never heard of the SLA and, in fact, deplore its terrorist tactics.

The SLA says its members represent all races. In its letters, military-style language is used and show the existence of cadres with specific fields of operation.

Its literature discusses in detail the various units to be included in an SLA federation, emphasizing the "war council" which carries out its activities against the "fascist" United States.

The SLA symbolizes itself with a seven-headed snake representing its revolutionary goals, which include destruction of "all forms and institutions of racism, sexism, ageism, capitalism, fascism, individualism, possessiveness, competitiveness."

Nixon asks record transit outlay

From Herald news services

Emphasizing the urgency of the energy crisis, President Nixon asked Congress Wednesday to approve a record $21 billion program for revitalizing the nation's sluggish mass transit and rail systems.

Nixon said the $19.3 billion mass transit program he sent Congress Wednesday "would mark the largest single commitment by the federal government to metropolitan and rural transportation in our history."

A companion $2 billion railroad rejuvenation program, he said, would help restore an industry that has been "gradually deteriorating."

The energy crisis, Nixon said in a message accompanying his proposals, "has made urgent what once seemed only necessary. The building of a transportation system that permits all Americans to travel efficiently and at reasonable cost; and a railroad industry capable of serving the nation's economy to its full potential."

The mass transit legislation, called

Hearst: 'hang in there'

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — The father of Patricia Hearst, struggling to keep his voice from breaking, said Wednesday the largest kidnap ransom demand in history for the girl's release was "impossible to meet" but that he would present a counter offer in 24 to 48 hours.

Speaking on television — hoping he was talking directly to his 19-year-old daughter — publisher Randolph Hearst said he hoped the Symbionese Liberation Army would accept an alternative to their demand for $700,000 of free food, apiece, for 4.7 million California needy.

Grasping the hand of his 56-year-old wife, Catherine, who was crying, Hearst told his daughter to "hang in there" and that "I'm going to do everything I can to get you out of there."

It was estimated that giving free food to all those the SLA listed — people on welfare, those getting social security, disabled veterans, prison parolees — would cost between $300 and $400 million.

FBI special agent John Kelly said the demands of the terrorist organization were "in the realm of unreasonableness."

An oil 'showdown' sought

From Herald news services

The United States won hard-fought agreement from 11 other industrial allies Wednesday to seek a showdown conference with oil-producing states "at the earliest possible opportunity." France refused to go along.

French foreign minister Michel Jobert expressed his government's "formal opposition" to two specific points in the final communique of the international conference of 13 oil-consuming nations after haggling into an unscheduled third day.

The communique noted France's "reservations" on agreement to establish an internal "coordinating group" of senior officials to direct cooperative efforts to ease the world oil crisis and to make preparation for the conference with oil-producing nations. France also opposed providing for a second meeting of consumer nations, if necessary, before the climactic consumer-producer conference.

President Nixon issued a statement expressing his satisfaction at the outcome of the Washington parley, but stressed the action was only the beginning and all nations must pool their efforts to follow up the work of the conference.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said at a news conference that the coordinating group called for in the communique should get to work as soon as possible to expedite the meeting of producing and consuming nations.

It was clear that Kissinger succeeded in isolating France from its Common Market partners and forged an agreement among the 12 remaining participants that achieved most of the goals sought by the United States.

Meanwhile in Algiers, an Arab king and three presidents met Wednesday to review the use of the oil embargo against "pro-Israeli western nations," with Egypt and Algeria split over whether to continue using it against the United States.

King Saud of Saudi Arabia and Pres-

"The Unified Transportation Assistance Program," would provide $15.9 billion over the next six years for development of urban mass transit systems, subways and bus lines in major cities.

The program also adds $3.4 billion to develop transportation in rural areas and in cities under 50,000 population over the next six years.

The railroad legislation, called "The Transportation Improvement Act," asks $2 billion in federal loan guarantees to finance improvements and additions in rolling stock, rights-of-way, terminals and other facilities and equipment. It would also permit "uneconomic lines" to be abandoned.

Nixon said a strong point of the mass transit proposal was the flexibility it would give the cities and localities to decide spending priorities.

Other energy developments Wednesday:

• Federal energy chief William E. Simon took strong issue with a prediction by Budget Director Roy Ash that the worst of the energy crisis will be over within a matter of months. "I assume Mr. Ash meant that the Arab embargo would be lifted and while the shortages will remain, they will not be nearly as severe as they are right now," said Simon. But, he added, "the shortages will be here with us for a long time to come."

• Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., chairman of the House Commerce Committee, said his panel will study repeal of winter Daylight Saving Time as soon as the Transportation Department submits a study on effects of the new law.

• Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., urged the Internal Revenue Service to abolish rulings which make oil companies eligible for foreign tax credit. Although some congressmen have introduced legislation to do this, he said, "We don't need the legislation — just a change in IRS rulings."

been operating for two weeks and has been unable to get information on oil supplies in Illinois.

He said that to date his office has distributed about 500,000 gallons of the state's reserve gas allowed by the FEO to hardship cases, which are determined by the state.

HE ESTIMATED the state would get 9 million gallons for its reserve in February and that between 6 and 7 million could be available to the Chicago area for general consumption.

GEORGE Delegranis, Chicago-area administrator for the FEO, said he must depend on information released by oil companies to find out what supplies are available. He said his office, which had 103 employees, does not have enough people to get the oil information independently.

R. N. Gatchner, of Phillips Petroleum Co., said his company believes the end of the month shortage in Chicago was caused by station dealers who didn't manage their allocations daily and ran out of gas before the month was over.

Rinkema said another reason for the shortage was that the FEO is using 1972 gas sales as a basis for allocation instead of 1973 sales. This creates a problem, he said, because so much of the Chicago area has grown in the last year.

SEN. CHARLES PERCY, R-Ill., who sat in on the hearings for about an hour, said the Northwest suburbs are particularly affected by this because of their great growth in the past year.

Consumers "topping off" their gas tanks created the long lines and waits, according to oil company representatives, and gasoline dealers at the hearings. There were reports of two 27-cent sales and one 26-cent sale.

Russell D. Pfaff, general manager for Mobil Oil Corp., said that on the average, each motorist now stores about five gallons more in his tank than before the shortage. Considering there are 100,000,000 cars on the road nationally, he said, that means 500,000,000 extra gallons of gas stored, which is as much as the country consumes in two days.

SEVERAL CONSUMER groups present at the hearings criticized the oil companies for allocating gasoline "according to their own profit-making interests."

Although Gulf Oil Co. sent a written statement to the hearing, they decided yesterday not to appear "in protest," according to an attorney. The written statement said Gulf's efforts to supply gasoline to the public is hampered by the regulations of the FEO.

A group of men who said they were workers left the hearing, protesting that they were not allowed to be heard. Sen. Stevenson said they could be heard later, but the workers said they had to get back to work.

Solzhenitsyn sent on quick exile from USSR

FRANKFURT (UPI) — Alexander Isaevich Solzhenitsyn, the novelist who won the Nobel Literature Prize for his stinging revelations of brutality in Soviet labor camps, was stripped of his Soviet citizenship Wednesday and expelled into exile in West Germany with only the clothes on his back.

Soviet sources in Moscow said that Solzhenitsyn, who always maintained he would never leave the Soviet Union voluntarily, changed his mind at a meeting with state prosecutors after his arrest Tuesday night and agreed to accept exile. He was flown to West Germany on a regularly-scheduled Soviet airliner.

The sources said authorities had planned to give Solzhenitsyn two or three days to prepare his departure with his family when they served a summons on him last Friday.

But he refused to obey that summons and a subsequent one Monday, so authorities decided to "expedite" his departure, the sources said. They said his wife and three sons would be allowed to take away all the materials in their possession that he needs to continue his work as a writer. The family will be allowed to join him "when they deem it necessary."

The bearded author headed for the country home of novelist Heinrich Böll, also a Nobel Prize laureate.

Solzhenitsyn's arrest and expulsion was the climax of a fierce campaign against him since publication of his latest book, "The Gulag Archipelago," in the West. It is a history of Soviet prison camps where he himself had spent years.

IRS charges U.S. Gypsum owes $20 million in taxes

From Herald news services

The Internal Revenue Service has charged that United States Gypsum Co., a key defendant in a giant price-fixing suit, owes the federal government more than $20 million in back taxes, according to U.S. Tax Court records.

In addition to the tax deficiency, the IRS has assessed the Chicago-based company $1 million in penalties for "negligence or intentional disregard" of federal tax law.

U.S. Gypsum was named last month by the Justice Department as co-defendant in a suit charging that the nation's six largest producers of gypsum wallboard, plaster and sheetrock conspired to fix the prices of these key building materials over a 13-year period. The company also has been named in a number of other antitrust actions going as far back as 1957.

In an unrelated case, the IRS has charged Magnavox Co., Port Wayne, Ind., one of the nation's largest makers of television sets, phonographs and radios, with owing about $1.6 million in back taxes.

Both companies have disputed the IRS findings and appealed their cases to U.S. Tax Court.

Finally going through with his off-postponed physical checkup, President Nixon was pronounced in "really excellent" health Wednesday, then took off for a long weekend in Key Biscayne accompanied by Pat, daughter Tricia Cox and several aides. Nixon will make two public appearances on the trip, including dedication of a health center in Miami today.

Also off to Florida, after what aides describe as a series of 18-hour work days, is energy chief William Simon. Simon, who'll stay in the sun until Monday, flew by commercial jet.

Black Americans taken to the United States as slaves should take over the country and elect a black president and secretary of state. So says President Idi Amin of Uganda, who also charged that Israelis planned to poison the waters of the Nile in Uganda during the 1967 Middle East war.

Politics has beckoned British actress Vanessa Redgrave, who has a reputation as an outspoken advocate of left-wing causes. Miss Redgrave, in announcing she would run for parliament under the Trotskyite Workers' Revolutionary Party label in a London working-class district, said: "The economic crisis has compelled me to go into the conflict and stand with the people who are being exploited."

Yet another sign of the Vatican's growing rapprochement with the Communist world: Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will call on Pope Paul VI during a visit to Rome next week.

A former president of the United Nations General Assembly and New Zealand ambassador to the United States — Sir Leslie Munro — is dead at age 72.

U. S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas tells of a conversation he once had with late Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev: he told the Kremlin boss he was a "born politician" who should have been an American. What, asked Khrushchev, might my career have been? "Well, Mr. Chairman, you'd probably have ended up as mayor of Chicago."

A portrait of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. standing in front of the Lincoln Memorial will be hung in the Georgia's state capitol building in Atlanta Sunday, marking the first time a black leader will be so honored in the state's official portrait gallery.

Builder tells of shakedown try by Stavros

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Former Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman James Stavros demanded a payoff to influence zoning for the Cedar Run development in Wheeling. The Herald has learned.

Stavros, under federal indictment in connection with alleged shakedowns of several other developers, made the payoff demand at a March 1970 meeting with a representative of Tekton Corp., developer of the 456-unit quadruminium project.

Company officials said the firm refused to go along with the shakedown attempt but one executive admitted hiring project subcontractors recommended by a village official in Wheeling.

THE TEKTON representative confronted by Stavros with the payoff demand agreed to provide information to The Herald on the condition that his name not be used.

The attempted extortion began five weeks after Tekton announced plans for construction of Cedar Run on the Horcher property north of McHenry Road and east of Buffalo Grove Road. Original plans for the project, announced Feb. 3, 1970, called for rezoning of the 40 acres from single-family residential use to planned unit development with a possible 12-story condominium building.

Stavros met with the Tekton representative in mid-March 1970 at the Black Ram Restaurant in Des Plaines.

"WE MET previously with school board and other local officials," the Tekton representative said. "We were seeking practical suggestions on how to proceed with an application for rezoning."

The meeting with Stavros was brief. "I don't know if he (Stavros) even knew about the project. There was no question he was looking for money."

"It was like going to the candy store and asking for some JuJubes," the Tekton representative said. "The question was how much (zoning would cost). It was as simple as that."

The representative said that when national corporations plan a development, advice of local experts is sought in "informal" meetings. Stavros' demand for a payoff "really shocked me," the Tekton representative said.

The company flatly refused to give in to the Stavros demand. Company sources said, "We've done nothing wrong," said David Zajick, a Tekton attorney.

"THE DIFFERENCE between our position and that of other individuals (developers) is that they made a cash payoff," said Lewis Wright, Tekton executive vice president.

"We gave all our records to the U.S. Attorney and the FBI. We opened our drawers to them," Wright said.

"We don't deny" that a payoff was demanded, Wright said.

Stavros was indicted two weeks ago by a federal grand jury on charges of extortion and conspiracy to commit extortion. Stavros, 3705 Whirlaway Dr., Northbrook, is charged with extorting from developers more than $111,000 plus real estate, water and sewer lines for his mother's house, liquor and a vacation for William Bieber, Wheeling planning and zoning director.

STAVROS' ATTORNEY, Joel Murray, said he is "totally unfamiliar with any charges other than those contained in the indictments. Mr. Stavros, acting on the advice of his counsel, is refusing to make any comment on any pending matter or on any matter that may be remotely connected with the indictments."

The only mention of Tekton in the six indictments returned Jan. 31 by a special federal grand jury involves Bieber and Rock Road Construction Co.

Bieber denied in grand jury testimony that he recommended hiring of certain subcontractors by developers. "The question is that you never recommended to any general contractor or any contractor in Wheeling that he use a subcontractor?" a U.S. attorney asked. "No, sir," Bieber answered.

The indictment charges Bieber lied when he denied urging Donald Buick of Tekton to "use Rock Road Construction Co."

WRIGHT acknowledged that an unnamed village official "did insist that we use certain subcontractors." However, Buick, who left Tekton in December 1973, said that he was not "coerced or influenced" to hire Rock Road.

Buick, interviewed last fall by an FBI agent, said, "I will not lie for the company, the village or the government. I can't prove a single thing. There were a lot of rumors."

Wheeling officials "never allowed me to buy them lunch," Buick said.

Rock Road was hired to pave Cedar Run streets, although the firm is not listed on the Tekton village building permit. "They did work for us in the past," Buick said.

ASST. U.S. ATTY. Steven Kadison said he will "stand by" the accuracy of the perjury indictment.

A second Cedar Run subcontractor, Domas Plumbing Co., 106 E. Dundee Rd., also is mentioned in the Bieber perjury indictment. Roman Domas, a Wheeling zoning board member in 1970 and a former trustee, was recommended by Bieber for Chesterfield Development Co. work, according to the indictment.

Another Cedar Run subcontractor, village records show, was excavator Country Service and Supply Co., 3300 Milwaukee, Northbrook, which employs zoning board member Alan Martin.

Stavros and Bieber were both charged in one of the indictments with obtaining subcontracts with Ben Pekin Corp., developer of Tahoe Village, for Rock Road and Country Service.

After Stavros approached Tekton for a payoff, the firm hired attorney John M. Daley to handle its zoning case. Daley, a cousin of Chicago Mayor Richard Daley, became a Democratic ward committeeman in 1967 and sat on the county central committee with Stavros until Stavros resigned his committeeman post in November 1967.

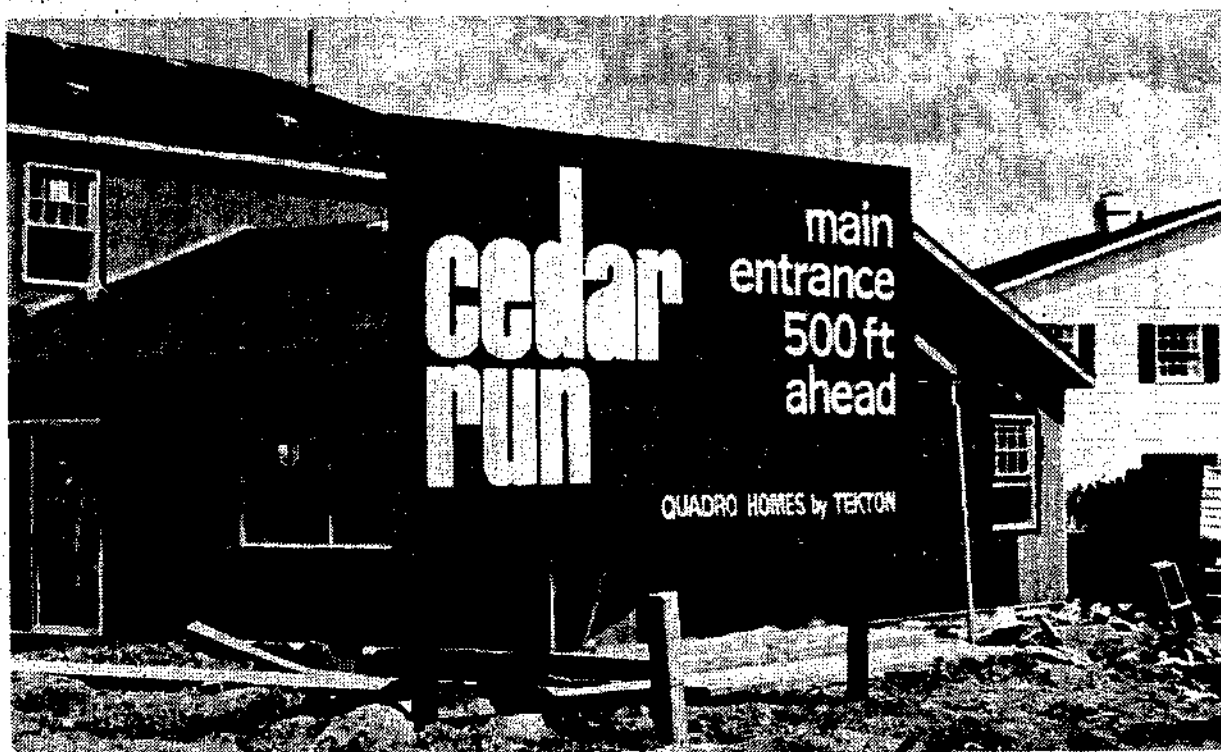

Daley told The Herald he previously represented Tekton in other zoning cases, but he refused to name the projects. He said he did not discuss any extortion attempt with Tekton officials or with Stavros.

Wright said the firm did not meet the payoff demand "because you have your legal rights. The other builders could have stopped this in the beginning. It just took us a heck of a long time to get approval (of zoning)."

Village records indicate no abnormal delays.

Tekton received zoning board approval for the Cedar Run project April 15, 1970, about a month after Stavros' meeting with the Tekton representative.

The Wheeling Village Board unanimously approved zoning for the project July 15, 1970, when the project included 22 one-bedroom, 226 two-bedroom, 182 three-bedroom and 26 four-bedroom townhouses.

CEDAR RUN DEVELOPERS in Wheeling said the townhouse project was delayed by refusal to pay a kickback to former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman James Stavros. The developers, Tekton Corp. of Oak Brook, revealed that they were pressured to use subcontractors recommended by local officials.

IN DECEMBER, 1970, the village and Tekton agreed to split the $120,000 cost of Cedar Run's sewer and water system.

In April 1971, Tekton officials announced a change in project plans by switching to a 114 four-unit quad-home development. The final quadruminium plan was approved Sept. 29, 1971.

Wright said the U.S. Attorney's office "wants to make sure that they can get a conviction. Our case was simply not a strong enough violation of the Hobbs Act," which prohibits interference of interstate commerce by extortion.

Tekton officials later refused additional comment about the development. "It could well be that this investigation is continuing," said Robert Bagdassarian, a New York attorney representing Tekton. "I have advised my client not to comment."

Park board wrapup

Lions Park pool plan accepted

A preliminary floor plan and elevation plan for the proposed renovation of the Lions Park pool were accepted by the Prospect Heights Park District board Tuesday. Specifications of the plans were not immediately available because they remain in the hands of architects James H. Deal and Gerald Page of Prospect Heights.

The pool improvements are planned as part of a bond referendum project which may also include construction of a community center, landscaping, additional tennis courts and other general park improvements.

No cost estimate has been placed on the referendum but officials say it could be as high as $1.1 million.

Deal and Page have been commissioned to draw up preliminary plans for the pool and community center. The completed plans are expected to be ready to present to the board by the end of the month.

Defeat of RTA bill urged

The Prospect Heights Park District board has urged defeat of the proposed Regional Transit Authority bill unless provisions giving the RTA board the right of eminent domain are removed from the proposal.

A resolution objecting to the RTA's right of eminent domain was approved by the park board Tuesday. Eminent domain, which would give the RTA board the power to condemn public parks, state forest and forest preserve district land, is detrimental because it represents an encroachment on public land, the resolution stated.

The park board said its only objection to the RTA bill, which will be voted on March 19, is with the eminent domain provision.

Land sale restricted

A resolution restricting the sale, lease or transfer of three parcels of land next to Lions Park has been approved by the Prospect Heights Park District board.

The resolution, which prohibits transfer of the lands without prior approval from the Department of Housing and Urban Development, was a formality needed in order for the park district to receive a federal grant of $10,950 to help purchase the lands.

Local school census results being received

Results are beginning to come in from a census of School Dist. 21 residents conducted last fall to aid in projecting enrollments and identifying students with special needs.

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said yesterday some data has been returned from the Northwest Educational Cooperative computer center, which tabulated the results of the survey. He could not say, however, when a report on the census would be released.

The first census conducted by the district in 10 years, the survey was undertaken because changes in building patterns have made it difficult to estimate future enrollments.

The census will also determine how many students in the district need special instruction. In addition to measuring the number of children with mental or physical handicaps, the survey is also to reveal the number of local students who need bilingual instruction.

The census was taken by PTA and PTO members in each school attendance area in the communities served by Dist. 21, including Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

Devoncourt plans to be reviewed

The Wheeling Plan Commission tonight will review final plans for the Devoncourt Condominiums, proposed as the third phase of the Lakeside Villas development on Hintz Road.

The commission refused to review original plans for the 252-unit project this fall, saying that developers were manipulating the village codes to build a high density project.

As originally proposed, the project would have provided separate recreational facilities and open space, and thus would not have been part of the Lakeside Villas development.

According to the plan commission, this would make the two projects entirely separate, and would defeat the purpose of the village's planned development ordinance.

The project was proposed by the Zale Construction Co., developers of Lakeside Villas, which was planning to sell the 10-acre site to the Ferguson Development Corp. Both developers were told to return with plans that complied with village ordinance.

These plans will be presented at tonight's meeting at 7:30 at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Friday deadline for stickers, license plates

Midnight Friday is the deadline for displaying 1974 Wheeling vehicle stickers and Illinois license plates.

The stickers cost $10 for cars and $6 for motorcycles. Persons not displaying vehicle stickers are subject to ticketing, which carries a $5 fine if paid by the ticket's due date and $10 if paid after that date.

In addition, persons purchasing a vehicle sticker after Friday will have to pay a $5 late fee. A vehicle sticker must be purchased before the police department will accept payment of the ticket fine.

The stickers are available at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd., which is open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The village clerk has extended hours on Friday to run from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. to accommodate latecomers.

License plates are available at local currency exchanges and banks at $18 for cars with less than 35 horsepower and $30 for cars with more than 35 horsepower. The fee for motorcycles is $12.

Few injuries in minor crashes

Ice, fog take toll on drivers' fenders

Icy pavement compounded by dense fog saddled most area police departments with a multitude of traffic accidents during yesterday's morning rush hour.

A spokesman for the U.S. Weather Service said there was no fog forecast for this morning but below-freezing temperatures early today might create icy conditions in spots where water was left from melting snows.

Most of yesterday's accidents did not involve injuries.

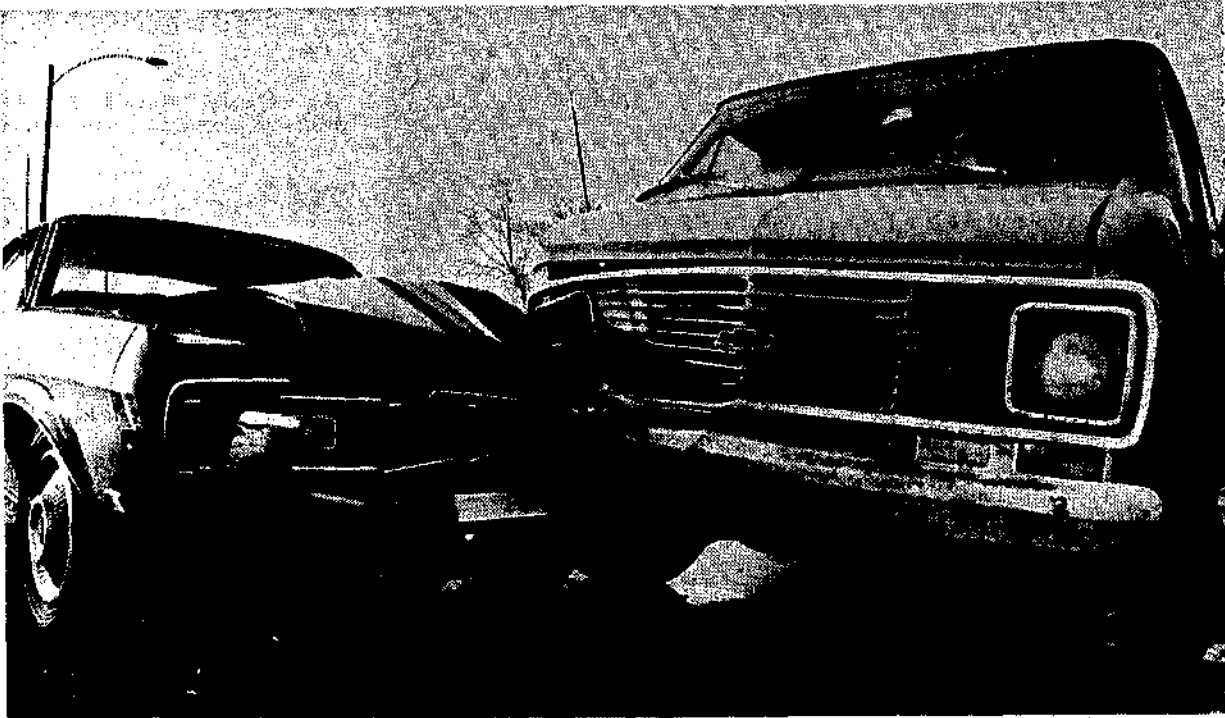

State police reported the fog and cold weather created icy spots particularly near expressway overpasses. Between 7 and 8:15 a.m., 14 property-damage accidents were handled by state troopers.

Eight of those were located on a short stretch of Higgins Road between the Ill. Rte. 53 overpass and Arlington Heights Road. The series of two car crashes almost appeared to be one massive pile-up, but troopers said they occurred separately.

OTHER TREACHEROUS spots were reported to be Ill. Rte. 53 and Ill. Rte. 59 near the Northwest Tollway and Golf Road west of Barrington Road.

Cook County Sheriff's Police received 50 accident calls from the northern half of the county between 7:30 and 8:30 a.m. These included four collisions along Palatine Road in unincorporated Wheeling Township.

Des Plaines police said 27 accidents were reported between 7 and 9:30 a.m.

THIS ACCIDENT yesterday was one of dozens in the fog. A rash of accidents occurred on Palatine and Higgins roads, as well as other major highways.

Schaumburg police responded to 14 accident calls, Mount Prospect 12 and Arlington Heights 10.

Schaumburg police said accidents occurred on Golf Road at intersections with Higgins, Ash and Roselle roads and with Valley Lake Drive. There were collisions on Meacham Road at intersections with Higgins and Schaumburg roads.

Betty Spence pops up in Washington

by GREG KINCZEWSKI

WASHINGTON — Betty Spence came to the capital Wednesday seeking a vital ingredient for her congressional candidacy — publicity. And she thinks she got it.

Mrs. Spence, who is 38 and the mother of three, is the Democratic candidate against U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12. She was in Washington at the invitation of the National Women's Political Caucus — a national, bi-partisan organization that encourages and advises women candidates.

NWPC invited 14 women candidates from around the country to Wednesday's luncheon and press conference. The idea was to use these women as symbols for the 3,000 other women which the organization estimates will run for state and federal office in 1974.

THE NWPC invitation also enabled Mrs. Spence to appear before network

Betty Spence

TV cameras and to talk to reporters from Chicago suburban and city newspapers.

"I've got to get people to know who I am, what I'm running for, and what I believe in. Otherwise, I can't expect them to vote for me," she told reporters.

Mrs. Spence said such press exposure is absolutely necessary if she is going to establish herself as a credible candidate in time for next month's primary.

"Even though I'm running unopposed, I want to get a good turnout in the primary, more votes than the party's candidate got against Crane in the 1972 general election," she said.

That won't take a whole lot since Crane got 74.2 per cent of the vote two years ago — a tally Mrs. Spence insists is very misleading.

"That percentage sounds pretty impressive, until you remember that 1972 was a Nixon landslide, Crane's original opponent dropped out of the race, and the substitute didn't have time to put a real campaign together," she said.

MRS. SPENCE, an experienced campaigner, who won four out of five county elections in Georgia before moving to Buffalo Grove in 1968, promises her campaign won't be just token opposition.

The AFL-CIO has already endorsed her, as has the 12th District Democratic Women's Club (of which she happens to be president), and the local women's Political Caucus. Mrs. Spence's husband, Johnny, is an international representative for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

She also said that she has already received pledges for about $25,000 of the $50,000 she hopes to raise for her campaign.

"AFTER THE primary, when the 12th District knows who I am, I'm going to convince it that my ideas represent it better than Crane's," Mrs. Spence said. "Look at his record. He's been against money for education, the aged, and labor. Why, his major bill is to let Americans own gold," she continued.

"I'm more concerned in letting Americans afford to buy milk and bread. I think the people of the 12th District feel the same," Mrs. Spence said.

She added that some of the women she met at Wednesday's conference — Cissy Farenthold, NWPC chairwoman and candidate for governor of Texas, and Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y. — have volunteered to come to Illinois to help her campaign.

LIZ CARPENTER, former aide to President Lyndon B. Johnson, said that more women will run for office in 1974 than ever before. She predicted that "politics will never be the same again, and maybe it shouldn't."

Mrs. Farenthold said that NWPC's goal for 1974 is to encourage women of all parties to run for office and to provide them with back-up political services, including expertise on how to run a campaign, public relations, legal assistance and fund-raising.

Thirty-two newspaper and news service executives from 17 states and Bermuda will attend.

The program will include discussions on a wide range of topics relating to improved news gathering and presentation, reader confidence, executive self-improvement, newsroom administration, and the relationship of the news department to the total newspaper operation.

There will also be a detailed analysis of member newspapers and a round-table exchange of ideas for news and features.

Charles E. Hayes

The program was planned and will be conducted by Paul Swenson, associate director of the American Press Institute.

Love, shmove—who cares?

Cupid gets his chance, as usual, but nobody seems to get too excited anymore...

by KAREN BLECHA

Love is... the same old thing.

Cavities and calories. Fifteen — twenty-five — fifty-cent cards with words of TRUE LOVE written by somebody else. Pink, red, white, yellow roses that shrivel up and die. White boxer shorts smothered in tiny red hearts. Once original. Now just another cliché.

Valentine's Day. Today. That once-a-year multi-million-dollar exercise in super-sentimentality. A simple kiss or "I Love You" just won't do. Rush to the florist for a few roses so she won't be disappointed. Pick up a book or a shirt for him because this year he deserves a present, too. Women's lib.

Most people don't think any further than Fanny May's when they think of Valentine's Day. A year and a half ago, Western Union canceled its singing Valentine telegram because there were not enough requests for it. (Besides, it was hard to put "I love you Ruth" to the tune of "Darlin' Clementine.")

BUT TAKE HEART. Next year you can forget the cards, candy and flowers and tell your Valentine how you really feel. For about $5 an inch, you can put your message into newsprint for thousands to read. Like Ted, who took out this advertisement in the personal column of a newspaper one Valentine's Day:

"Lee, even though your demands are small, I'd like to give you the Taj Mahal."
Or Anne:

"With you Jim, I'm quite enthralled. Even though you are slightly bald."

About $300 will buy space from Diamond Outdoor Advertising in Des Plaines for a billboard Valentine, according to "Red" Wells, the firm's president.

"Once in a great while we get that kind of request," he said. Last year one of his salesmen from Wheeling used a billboard to say happy 13th anniversary to his wife. "That was a combination anniversary — Valentine's Day present," Wells said.

"HAPPY BIRTHDAY, Betty" was the last personal message George J. Priester flew over the Northwest suburbs. Priester, owner of Palwaukee Airport in Wheeling, said he can fly a neon sign at night for $200 an hour. The sign hangs from the bottom of the airplane and shines as long as the plane is in the air.

"Most of the requests we get are for political advertising, like Vote for..." Priester said. "We've never had a request for Valentine's Day. For Mama, girl friend or whatever."

At least one man was willing to bear the cost this year to express his requited love. Bob Feller, president of Sky-Ads Inc. of Aurora, said he will fly "Happy Valentine's Day Maureen, Love Jim" over Lombard for one hour today. The cost: $119.

"That includes everything — the banner, ground crews, the pilot and gasoline," Feller said. "We get messages like this all the time. We get Happy Birthdays, and anniversaries. It's funny this year — usually we get more than one request for Valentine's Day. This time we only got one."

Where has love gone?

6 at Sacred Heart take early graduation

Five seniors and one junior at Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows have opted for early graduation this year with the approval of their parents and a committee of teachers and administrators.

Seniors Patty Kincaid, Annette Kubajek, Caryn Pusateri, Pat Boyle and Barb Zehe graduated at the close of the first semester, but may return for graduation ceremonies in June. Junior Annemarie Marwitz plans to graduate in June and participate in the senior graduation ceremony.

The girls' applications for early graduation were reviewed in a series of steps that considered their academic achievement, maturity, responsibility and service to the school community.

'Dominicks Day' to benefit GAA

A "Dominicks Day" will be held Feb. 20 by the Girls' Athletic Assn. at Sacred Heart of Mary High School, Rolling Meadows.

Five per cent of all Sacred Heart parents' grocery purchases will be donated by Dominicks to the GAA. Parents will be mailed an identification card which should be shown to the Dominicks cashier at the time of purchase.

Proceeds will be used to help with the expenses for special projects in the athletic program at Sacred Heart, according to Sacred Heart senior Maureen Redmond, GAA president and GAA advisor Rosemary Sawin.

The bright side of school 'politics'

Earlier this week a story in The Herald talked about a new book that has been published listing the cities that are the "safest" in the nation. The book was of local interest because Arlington Heights ranked as the 15th safest city and Des Plaines ranked 80th.

The last sentence in the story quoted the author of the book as saying his home town, Ridgefield, Conn., was too small to include in the survey but is "very safe as long as you don't get involved in school board politics."

I'm sure the writer ended the story with that line because it was funny and he wanted to end the story on a light note. But funny or not, the line contains some truth, and not just in Ridgefield, Conn.

School boards in recent years have become public jobs that carry almost as much potential for controversy as the Presidency. All over the country, school board members have faced the problems of racial integration, violence and disruption and drug use.

Schools in the Northwest suburbs have been lucky in avoiding those first two problems, but any school official will tell you the drug problem faces local schools. So do the problems of militant teachers (although there has been only one strike), budget cuts and, most recently, sexism.

In short, there are plenty of problems that face our schools. The job of school board member isn't a nice, uneventful way to do a little public service, make sure the schools are warm (even that's getting controversial these days) and hand out diplomas once a year.

Thinking about that, you can see why someone would say a town is safe unless

by Wandalyn Rice

you're involved in "school board politics."

HOWEVER, there's something else to think about regarding that quote — and that's how many school board members and others concerned with school boards like PTA members, administrators and, yes, even teachers, shy away from the word "politics" when applied to school boards.

The word "politics" to many school people is synonymous with partisan infighting, the domination of special interests and, of necessity, bad education.

In order to keep "politics" out of the schools, concerned citizens sometimes form school board caucuses to screen candidates. These groups are rigorously nonpartisan and in some areas, such as Arlington Heights and Des Plaines, these nonpartisan, nonpolitical groups have in their zeal managed to dominate the elections totally.

However, the aversion to the word "politics" seems to me to be self-defeating. After all, the schools are facing some problems that are of major importance to the whole society — and taking the schools out of "politics" can also take the public out of the discussion of solutions.

POLITICS, after all, does not have to mean Republican and Democrat. It does not have to mean partisan infighting and special interests. It can instead mean, according to the dictionary, "The art or science of government, a science dealing with the regulation and control of men living in society; the art of adjusting and ordering relationships between individuals and groups."

What are the rules on student conduct if not "regulation and control of men living in society?" What are teachers negotiations if not "ordering relationships between individuals and groups?" School board members are involved in "politics" all the time.

Now that school board elections are approaching (filing for candidates begins Feb. 27 and the election is April 13), we should all think about the various meanings of politics as they relate to schools. Certainly, no one wants to see the schools become a partisan battleground, but that should not prevent the election campaigns from dealing with the "political" issues involved in student discipline, teachers rights or anything else.

TOO OFTEN it seems as though the nice, polite persons who become involved actively with schools and school elections don't think these topics are suitable for discussion in a political campaign. They are too hungup on keeping "politics" out of schools.

But as the elections roll around, remember that school boards aren't private clubs, and the elections aren't limited to select groups.

The "politics" of every school board involves every person — adult or child — in the Northwest suburbs.

4 named to state school advisory unit

Four Northwest suburban residents have been appointed to the Northern Cook and Lake County advisory council to State School Supt. Michael Bakalis.

The new appointees are Peter Casey of Arlington Heights, Brian McGuire of Wheeling, Emanuel M. Star of Mount Prospect and Mrs. Ivanka Vreuls of Des Plaines.

The advisory council is one of 12 in the state established by Bakalis to work with him in setting state policies. This year, according to Bakalis's office, the councils will be asked to suggest guidelines for the use of volunteers in Illinois schools.

Other Northwest suburban residents on the advisory council are Jan Bone of Palatine and Richard Sass of Elk Grove Village.

HOLLYWOOD — There is no defensible reason for the failure of commercial network television to have a single, weekly, prime-time public affairs series.

For that matter, it is indefensible that such regular weekly prime-time entries are not on all three commercial networks.

It's not really asking too much, is it? I mean, if there is room for "The Brady Bunch," "Hawaii Five-O," then it seems only reasonable that prime-time — video's front page — should also offer topical, weekly, new-documentary programs.

The commercial networks will give you excuses for not having such weekly public affairs series. For instance, there was the networks' point that the government cutback on their prime-time hours made it necessary for them to reduce the amount of "soft" ratings entries so they could compensate financially.

IT IS TRUE THAT several of the networks felt the impact of this government move to encourage more local and independent programming — a move that has generally failed. And while one understands the corporate economic rationale at the networks in response to the prime-time cutback, there is also something known as corporate responsibility to the public — and not just to stockholders.

None of the commercial networks have a financial sob story to tell. They are all doing quite well, thank you. Even the smallest of the "Big Three," ABC-TV, keeps talking about record profits. ABC-

DuBrow on TV

by Rick DuBrow

TV at least has come up with a notable new series of periodic investigative documentaries, but this is still far from a solution to the problem of getting weekly public affairs series on the air.

Even before the government cutback on network prime time, weekly news-documentary programs in these key viewing hours were not all that common. And topical weekly new-documentary series were almost unheard of. When you consider how far television has come, and how far it boasts it has come, this is an extraordinary situation. What in the world, one must ask, is video all about in the end — "The Brady Bunch"? — "The Girl With Something Extra"? — "Hawaii Five-O"?

HERE AND THERE, we have had some weekly — and topical — prime-time public affairs series. But the total has been woefully low for the medium that keeps flexing its public relations muscles to tell us that it is the most powerful communications force in the history of the world. We know how potent television is and that's what makes its failure in the area of weekly prime-time public affairs series even worse. One

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Christine Belford, the new addition to the "Banacek" series, is beautiful, single and once dated the series' star, George Peppard.

But Christine is no longer romantically involved with Peppard and has no other special man in her life. That situation, she says, is subject to change at a moment's notice.

The youthful actress made a choice when she accepted the role in the show — career or romance. She opted for career.

Thus Christine spends almost all her time away from the set at Universal Studios by herself. That doesn't include her companions at home, however. She has several dozen tropical fish and four cats.

Home for Christine is a two-bedroom apartment in Westwood, not so fashionable as Beverly Hills or Bel Air but considerably less expensive.

A NATIVE of Long Island, Christine moved to Hollywood four years ago and brought with her an old oak dining room table with clawed feet and her own bed. She has spent the intervening years scrupulously searching antique shops for furniture.

Her tastes are off-beat and practical. She has a planter made from an ancient barber shop shelf that once held shaving mugs. Cost: $20. Her coffee table is an old wooden trunk, unvarnished, with unpainted iron fittings and a glass top. Cost: $22.

Christine is as much a stranger to Hollywood's glamour as a working girl in Des Moines. Her hours are long. And her dedication to her career is absolute.

Because of her long hours Christine has a firm rule against dating during the week. Even weekends are fairly dateless.

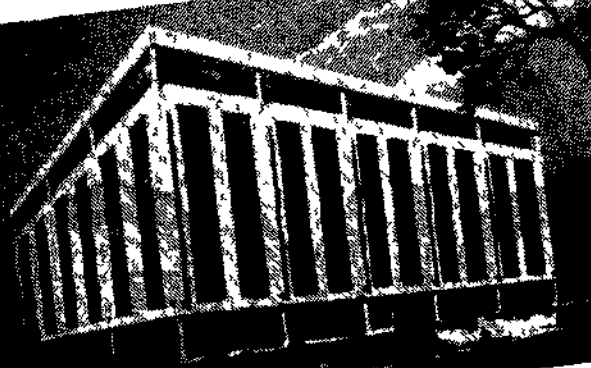

must ask: What is all this power of television being used for? There is no automatic virtue in simply having freak impact.

Network executives who have principles must stop periodically amid their day-to-day business and ask themselves just exactly what they are trying to do besides make money for their companies. If they can't answer that question, they are in trouble. And so are we.

Word to wise: don't tamper with height

I read a column by you on size, and I too am worried about it.

You stated that some boys are late starters, but my problem is that I know for a fact that my children will all be short. My husband is only 5 feet and I'm only 4 feet 11. There isn't a tall person on either side of the family. The tallest man is only 5 feet 7. It isn't too bad for girls, but my little boy is only 5 and he hates being small already.

I know that heredity means just about everything in determining height. I'd like to know, is there anything at all that can be done to make a person taller? If so, does it have to be done at a certain age and what are the risks involved? I'd be willing to pay just about anything to have this done.

There is a normal range of height, from the small person who is a shortstop to the tall guy who plays professional basketball. I don't think we know enough about changing the heredity blueprints we have at birth to justify tampering with this situation yet, perhaps one day we will.

There are a number of medical problems associated with short stature that can be treated or helped. One of these is those individuals who are short because they have a decreased amount of growth hormone normally made by our pituitary gland just underneath the brain. These individuals are normally proportioned, but just small all over. It takes some careful laboratory tests to sort these people out.

When this is the cause, growth hormone treatments can be given with good results. Obviously though, this treatment is not used unless there is a real decrease in growth hormone to begin with. The only way I know to find out about these problems is to have a good complete examination by an endocrinologist. Pediatricians are well-informed on expected growth rate and if your boy isn't growing fast enough as he gets older, then would be the right time to do something about it.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DR. MAURICE RABEN at the Tufts New England Medical Center began treating these problems with growth hormone in 1956. One of his early cases was of a 17-year-old boy only 4 feet 3 inches tall. After several years of treatment he grew to a 5'6", not much taller than your husband, but well within the normal range of height.

When decreased pituitary function is the cause of slow growth, the treatment can be started a little late. In these individuals the long leg bones don't calcify shut so early, so it is still possible to do something about the problem. In a normal, short person the bones begin to close in the later teens and by the early 20s at the latest it is usually too late to do anything about the height. However, again, if the person is normal, these kinds of hormones are not indicated.

In your case, I would wait until your boys are well into his teens before getting excited about his height. Meanwhile, give him plenty of protein and keep him physically active, and he will at least develop a good healthy body.

'Island King' sells clients 'dreams, wind, beauty...'

by DEAN C. MILLER
NEW YORK — Bob Douglas, a Canadian who started out to become a Baptist minister, turned his zeal to selling Nova Scotia islands to Americans seeking kingdoms on earth.
"They come to me, eager to get away from it all on their own little island," said Douglas, 34, the self-styled "Island King" who operates out of a realty office in Mahone Bay, 50 miles southwest of Halifax. "I sell them dreams, fog, wind, beauty, the prestige of owning something uniquely their own, something completely within their control."
Douglas, a portly man with a brusque, claims that an island also is a good investment. "I can virtually guarantee to double a person's money within two years," he said. He didn't say he would. But he did tell of buying an island in

DOUGLAS FIGURED the gross on his island sales in the last two years at about $1.6 million. A 100-acre island he sold to a group of IBM employees from White Plains, N.Y. is listed today at $800,000. He also has sold a five-acre island for $1,200. "But that was back in 1970," said Douglas. "Today it would bring $11,000."
The Island King says his clients usually are affluent escapists, artists or specialized users.
Robert M. Smith, Hankins, N.Y., an executive at General Tire Corp., and some friends bought Sheep and David Islands in Guysborough county and set it up as an artists' colony.
BARTLETT JACKSON, San Francisco attorney with a yen to write, bought an island off White Head, Guysborough county, as a summer retreat for indulging his hobby.
Dr. Lois Hazen, New York psychiatrist, bought St. John's Island which abounds in fog and seagulls. She is involved there with organic farming.
Doctors seem to be good prospects. Two psychiatrists are checking several islands as sites for clinics. Two German doctors may locate a "face lift" retreat on another of Douglas' islands. "It's close to New York where there are many wealthy women and business men who may be interested in facelifting, and it offers a romantic spot to recuperate," explained Douglas.

Business today

November, 1969, for $8,500 that 25 months and four sales later went for $58,500. Working on a 10 to 20 per cent commission, his share of that last sale amounted to more than the original sales price of the island, Douglas said.

AFTER FINISHING high school, Douglas worked for a bank in Liverpool, N.S., then decided to become a minister and enrolled in Acadia University. Like most college students, he needed more money and turned to selling and renovating old houses. Commerce eventually won over religion when he left the university, moved to Moncton and opened a real estate office.

Inquiries about islands led him in August, 1970, to open an office in Mahone Bay, a community near as many islands as it has residents, about 1,250.

In the last two years, Douglas has sold 55 of the 3,500 islands lying off Nova Scotia. Douglas gets options on islands, usually by giving the fishermen owners a $10 case of beer, takes aerial and ground-level colored pictures of them, advertises in financial journals in the United States, then waits for the letters and phone calls. "Sometimes the whole deal is made without seeing the buyer," he said. "Sometimes he flies up to take a look."

IRS offers free income tax advice

Free income tax assistance is no further away than your telephone according to Roger C. Beck, district director of Internal Revenue for northern Illinois.

Beck said that most taxpayers should be able to prepare their own returns by following step-by-step instructions that come with their Form 1040 or 1040A. If taxpayers need additional help, they can call IRS, toll-free, for tax assistance, he said.

Toll-free telephone numbers for northern Illinois are listed on page 2 of the instructions with the 1040 tax package and page 7 of the 1040A tax package. Local numbers are also listed in some instances.

"This service allows taxpayers anywhere in the state the opportunity of obtaining tax information without long distance charges," Beck said.

He also noted that several IRS offices in northern Illinois will provide regular walk-in service to help taxpayers to prepare their returns. We have assigned additional personnel to assist taxpayers this year, he said. Saturday hours are 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Corporation medical director:

Top executives live longer

Is the top executive, beset with pressures, working himself to death? Definitely not, says the chief medical director of one of the nation's largest businesses.

Being an executive is not an occupational health hazard. As a group, top executives enjoy better health and longer life than their subordinates in the uncarpeted offices down the hall.

Dr. George M. Wheatley, vice president and chief medical director of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., discussed health and longevity in a speech delivered at a recent seminar of the Hawaii Executives Council at the Mauna Kea Beach Hotel in Honolulu.

"Our company has the figures to prove it," said Wheatley. "We have studied mortality among thousands of employees of several of the nation's largest corporations and find that the executives have by far the best health record in the industrial population."

WHEATLEY CITED a Metropolitan Life investigation of the mortality experience over a 12-year period of more than 8,000 men listed in Who's Who in America in 1950-51. They do not experience as favorable longevity as doctors, lawyers and scientists. As a group, they had a death rate only 70 per cent that of white males in the general U. S. population or, to put it more simply, 3 per cent lower than expected.

Executive responsibilities do not make a person more prone to tension and "tension diseases" than others. Tension, said the Metropolitan Life physician, depends more on who is experiencing it, than on what is causing it.

Wheatley quoted two surveys of top executives made by the Life Extension Institute, a New York-based national health group — one in 1958 and the other in 1971. Both showed that 87 per cent of executives by their own account had good health habits, were happy in their work, got along well with their associates and were not under excessive tension.

However, the latter survey contained some danger signals. Worries concerning job satisfaction, for example, had risen from less than 7 per cent in 1958 to a whopping 40 per cent in 1971. There was evidence of a worsening of interpersonal relations at work and at home, increasing worry about making decisions and an increase in the use of alcohol. At the same time, 26 per cent fewer executives smoked cigarettes at the time of the latter survey.

IN DEALING with tension, Wheatley said, executives would do well to heed the advice of the late Dr. William C. Menninger of the Menninger Clinic in Topeka, Kan. He urged executives to have periodic emotional checkups, take time to evaluate their goals, particularly those concerning family relationships, schedule time for vacations and hobbies and learn to understand themselves better, particularly in regard to how they handle hostile feelings. Wheatley reminded executives of the need for a good listener whom they can respect, and trust.

He urged that executives remember Menninger's advice that they recognize their role as a symbolic parent in their business organizations and realize that their success as an executive and as a parent are related. In both roles they must be prepared to delegate responsibility, know when to act authoritatively, when to share decision-making, when to listen as well as to speak out.

As a final "tension-reliever," Wheatley suggested that executives hand out a pat on the back when it is deserved.

He emphasized the importance of regular medical checkups. Wheatley pointed out that diseases of the heart and blood vessels constitute the leading cause of death in the United States. He reminded executives that high blood pressure, high levels of certain fatty substances (including cholesterol) in the blood and cigarette smoking are leading "risk factors." Obesity, lack of exercise and too much emotional tension also affect the heart and circulation adversely.

Fuel pinch won't dirty air: EPA

by LEA TONKIN

How much is too much? The federal Environmental Protection Agency reports that clean-air standards "probably won't suffer too much in the Midwest" as a result of the energy pinch.

In Illinois, the EPA says it has received 27 energy-related requests for variances from pollution control regulations. Some of the requests are for extensions of existing variances. Seventeen are requests from downstate power companies.

The remaining requests, which ask for relief from particulate and sulphur removal timetables, came from tire, can and container corporations.

Energy related variance requests are reported as 15 or fewer in Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana and Ohio. Minnesota received no requests for variances.

Pollution controls must stay

Hands off the air pollution control devices on your new autos, warns the federal EPA. An attempt to remove the controls would be self-defeating from the standpoint of fuel economy and emission control, says Eric Stork, director of EPA's motor vehicle emissions laboratory in Ann Arbor, Mich.

Architects discuss future

How will architects meet the increasing challenges of urban planning, energy shortages and environmental problems? You can find out Feb. 28 at an all day seminar on Design and the Future — architectural problems in a context of change. The session is sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry. It will be held at the Pick-Congress Hotel, Chicago. The cost, including luncheon, is $35. For reservations information contact Al Thomas at 786-0111.

AEC probing power company

An investigation into the violation of reporting requirements by the Consumers Power Co. of Jackson, Mich., is being conducted by the Atomic Energy Commission. In 1972, the AEC cited Consumers Power for failure to maintain a seven-day hold-up of gaseous radioactive releases. Recently acquired correspondence from a Detroit investigative reporter indicates the information may have been withheld for several months the information it is required to report to the AEC.

Oil spill recovery system

A system using 30,000 pounds of high density polyethylene for buoyancy units to contain or recover an oil spill has been developed by Clean Seas Inc., a nonprofit organization in Santa Barbara, Calif. The system is intended to permit offshore drilling of oil without causing danger to the environment.

Gasoline: please wait in line...

The present gasoline crisis has produced a disturbing phenomenon which might be termed "cutting in line."

Last week the Herald reported that the owner of a gas station selling gas-by-appointment has received requests from certain groups of persons who want preferential gas service.

The specific group was 50 teachers at Cooper Junior High School in Buffalo Grove. Their principal called the owner of the station, in order to set up mass appointments for the teachers — on the grounds that teachers have had difficulties buying gas.

Other persons, too, have sought special gasoline-buying arrangements, and there's always been an excuse. Doctors claim they need it for driving to work. One woman said she needed the gas to get to the doctor every week.

But there are other persons, too, who should qualify for special privileges at the gas pump. The father of five children, the man who makes $10,000 a year at a local factory, should certainly have a first crack at the dwindling gas supply.

Likewise, so should the traveling salesman. Likewise, so should any person working an evening shift. Likewise, so should housewives who have children to drive to school every day.

Likewise, just about everyone thinks he or she deserves some kind of special priority at the gas pumps — and that's why we don't believe anyone should have special privileges — or the right to cut in line in front of his or her neighbors.

Gas-by-appointment isn't a bad idea, because the spirit of it is democratic. Anyone can make a phone call to make the appointment. Whether your need is urgent or less than immediate, you've got an opportunity to purchase gas in this manner.

But what annoys us is the mentality that, in the midst of a severe regional gasoline crisis, one person's gas needs are more important than another person's. If we are to determine whose needs are more vital, we invite governmental controls so vast and so expensive that chaos will be the only

It's no secret that Chicago and the eastern United States have been especially hard-hit by the present gasoline shortage.

In other Midwestern cities — indeed, in other parts of Illinois — gasoline is usually available. In St. Louis and Cleveland, for example, lines of motorists are the exception, rather than the rule, at gas pumps.

In the Chicago area, the wait is often long and frequently annoying. But the cause of the problem, we often feel, is buried deep within the mysteries known only to oil company magnates.

However, there's been good news recently about the present crisis. Last weekend, the Federal Energy Office announced that six million gallons will be shipped to Illinois to ease our end-of-the-month fuel crisis.

Also, U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., is holding hearings in Chicago this week to determine whether government policy changes are needed to avoid a re-result.

There are two obvious answers to the present crisis:

—The faster the additional gasoline allocation announced this weekend reaches Chicago, the faster this present crisis will be solved.

—Too many gasoline stations are open at the same time. As we've urged before, many local communities should exercise home rule powers to control the hours of gas stations. This would ease traffic congestion, if nothing else.

In other words, what we need is a solution at the source of the crisis. Favoritism — "cutting into line" — will only create friction. Today, in our current energy crisis, and we hope that fair break is the American way.

...as fuel probe starts

Adlai Stevenson III

petition of the January gas-squeeze in Chicago.

Stevenson plans to dig deeply into the complexities of the allocation system, and we think such an investigation is overdue.

In addition to a critical shortage of gasoline in the Chicago area, there's been an equally critical lack of straightforward information from the oil companies about the causes of the shortage.

Sen. Stevenson, who led earlier examinations of the fuel crisis, hopefully can get at some of the complexities which have led to the present shortage. Chicago deserves a fair break in the present crisis, and we hope that process will begin as soon as possible.

House opening meetings

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

Growing cynicism on the part of the public toward government may eventually bring about some salutary results in the conduct of the public business.

Since discovery of Paul Powell's shoebox hoards of cash, there has been growing pressure for public accounting of personal finances by candidates for public office, and it is now becoming the rule for candidates to try to outdo their opponents in the frankness of the financial accounting.

Illinois' Open Meetings Law has gone a long way toward preventing elected officials, from park board members to the state legislature, from shutting themselves behind closed doors to conduct the public business.

That same atmosphere is now beginning to seep into the committees of the U.S. Congress, where previously it was the rule that proposed legislation be drafted out of the sight and hearing of the public.

A survey by Common Cause, the self-styled "people's lobby" organization, showed that nearly 80 per cent of all "mark-up" sessions by House of Representatives committees and subcommittees were opened to the public in 1973 after the House adopted a new rule on closed meetings.

While Common Cause claims part of the credit for adoption of that rule, U.S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, gives much of the credit to freshman members of the House, most of whom committed themselves to open meetings as part of their 1972 campaigns.

Both are probably correct. Young pointed out that "the great majority of congressmen elected for the first time in 1972" supported adoption of the open meetings policy. Their commitment to that policy is a reflection of the closer attention being paid to "ethics" and "confidence in government" issues by candidates throughout the country. And Common Cause probably deserves a share of the credit to waking candidates to such issues.

Samuel Young

Under the rules adopted last March, committee meetings must be open to the public unless the session relates to issues involving national security. Without the issue of national security, the meetings may only be closed on a record vote of the committee membership. Since national security can only be invoked in limited matters, the onus is on the congressmen to demonstrate their interest in conducting congressional business above board.

Young said he voted against closed sessions of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee on each of the 13 occasions that the committee chose to close its doors. That committee conducted 30 open meetings, while its subcommittees held 55 open meetings and 19 closed sessions.

(U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, serves on one committee with one of the best records for open meetings, and one with the worst. In 1973, the Banking and Currency Committee conducted all 15 of its meetings in public, and subcommittees did the same. The House Administration Committee, of which Crane is also a member, conducted 18 meetings, all closed, and took no record votes to close the meetings.

(According to Common Cause, the Administration Committee claims it is exempt under a provision excluding meetings dealing with internal budget or personnel matters.)

There has been resistance to the open-meeting policy in some committees, notably two of the most powerful. The Appropriations Committee held only one public meeting, while voting to close 18 others. The Ways and Means Committee conducted 24 open meetings, while closing 40.

Nonetheless, the 80 per cent public meetings was in sharp contrast to the 44 per cent of the previous year, and continued pressure from the public can be expected to bring more improvement.

Open meetings could eventually even spread to the Senate, which continues to resist following the House example.

Speech editorial blasted

Although I may disagree with you from time to time, nevertheless I will defend with my life your right to express yourself. However, when I read a stupidly written editorial I feel it is also my right to bring such to your attention. I hope those who judge newspapers for excellence of editorials do not see the recent editorial "State of Union talk unrealistic." Sometimes it is better to leave unsaid views on subjects with which we are not familiar. Your subject editorial was an excellent example indicating lack of understanding as well as a clear expression on your part of sour grapes.

If you would have listened thoroughly to the entire text of the President's speech, and not only to what you wanted to hear, you would have noted that the President was appealing for everyone's cooperation. The President was especially asking Congress to move off dead center and start doing the job they were elected to do.

This country, as the President indicated, is not in an economic recession. We are in a period of greed, or "I got mine, how did you make out." The energy crisis in part has been brought on by union greed, consumer greed, corporate greed, and a lack of cooperation on the part of us, the people. Or, how about focusing your attention on those who

strike for unrealistic demands, those who can tie up industry, cause many thousands to be out of work — they are the cause of the high cost of living, not the President.

Every man or woman in high position is fair game for adverse criticism. We elect a village president, then we gripe about how he runs his office. We elect a state governor and gripe about the way he operates his office. We elect a club president then criticize his ability. In fact, under today's technology, we have it so good that we must find someone, or something to gripe about — so why not the President.

In order to editorialize, you must introduce opinion into the reporting of facts. There is no doubt in my mind but that recently you have gone off half-cocked.

Pension plan hit

I am writing to voice my strong objection to the provisions of the proposed pension legislation in Committee Print Number Two as drafted by the staff of the House Ways and Means Committee of the U.S. House of Representatives, and I appeal to you to have your reporting staff look into this matter and use your editorial muscle as you see fit.

It is my understanding, after attempting to decipher the myriad complexities of this draft, that the net result to my family and me would be a substantial reduction and/or loss of pension and profit sharing benefits from my employer's current plans. I work for a large bank, and thousands of my co-workers would be similarly affected. Quite conceivably, millions of Americans could be involved adversely in this matter.

Periodically during 1973, the newspapers carried accounts of proposed federal legislation to regulate private pension plans. The main theme then was to establish a vesting program to protect employees' pension rights. This was a noble endeavor to avoid situations such as the Studebaker Corporation fiasco. In fact, the Senate unanimously passed their version of such protection. How Committee Print Number Two evolved from all of this, I cannot understand.

I urge you to have your staff study this proposal honestly and carefully to determine what impact it will have on all workers who happen to participate in many different types of pension and profit sharing plans. This proposal may well penalize many Americans without realizing it, if hasty legislation is enacted.

New home, apartment construction shows 25% dip in metropolitan area: survey

Are new single-family homes a thing of the past?

New single-family home construction in the suburbs may be well on its way to becoming an item for the history books if a recent survey by Bell Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of Chicago is to be believed.

The survey reported a 25 per cent decline in new-home and apartment starts for the Chicago metropolitan area during 1973. But it also held out hope for a pick-up in new housing for the second half of 1974.

Schaumburg led the entire metropolitan area in the number of new single-family home and apartment permits. Yet a drop of more than 200 units is represented in the single-family starts for the community, totaling 1,210 for 1973.

Single-family permits declined in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg. Increases were reported in Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Wheeling.

NORTHWEST suburban apartment activity reflected the 30 per cent decline in apartment permits for the entire metropolitan area during 1973. For these communities where 50 or more apartment permits were reported for 1973, compare the reports for 1972: Arlington Heights, 234 in 1973 and 286 in 1972; Des Plaines, 231 and 297; Elk Grove Village, 334 and 818; Mount Prospect, 481 and 75; Rolling Meadows, 104 and 16; Schaumburg, 1,154 and 1,300; and Wheeling, 704 and 1,018.

The dominance of the Chicago housing market by apartment construction during the 1960s and the early 1970s is fading, Roland Barstow, president of Bell Federal Savings and Loan Assn., notes. He predicts more intensive land use and a continued trend toward multi-use developments. He expects a boost in new housing starts by mid-to-late spring.

ADDITIONAL area housing indicators:

• Buell Dutton, Mount Prospect building inspector, reports "a bit of a slow-down" in applications for new housing permits. He says the developer of the new Crystal Towers project paid $15,000 more for steel foundations and footings for the second building, compared to the first building.

• Jay Moore, general manager for the Arlington Heights regional office of Pulte Homes Inc., says buyer reluctance accounts for an inventory of new homes at Barrington and Roselle projects. Sales are down 50 per cent for 1974, compared to 1973 sales. "The biggest factor is, what is going to be the public response to higher prices for homes after June," he says.

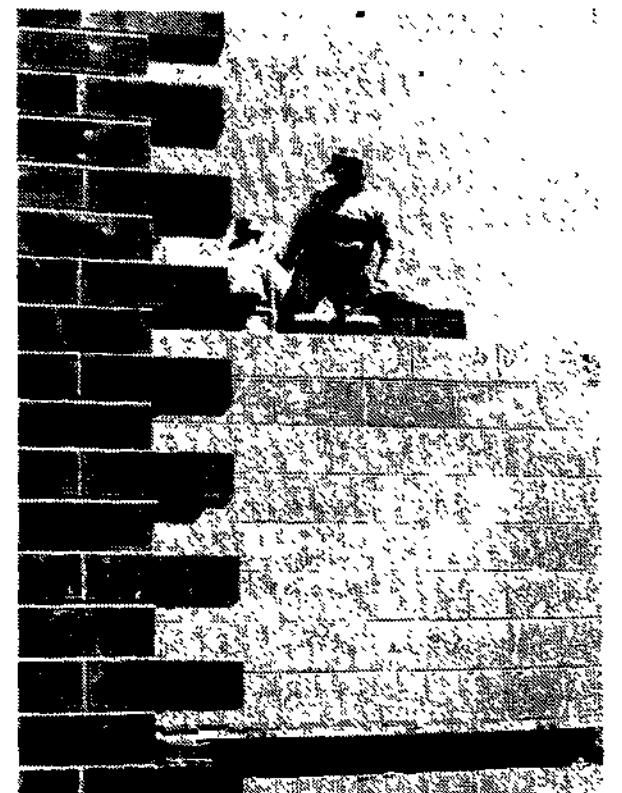

• Jack Clark, vice president of the mortgage department for Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Assn., Arlington Heights, says savings accounts are improving, and should look better by spring. Available mortgage money is loaned at the rate of 7.9 or 7.8 per cent, plus a 3 per cent service charge. Clark reports a heavy pent-up loan demand. He predicts a switch from a buyer's to a seller's market by early summer, for existing (used) homes.

• Commitments to new housing construction projects are down by as much as 50 per cent compared to 1973 activity, reports Robert Widdicombe Jr., of the Home Builders Assn. of Greater Chicago. He hopes government housing policies will loosen up the market in late 1974. Widdicombe expects a 10 to 15 per cent jump in new housing costs this year, and a tightening in the apartment market.

• Housing slumps generally bring a boost in home remodeling and fixups, says Gerard Coch of the Edward Hines Lumber Co., Park Ridge, but "sales aren't anything to jump up and down about." He reports a sharp decline in construction lumber and material sales to builders, and hopes the market will change by springtime.

• Illinois is becoming an "infertile housing island" without adequate housing funds, laments the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber this week joined the ranks of housing industry leaders, calling for the elimination of Illinois' 8 per cent usury ceiling. Construction costs will rise 8 to 12 per cent this year, says the group. Citing the 9 1/4 per cent charge to savings institutions by the Federal Home Loan Bank, the Chamber says, "The result is that mortgage money will continue to dry up, with new construction being delayed or deferred indefinitely."

Learn your body's limitations at the Chicago Stadium

by BARRY SIGALE

It's very seldom that someone actually is able to hear his heart pounding.

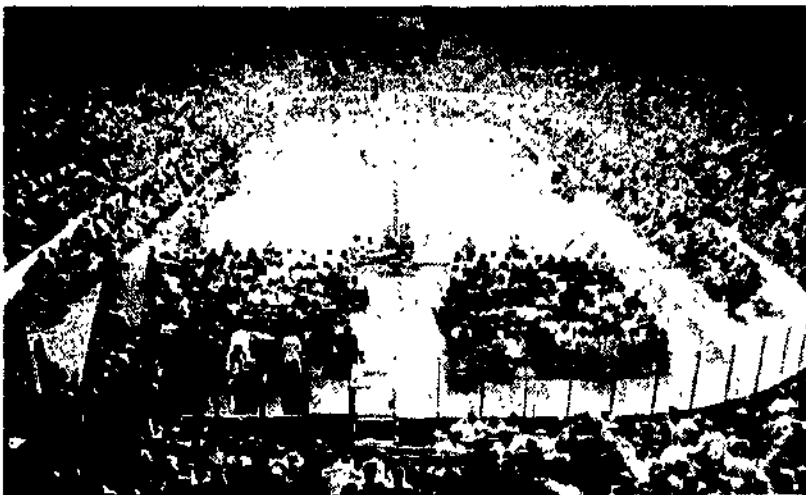

Thump! Thump! Thump-Thump!
Ouch! Ouch! Ouch! Ouch!
Or his ears explode.
Pop! Pop! Pop! Pop!

Try marching to the top of the Chicago Stadium, to the second balcony, and listen to your body speak. Or, more likely, shriek.

The trek, which seems straight up, has been made more pleasant these days because of the successes of the two main sports occupants of the Arthur Wirtz-owned arena. The Black Hawks and Bulls are providing great entertainment while winning at the same time.

THERE'S GREAT anticipation, especially by youngsters, of getting to the Stadium, finding a place to sit and then standing through most of the game with the excitement and thrill of professional hockey and basketball action.

But getting there, to the second balcony, definitely is not half the fun. It is a challenge, a struggle almost as titanic as the one taking place on the ice or on the floor. That's why, maybe, fans don't mind the flight up.

Besides the heart thumping, the feet aching, the ears exploding, the legs cramping and the breath shortening, there's the knot in the stomach muscles, the squeaking of the joints and the sweating of the pits.

After the game, there is the exhilarating feeling of going down the up-staircase at twice as fast a pace as the original trip. And when you're a Black Hawks fan who has just seen your favorites lose to Boston or Montreal, or a Bulls fan who has witnessed Kareem Abdul-Jabbar singlehandedly wipe out the hometown darlings, the express down can't ever be fast enough.

There's a trick to climbing what seems to be about 15 flights of stairs to the top level. Wait until the greatest number of fans arrive at the Stadium. Then, pick out a group of about 10 or 15 people who are heading for the first set of stairs. Fall in the middle of them. You'll practically be whisked up with them, almost through the air, until you're safely deposited near your seat a few minutes later.

Since most second-balcony clientele pays for the less-expensive seats than those fans sitting in boxes — the mezzanine or first balcony — it is assumed that those fans rank a little lower in the social strata. The either don't have the same kind of money or have too big a family to buy them all better seats.

IT ALSO IS assumed that these kinds of fans are physically more fit than their counterparts sitting in the lower areas of the stadium. With that in mind, it would seem they would be well-prepared for the grueling trip to the top.

The first four or five set of stairs are fairly easy to conquer, though the younger fans who are more boisterous may take them at a swifter pace, thinking it

Girl Scout cookie time here again

It's that time of year again. Some 17,500 Northwest suburban Girl Scouts will take to the streets Feb. 22 in the annual cookie sale.

The Girl Scout Council of Northwest Cook County has set a goal of 50 boxes per girl, or a total of $75,000 sales.

Orders will be taken from Feb. 22 to March 3, and cookies will be delivered from March 21 to April 1.

Available this year are butter-flavored vanilla, assorted sandwich, peanut butter round-ups, cookie mints and fudge patties, made by Salerno-McGowan Biscuit Co. The cookies are $1 a box, payable on receipt, of which about 47 cents goes to the Girl Scout council and 10 cents to the local troop.

Elk Grove's Brent Bolin is aiming at more glory in Friday's league meet. He won the butterfly as a freshman in 1973.

Possible record-setting meet

Swimming Editor

A little or a lot of history may be made at Olympic Pool in Arlington Heights Friday night.

During the fifth annual Mid-Suburban League swimming and diving championships, some if not all individual records might be surpassed.

At the end of the conference meet, Arlington is expected by many to become only the second team ever to win three championships. A varsity team victory by the Cardinals of Coach Don Andersen would equal Forest View's two outright titles in 1970 and '72. Both teams tied for the top spot in '71.

Repeating as outright MSL champion won't be easy. Not even Forest View accomplished that feat.

"I think that's right," said Andersen of the challenge facing his team, a loser only once this year in dual meet action (to St. Viator) in 12 tries. "There are a lot of good swimmers in the conference."

Andersen discussed Arlington's lack of depth in the top six places compared to what appears to be a slight advantage to Elk Grove. However, when asked whether he'd like to trade teams with anybody, he quickly added, "No way!"

The Cardinals had a surprisingly easy time of it against Elk Grove last week in the conference's dual meet showdown, winning 109-65.

"Their depth was too much, really," said Grenadier coach Pete Weber. Still, with Elk Grove's talented individuals, it was expected to be a close contest, the absence of Steve Banach ("He's about our No. 3 swimmer") hurt. "It would probably make for a tighter meet."

"Hopefully, (the conference) will be a little bit tighter," continued Weber. "Hopefully, we'll give them a little more of a run for their money."

Weber wasn't sure where super swimmer Scott Bolin would be competing, or anyone else for that matter. "After today we'll see who's healthy and who's not and make our decisions from there."

Health has been a worry for Andersen, too. He saw a normally super turned sickly St. Viator team go from heavily favored to also-ran last weekend in the Suburban Catholic Conference meet. Arlington hasn't had a major outbreak of flu yet. Many of the coaches think that only this or several disqualifications stand in the Cardinals' way of a second straight title.

MSL swimming highlights

Diving slam leads to Cardinal romp

Just as it did last year, Arlington's swim team will be the heavy favorite to repeat as the Mid-Suburban League champion Friday.

Coach Don Andersen's Cardinals broke open a close meet after diving and easily outdistanced Elk Grove, 109-65, last week. This gave the hosting Cards a perfect 7-0 record and dropped the Grenadiers to 6-1.

In other action, Hersey finished in third (5-2) with its 117-38 victory over Buffalo Grove (0-7). Rolling Meadows took fourth by handily wheeling (3-4) 90-81 and Prospect (2-5) edged Forest View (1-6) 84-82.

Last weekend also marked the end of the overall dual meet schedule for MSL teams. Three teams finished with their best records ever — Arlington at 11-1, Hersey at 11-3 and Rolling Meadows at 9-5. Elk Grove tied last year's all-time high win mark with a 10-3 record.

Here are the highlights from last week's action:

ARLINGTON 109, ELK GROVE 65
"The diving slam turned the meet in our favor," said Andersen of his team's crucial victory over the Grove. In on the 1-2-3 finish were Jeff Munk (185.25), Leading the Grenadiers is the MSL's most versatile performer — Scott Bolin. This talented young man holds two conference records — the breaststroke (1:04.9) and individual medley (2:04.9) — which he could break if he swims them.

Arlington's Charlie Dunn, Bolin's long time rival, also has a shot at the 100 mark. However, he'll probably have to beat Bolin to do it — a feat he has never performed.

Dunn will be swimming in his fourth varsity meet, having won three backstroke titles. Both he and Bolin could break Dunn's mark (57.5), if either goes in that event.

The leaders of the league's two top teams also have shots at the butterfly record (57.0). Both their coaches would love to be able to swim these two in more than the required two individual events.

Hersey's presently in third place, hoping somehow to overtake Elk Grove. Head coach Herb Parsons' team is strongest in diving. Jeff Speakman is the classiest boardman in the league. He'll be aiming at the oldest record going — Jeff Theiman of Arlington's 442.75 in the '71 meet.

The Huskies are also strong in the sprints with Bob Larue, the distances with Chris Tague and the 400 freestyle relay.

SPOTLIGHT ON SWIMMING

Speaking of relays, both Elk Grove and Arlington will be shooting for the free relay mark (3:31.0). Each team has been below it already.

Arlington also has a shot at the medley relay mark (1:45.5), but will need some stiff competition to bring the best time.

Two other top swimmers for the league's powerhouse teams are Arlington's Joe Nitch and Elk Grove's Brent Bolin. Nitch, a junior, has shown to be the class of the league in 200 and 500 freestyles. He held the record in the 400 free as a sophomore, and he's expected to set the 500 mark because he's 7 1/2 seconds faster than everyone.

Nitch could threaten the mark in the 200 free (1:50.5).

Bolin became only the second freshman to win a conference title (the first was Dunn). He took the butterfly last year. Just like brother Scott, Brent could show up in just about any event and do well this Friday.

There figures to be some stiff competition by teams for places in the final standings. Rolling Meadows, right behind Hersey, has kept its top underclassmen with the varsity in hopes of bettering its fourth-place position.

The Mustangs of Coach Phil Pardon have a good medley relay team, a talented diver in Jeff Slack and a steady breaststroker in Ken Stahnke.

Wheeling, presently in fifth place, has set its sites on dethroning Arlington on the sophomore level. Coach Doug Corner has his talented underclassmen down for the varsity meet to end the Cardinals' stranglehold on this level — four straight titles.

Expected to score the heaviest for the Wildcats will be senior stars Paul Lindquist in the 50 and 100 and Bill Modica in the distance events.

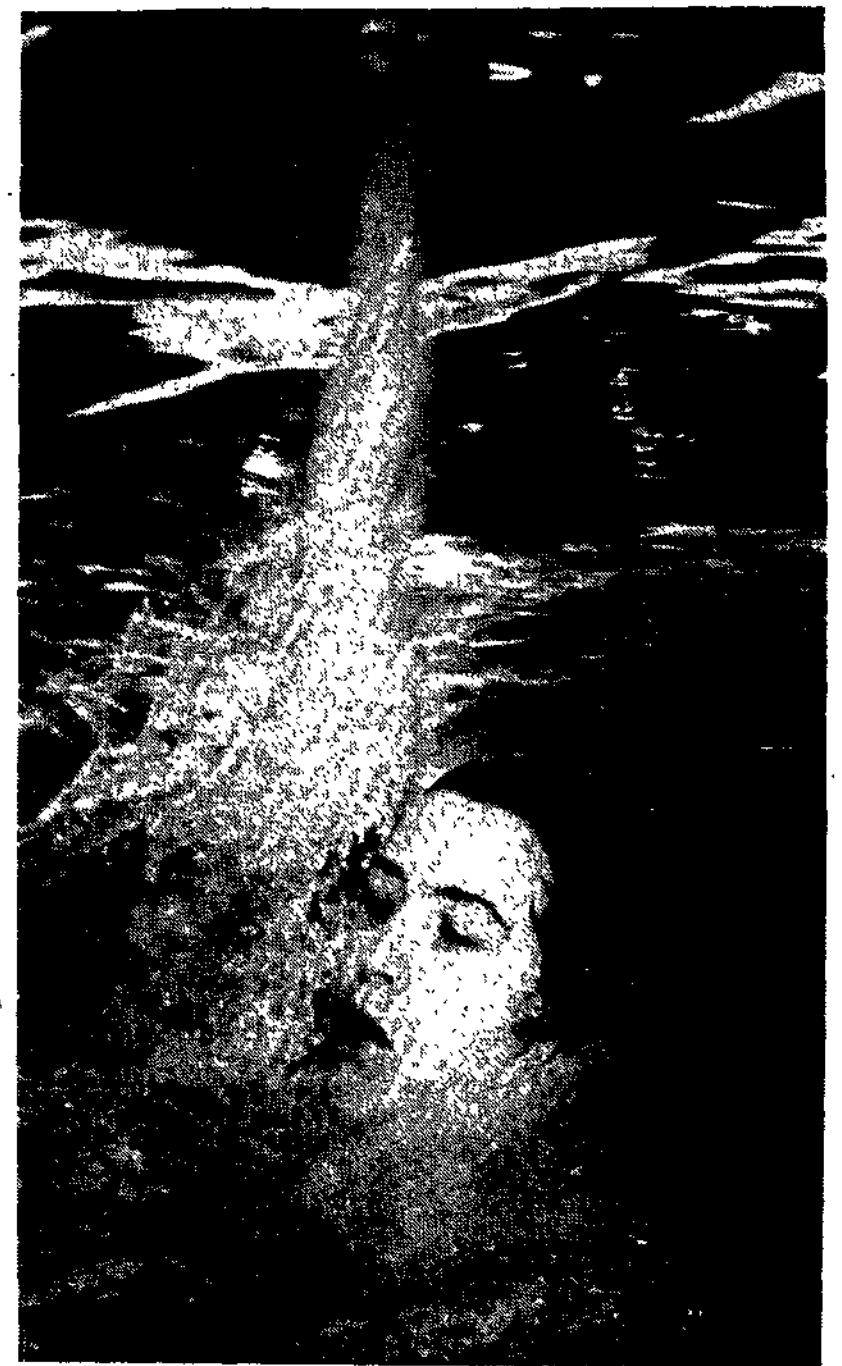

Prospect and Forest View will be hoping to catch or pass Wheeling. The Knights will be led by Chris Prinslow, a fine backstroker. Doug Schlak and Kevin Redig should be the big scorers for the Falcons.

Schlak is intent on removing Prospect state champion Rick Fox from the record book. Fox, who won the 50 free last March, may be bumped in the 100 free for Schlak has gone 5/10ths of a second faster. Fox' 22.4 in the 50 might be a little tougher to erase.

Redig excels in the 200 and 500 freestyle.

Buffalo Grove, winless in the dual meet phase of the season, will be hoping to gain some experience from this meet.

4 bumped from state list; rare brother act added

And then there were 18.

Four area swimmers were bumped off the by-monthly state honor roll, but one new one was added.

Elk Grove's Brent Bolin, a sophomore, landed a spot on this prestigious list after going 58.0 in the 100-yard backstroke. Older brother Scott occupies three categories, including the backstroke.

As has been the case from the start, St. Viator's Ed Fitzsimons continues to lead the state 50-yard freestyle category. Here's how each event looks to area competitors:

Medley Relay — Hinsdale Central in first (1:39.0) with no one from the area in the top 12.

200 Freestyle — New Trier, West's Andy Veris in first (1:46.0) with St. Viator's Rick Yasky in seventh (1:49.7).

200 Individual Medley — Peoria Richwood's Jim Bucher in first (2:01.9) with Arlington's Charlie Dunn in sixth (2:05.3) and Elk Grove's S. Bolin in seventh (2:05.7).

50 Freestyle — Fitzsimons in first (22.3) with Wheeling's Paul Lindquist tied with four others in 12th (22.9).

100 Butterfly — Hinsdale Central's Greg Higgins in first (53.1) with Arlington's Scott Bolin in sixth (57.3) and Elk Grove's S. Bolin in seventh (57.6).

100 Freestyle — New Trier West's Veris in first (48.5) with St. Viator's Fitzsimons in a tie for third (49.1) and Forest View's Doug Schlak in a three-way tie for fifth (49.2).

500 Freestyle — New Trier's Veris in first (4:47.1) with Arlington's Joe Nitch in fifth (4:58.6) and St. Viator's Rick Yasky in 10th (5:00.5).

100 Backstroke — Lyons' Mark Wintercorn in first (54.3) with Elk Grove's S. Bolin in seventh (57.3), Arlington's Dunn in eighth (57.5) and Elk Grove's B. Bolin in 10th (58.0).

100 Breaststroke — New Trier East's Ted Ahlem in a tie for first with Hinsdale Central's Mike Capek (1:02.2) with St. Viator's Kevin Szarabajka in fifth (1:04.4), Elk Grove's S. Bolin in eighth (1:05.2) and Maine North's Don Polz in 10th (1:05.6).

400 Freestyle Relay — Hinsdale Central in first (3:20.9) with St. Viator in fourth (3:24.5).

The next state honor roll will contain the top 12 from district competition.

2 young Lions star

Although St. Viator lost its first sophomore conference meet ever, 274 to 273 to Marmion Saturday, the young Lions did notch six first-place finishes.

Sophomore Dave Scanlan and freshman Jack Cord won two events each. Scanlan captured the 200 (2:03.1) and 500 (5:36.4) freestyles with Cord in the 50 (25.2) and 100 (55.7) freestyles.

Bill Carley took the backstroke (1:05.9) with the medley relay also coming out on top (1:58.1).

AN UP AND COMING Rolling Meadows freshman — has been a top performer for the Mustangs in this their winningest dual meet season yet — 9-5.

Diving streak continues; Erickson sets school mark

The question is not whether Andy Veris can win a state swimming title, but rather how many and in which events.

Veris, New Trier West's outstanding poolman, is top state ranked in the 100, 200 and 500 freestyles. Plus, he's second in the 200 individual medley, fifth in 50 freestyle and 10th in 100 butterfly.

Last weekend, Veris swam two individual events and one relay for New Trier against Maine East. Predictably, he won the 200 freestyle (1:46.2) - and 100 freestyle (49.0). And Veris anchored the Cowboys' winning 400 freestyle relay (3:24.2) in which New Trier ranks third state-wide.

New Trier won the meet, 100-69. In other Central Suburban meets, Niles North beat Maine West, 121-41, and Glenbrook North beat Maine North 138-38.

Maine East earned just three first places against New Trier, including a win in the 200 medley relay (1:50.2). Swimmers were Wayne Westman, Greg Erickson, Lloyd Esses and Carl Anderson.

Chris Dickson's winning 220.65 in diving kept East unbeaten in dual meets at that event over a two-year period. Erickson won the 100 breaststroke in 1:06.5, the fastest time ever by a Maine East swimmer.

Five seconds for the Demons included two by Westman, in the 200 individual medley (2:15.3) and 100 backstroke (1:01.7). Anderson was runner-up in 50 freestyle (24.5), Scott Strauss in 100 butterfly (59.9) and Tom Drozd in 100 breaststroke (1:12.4).

Maine East's sophomores defeated New Trier, 88-61, moving their season dual meet record to 13-1.

Maine West managed no firsts and only two seconds during its dual with Niles North. Bill Samp was runner-up in 100 butterfly (1:04.9) and George Erickson in 500 freestyle (3:35.2).

Transfers Jeff and Paul Rusk, who came from Maine North, figured in four first places for Niles North. Jeff was part of the winning 200 medley relay unit (1:51.9) and won the 100 breaststroke (1:06.6). Paul swam on the winning 400 freestyle relay (3:32.9) and won the 200 freestyle (1:56.0).

Their old teammates, Maine North's Norsemen, fared not nearly as well against Glenbrook North. Maine had just two winners including Don Polz in the 100 breaststroke (1:05.9).

Polz, Dan Larson, John Monaghan and Michalow won for Maine in the 200 medley relay (1:51.9).

FLYIN' LIKE HIS BROTHER is Dan Mate of Rolling Meadows. This Mustang sophomore, competing in the same event as his older brother John did for Forest View, won the butterfly to help defeat Wheeling.

ONE OF THE BIG point producers for Buffalo Grove's swim team this year is Dan Spaulding. The Bison have had to struggle in their first year of varsity competition, winning only one dual meet.

Loss of Heldt hurts Hawk quintet in 80-67 reversal

by DON FRISKE

In an attempt to go over the .500 mark in the Skyway Conference, the Harper Hawk basketball machine lost one of its main gears in the early part of their game against Waubesa Tuesday night.

Along with the loss of one of their top scorers, they lost the game, 80-67, to give them a 6-7 conference record and a 12-15 overall mark.

About three minutes into the game, one of Harper's leading scorers, Steve Heldt, suffered a sprained ankle and had to sit out the rest of the game. Scoring close to 20 points a game lately, Heldt hit only one free throw the entire game.

With a team of only nine players, the loss hurt the Hawks considerably, but it wasn't the main reason the Hawks lost the game.

"That was only a factor," explained Roger Bechtold, Hawk coach. "The key to the game was their tough, aggressive defense. They had their hands up, covering our shots, all night."

Waubesa controlled the first half as they led at halftime, 44-36.

"They shot extremely well, forcing us to go into a man-to-man defense," said Bechtold. "They've got good ball handlers, so they went to work on our man-to-man."

The Hawks beat the conference leaders last time the two teams met, 66-59, holding their leading scorer, Leo Grimes, to just 16 points. Grimes has been averaging around 25 points a game.

This time, Grimes kept his pace by scoring a game-high 27 points.

Harper 36 31-67

"He really came alive when we switched defenses," said Bechtold.

One bright spot for the Hawk coach was the play of Mike Milner. Milner led all Hawk scorers with 25 tallies.

"Mike played a good, aggressive game for us," added Bechtold.

Steve Schmidt was the only other Harper player to finish the game in double figures, scoring 18 points.

Three players other than Grimes scored in double figures for Waubesa. Bob Hall scored 18, Sherman House had 15, and Robin Rader had 10.

The Hawks beat Waubesa on the boards, 41-30, but also committed eight more turnovers, 22-14.

With one Skyway game left on the Hawks' schedule against Oskosh at home this Saturday night, Bechtold hopes that his team will finish even for the season.

"The key will be whether or not Heldt recovers in time for the game," commented Bechtold. "We rely on Steve offensively, so if he doesn't make it we'll have to do a good job defensively."

Conant socks Harvard in 98-43 romp

by ART MUGALIAN

Three teams played basketball at Conant Tuesday night.

The final score in Cougarland was Conant "A" team 98, Conant "B" team 44, Harvard Hornets 43.

The Cougars were double winners. They won and they had enough left over to win again.

Any way it's taken, Dick Redlinger's "quintet" evened the nonconference series with Harvard at three wins apiece with a devastating 98-43 victory over Jerry Engle's small Hornets, now 9-13.

Redlinger's second stringers saw plenty of action, and they didn't hurt the cause of good basketball, either.

Conant rushed out to a 19-3 lead in the first five minutes of play, they built a 28-8 first quarter margin, and they coasted the rest of the way in low gear.

Six-foot-8 center Steve Irion welcomed the visiting Hornets with nine points in the first eight minutes, and Cougars Roger Sander and Dave Sutherland each added eight tallies in the initial period.

But Conant's three top scorers didn't play in the second period as the substitutes continued the barrage until the half ended with the Cougars ahead, 51-25. Gary Oslance led Conant with eight points in the second quarter.

The timetable was the same in the second half, with stars and subs playing equally. Redlinger did a commendable job keeping the score under 100, even ordering his boys to hold the ball late in the contest.

After the game, Redlinger talked about his Cougars, now 16-3. "Our kids feel relaxed when they have a big lead. But when the game is close, they feel safer holding onto the ball. They tense up and make mistakes. The key to this club is to get them to relax, take the tension off, and go with the ball."

The Cougars hit 58 per cent from the floor, owing largely to good shot selection. Most of their 44 field goals came from right under the basket or within 12 feet.

Kenny Tillotson of Harvard led all players with 17 points. The 6-3 forward hit six times from the field.

Conant's scorers were: Sutherland with 16; Irion, 15; Oslance, 14; Sander, 13; Dave Harshbarger, 10; Wally Butman, 8; Jeff Ironside, 7; Ron Sulaski, 6; Tom Bowen, Lindsay Rose, and John Milke, three each.

Elk Grove hockey highlights

The Elk Grove Amateur Hockey Association had a successful week, winning all three games they played. In a Woodfield League game, Elk Grove defeated Hoffman Estates 3-1. In a non-league game Elk Grove defeated Streamwood 6-2, and in the Illinois State Tournament game Elk Grove defeated Naperville 1-0.

Against Hoffman Estates, Elk Grove could not score despite having 32 shots on net in the first two periods. Going into the third period and trailing 1-0, Mike Walsh scored the tying goal, assisted by Joe Danca and Mark Rodseth. Bob Bruhn scored the winning goal, assisted by John Campbell and Len Jeroci. Fred Musnicki scored the insurance goal, assisted by Joe Danca and Rodseth.

Against Streamwood, "Moose" Rodseth led the way with a three goal, three assist performance. The first goal, assisted by Bob Bruhn and Mike Tucker; Bob Bruhn scored an unassisted goal; Joe Danca scored the third, assisted by Len Jeroci. Mike Walsh scored the fourth goal, assisted by Joe Danca and Rodseth. Rodseth scored the fifth goal assisted by Joe Danca and Walsh, and Rodseth scored the sixth goal, assisted by Bob Bruhn and Joe Danca.

Against Naperville in the first game of the Illinois State Tournament, despite being hit by the flu bug, Elk Grove played a strong game. Faced by John Campbell's five assists and Mark Rodseth's four goals and two assists, goalie Steve Cimino registered another shut-out.

Other scorers for Elk Grove were Mike Walsh, one goal and one assist; Joe Danca, one goal and one assist; Bob Laminia, one goal; Mark Gustafson, one goal, two assists; Bob Eckert, one goal; and Fred Musnicki with one goal and one assist. Next game at Woodfield Hockey Center is Thursday, Feb. 21 with Palatine.

West won three of the remaining five matches. Mike Tramel, at 112 pounds had a 4:24 pin over Niles' Bob Frame. Maine's Louis DePasquale decisively won Brin, 5-0, at 119 pounds and Pat Solerson beat Jay Goldsmith, 5-4, at 167. Phil Lambrechts (128) and Brad Bonniwell (132) lost decisions to Niles North. Double defeats to Hinsdale Central, 34-18, and New Trier West left Maine East with a disappointing 6-13-1 season record. The only saving grace was heavyweight Ron Grant who won twice.

Grant was a 2-1 winner over Hinsdale's Will Faville and stuck New Trier West's Bob Koshgarian in 2:28. He's coming on strong with a 10-1-1 record after early season injuries.

But not-so-heat was 105-pounder Kurt Schmidt getting pinned in only 45 seconds by New Trier's Tom Knorr. His season record moved to 17-5 including a 12-3 win over Hinsdale's Mike Kora.

Losses by Schmidt and Board, plus Don Isaacson getting stuck in 1:30 by Les Shimanek at 138 pounds, cost the Demons 15 points and a chance to beat New Trier.

East picked up 21 points during the final four matches after trailing, 33-3, against the Cowboys. The resurgence began with Mike Semmerling pinning Ernest Bakakos in 1:36 at 155 pounds. Then, Maine's Ed Dembski won a 9-4 decision over Paul Booth.

In the last two weight classes, Andy Gross pinned New Trier's Gregg Lippincott in 4:50 and heavyweight Grant stuck Koshgarian in 2:28. But it wasn't enough.

East's other points were from a 9-1 win by Jay Check over New Trier's Ken Levy at 119 pounds.

Other winners against Hinsdale were 126-pounder Mike Karlins with a 4-2 decision over Scott Sykora and Semmerling, 8-6 over Rich Johnson.

Schumacher's decisive victory gave Maine North its only points on Saturday against Glenbrook North. "They're by

Harper's hockey Hawks win two more; now 7-1

The Harper Hawks are learning that, on the hockey rink at least, the early bird catches all the action.

Steve Bird is just another Hawk to everybody else on the ice, but the Harper forward rammed home the opening goal in each of his team's last two victories, Friday, 9-2 over Madison Tech, and Sunday, 7-5, at the University of Wisconsin at Parkside.

The Hawks improved their record to 7-1 this season with a weekend scoring barrage in which eight different players notched goals.

In Friday's game at the Rolling Meadows Ice Arena, the Hawks jumped out to a 4-0 first period lead on two goals by Bird and one each by Kevin Bowers and Dennis Soboj. Paul Buck and Tom Langner each netted a pair of goals later in the game, and Tom Kneet added a marker, while two goals by Madison's Mike Baylor were all the losers could manage against Harper goalie Mark Caslin.

At Parkside, the Hawks again took a commanding 4-0 advantage in the first period. After Bird's initial score, Buck blasted a pair of goals within a four-minute span, and Soboj also tallied. Parkside countered with three early second-period markers, but a pair of goals by Harper's Dave Connelly and Kevin Lio gave the Hawks some breathing room. Langer closed out the scoring for Harper with an unassisted goal. The winning goalie, Carl Delia, stopped 16 shots.

After eight games, Buck leads Harper in scoring with 13 goals and five assists for 18 points. Connelly, with 10 goals and six assists, is second, and Bird ranks third with 10 scores and four assists.

The Hawks play their next game Saturday afternoon against Triton. Game time is 4:30 at Rolling Meadows.

Forfeits aid West in mat triumph

by MIKE KLEIN

Either Mickey Rossetti of New Trier West is overpowering or Paul Board's hopes for a successful state wrestling tourney are ill conceived. That much became certain last weekend.

Enroute to a 10-3-1 record last season at 105 pounds, Maine East's Board tied and beat Rossetti in their two matches. Rossetti went downstate) Board got sick and passed up districts.

East coach George Jurinek was optimistic about Board's state level chances this season. But bothered by viruses, his record is only 11-6.

And last Saturday, he was totally dominated, 15-3, by Rossetti as New Trier beat Maine East, 32-24. To Board's credit, he had a 5:50 pin Friday night over Hinsdale Central's Scott Couper, east lost again, 34-13.

In other Central Suburban matches, Maine North's Mike Schumacher won twice at 167 pounds, hiking his record to 21-2. On Friday, he beat Deerfield's Dave Getz, 1-0. The following afternoon, Schumacher decisively defeated Glenbrook North's John DuGene, 8-2.

North lost both meets, to Deerfield 32-20, and to Glenbrook North, 48-3. But re-injury to regular 167-pounder Bob Kelley's right shoulder might prove out as the biggest loss.

Schumacher and Kelley were each up one weight class because Phil Dyer, regular 185-pounder, got sick and couldn't compete. On Friday, Kelley pinned Deerfield's Pat McIntyre in 5:50.

Saturday afternoon, Kelley was losing, 2-4, in the second period when the shoulder gave way. The default to Glenbrook North's Terry Flannery left Kelley with a 16-3 season record.

In other CSL action, Maine West picked up 42 forfeit points and stomped Niles North, 54-6. The Warriors improved their season record to 11-4, including an upset two weekends ago of previously unbeaten Maine South.

Rob Krusinski (98), Bryan Real (105), Tom Mietus (138), Paul Berner (145), Ralph Rolape (155), Kevin Wilkens (185) and heavyweight Stan Cordis received forfeit points for Maine.

West won three of the remaining five matches. Mike Tramel, at 112 pounds had a 4:24 pin over Niles' Bob Frame. Maine's Louis DePasquale decisively won Brin, 5-0, at 119 pounds and Pat Solerson beat Jay Goldsmith, 5-4, at 167.

Phil Lambrechts (128) and Brad Bonniwell (132) lost decisions to Niles North.

Double defeats to Hinsdale Central, 34-18, and New Trier West left Maine East with a disappointing 6-13-1 season record.

The only saving grace was heavyweight Ron Grant who won twice.

Grant was a 2-1 winner over Hinsdale's Will Faville and stuck New Trier West's Bob Koshgarian in 2:28. He's coming on strong with a 10-1-1 record after early season injuries.

But not-so-heat was 105-pounder Kurt Schmidt getting pinned in only 45 seconds by New Trier's Tom Knorr. His season record moved to 17-5 including a 12-3 win over Hinsdale's Mike Kora.

Losses by Schmidt and Board, plus Don Isaacson getting stuck in 1:30 by Les Shimanek at 138 pounds, cost the Demons 15 points and a chance to beat New Trier.

East picked up 21 points during the final four matches after trailing, 33-3, against the Cowboys. The resurgence began with Mike Semmerling pinning Ernest Bakakos in 1:36 at 155 pounds. Then, Maine's Ed Dembski won a 9-4 decision over Paul Booth.

'Thank God for good things'

'Gloom, doom' news hit

I want you to know that I can usually pick up the Arlington Heights Herald and not have a cold shudder pass through my body. Other papers make me shudder. I am so tired of "gloom and doom" news on front pages of newspapers. It seems to me that good news is as print-worthy as "gloom and doom." All people would like a little good news every day!

An article was printed in one of the well known papers, about the plight of Elkhart County, Indiana. I sent the article to a knowledgeable person from that county. They said, and I quote . . . "Our newspapers are not making the picture look as black as the articles you sent." Can I believe all I read?

From memory comes the words of

letters to the editor

Franklin D. Roosevelt, "We have nothing to fear except fear itself." Planting seeds of fear and distrust breeds a man of panic, we all saw this at the gas station last week. Who needs an outside force to destroy this great country? We have our own force, the printed and spoken word.

The newspapers are the sum total of many people's reading habits, so it is truly a grave and soul shaking responsibility of the "man in charge," of the printed word, as to what he prints. TV is watched by millions every day and "scare viewing" makes me ill. Some day man will be held accountable for all of this.

Let us look up and thank God for the good things we all have. Let us hear words of positive thinking from Norman V. Peale. This great country can rise to any occasion! Let us not destroy it with "gloom and doom." If hope is always of God and faith is always right; then fear and despair are all wrong and breed hopelessness. Let us never be responsible for an attitude of hopelessness in anyone!

'Who is leading us?'

To date, a person owning a mobile home must either sell it through the dealer/park operator, or pay and pay for ads in newspapers for an undetermined time to reach customer potential, owing to an absence of used-mobile-home parking lot to "show and tell." Regardless of improvements and nice additions, the price is fixed by absence of a free and open market for used mobile homes on a basis of consumer-to-consumer market. Surprising, since the mobile home is subject to the motor vehicle laws!

As to the right of privacy of the human mind, the State of the Union speech by the President had not one commercial interruption. Yet, when our minds are concentrating on a vital moment in our favorite TV program, as many as three to six commercials divided by a station break interrupt rudely! One of the first tests for mental capabilities is the power of concentration. Does this reflect a change in the attitude of mental health rules and requirements?

Further upsetting the apperception: art from Europe is offered, by example, by the Palatine bank in Illinois. Where do the amateur American artists get to display their art work in hope of salaries and reputation and recognition? In Europe? Where? Most galleries around are always "inventory full" by phone information and never even get to see art work wanting space. Charity could begin at home, but it does not!

She examines Wheeling's ills

Looks like my town, Wheeling, has been playing the "I will" game. West-haven, Hoffman Estates, and, on a larger scale, Chicago and Washington, have been quite successful at this game. I am sure you're familiar with the "I will" motto. It being — "I will lie, cheat, and steal from as many people as I can, without getting caught."

Where do you think our elected officials first learned this game? Do you suppose in their youth? And if so, maybe at a pool-hall, corner drugstore, baseball or football field, or maybe while playing kick-the-can? Nope, you're wrong. Parker Bros. caused all this trouble. "Trade you Marvin Gardens for Park Place, you landed on one of my utilities, pay me $200, you've just been assessed for each house and hotel you own, the bank owes you $200," etc., etc.

I'll just bet that if a survey were made, you'd find that all of the "I will" officials of today were great "Monopoly" players in their youth. They've traded shaking the dice, for shaking-down the people. The stakes are higher, but one rule hasn't changed in either game — "Go directly to jail, do not pass GO, do not collect your money."

'USA rejected God'

In recent months, much has been said by the news media about the sick condition of our country. Notable examples include the resignation of the vice president because of his criminal activity, no-win wars such as the one in Vietnam, Watergate, companies that train their salesmen to offer bribes to local officials, and most close to home — the indictment of Wheeling officials on criminal charges.

The disease our land suffers from is one of deficiency. The U.S.A. has turned its back on God, and His Word, the Bible. The founders of our republic never intended that God be left out of government. The laws of our land and the Constitution itself were based upon God's Law as given in the Bible. Many of the men who were instrumental in the founding of the United States were born-again Christians who recognized the need of Christian leadership in our government.

The only cure for this disease (both national and individually) is found in 2 Chronicles 7:14 of the Bible: "If My people, which are called by My name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek My face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."

illegal to tell fortunes in Illinois, but the magazine advertisements accepted by publishers who claim to be clairvoyant or star-readers or palmists — certainly are not soliciting the past events' interest to potential customers.

If this is the strongest nation in the world, where is the strength of morality in the average citizen, the average businessman, the average teenager, the publisher who caters and courts the European opinion and writings, politicians, the school teachers and principals, the journalists, the average tenant or neighbor in a community, the judicial system, the scientists, the railroads, the oil companies, and most of all, the religious leaders? Who is following whom? Who is leading?

Bike paths sought

In addition to generating record profits for the oil companies and diverting our attention from Watergate, it is also possible that the current gasoline "shortage" could be turned to the benefit of us all if our city and state officials could be induced to begin building a network of bicycle paths that would allow the people in our communities access to our shopping and industrial areas by a means other than the automobile.

As an example, consider the Woodfield shopping area and neighboring industrial plants which are impossible to approach in a safe manner either on foot or by bicycle.

In the event that the "energy crisis" turns out to have been created by the oil companies and others for their own ends, a program of bicycle paths as an alternative means of local transportation would still be of great value in terms of recreation and convenience.

Readers view fire lane ticketing

In the January 16 issue of the Buffalo Grove Herald a letter from Mrs. Gloria Stith appeared complaining of a ticket she received for parking in a fire lane. She went as far as suggesting the village perhaps enjoyed the "lucrative receipts of these citations" because the signs were not posted clearly enough.

Come on, Mrs. Stith, even if there were no posted signs, everyone who drives should know that in a shopping center you do not park in the lane next to the stores. That should be as automatic to you as not parking next to a fire hydrant where, I may add, there also are no posted signs.

I, too, have seen policemen ticketing people who park in these lanes, for whatever excuse, and I say more power to them. It should be done as a rule not once in a while and not just a warning but a ticket so there won't be a next time. How can you tell when you will be delayed by circumstances in the store?

As a citizen and as a fireman's wife, I know that the fire department would be severely criticized if they had to damage a vehicle in order to fight a fire or were delayed in offering service as a paramedic because they had to wend their way through the illegally parked cars.

To say the village is giving tickets for this offense to "enjoy lucrative receipts" is a sop to your conscience. You were wrong, take your medicine, and from now on park in the place indicated for

'Sorry, death won'

After reading some of the letters to the Fence Post from people in Elk Grove Village condemning Channel 7 reporters Daly and Smith for unfair reporting, I want to add my opinion.

First, the people are right, so is the fire chief. Legally they are right. In our society you only get what you pay for, sometimes, not always. I want to ask one question. Does anybody call for an ambulance just for the fun of it or only in a dire emergency? Would it not be more humane to make two trips for no pay, if necessary, and save one life. The argument that if some paying villager needed the ambulance while it was out saving a non-paying patient leaves me cold. That same argument can be made if two paying customers need aid. Who is going to decide which one shall live and which one shall die?

Suppose a non-Elk Grove motorist has an accident in Elk Grove. Does the emergency vehicle refuse help because he did not pay? In Elk Grove, the issue was not pay or not to pay. Life or death was. Sorry, death won.

Chief Hulett praised

Dear Charles Zetek, Elk Grove Village president:

Too often, people express criticism and disdain; not often enough is appreciation and support extolled.

Chief Allen Hulett has provided outstanding service to our community. His consistent professional efforts and improvements give Elk Grove Village the finest fire and emergency protection available.

The unfortunate deaths, regretted by everyone, do not change our feelings about Chief Hulett, his fine department, or Elk Grove Village.

The tragedy is over, and cannot now be helped. The new policy of answering an emergency first and billing later provides protection against an unanswered emergency in the future.

We appreciate Allen Hulett, and strongly feel that others reading about us should know our feelings. He performed his responsibilities as he was directed, and as he felt were right. Further criticism is unjustified.

We support Chief Hulett professionally, and personally — and want you, the Chief, and everyone else to know it.

'Cut utility tax'

After several years of paying a utility tax for the village hall addition and sewer and water improvements, I feel that it's about time for the village hall to give the residents a deadline whereby the utility tax will be eliminated from our bills.

We have the village hall addition and sewer and water improvements have been done (maybe not all — of that I am not sure), so how about informing the people why we need to keep the utility tax? Remember that it is so easy to use someone else's money!

Lauds hearing aid help

Dear Monica Wilch Perin:

In your article the week of January 14 on hearing aids I wish to state how important and timely this message was to me and my husband. We are in our middle fifties and my husband lost the hearing of one ear and a partial loss in the other all due to industrial noises.

Louis Cassels

Millions of people across the nation who took the time to read one, even just one of Louis Cassels' writings or newspapers columns, couldn't help being drawn to this man.

His gift of writing, coupled with his religious faith and knowledge, gave the reader a sense of "being there." One couldn't miss the fact that here was a man who had Christ in his heart and was sharing that joy with us.

This week Louis Cassels passed quietly away at a young 52 years, a prize winner in life and death, who shall be missed by many.

Lauds volleyball game

On opening my January 23 Arlington Herald, I couldn't help but wonder what makes one group of young adults play volleyball for three days to help raise money for other people while one young man is sentenced to two years supervision for using a deadly weapon.

I know these young adults (for that is what one of their sponsors calls them instead of "kids," "teens," etc.) and they aren't little Miss Frissys, they are track and field runners, jazz band players, football and basketball players, swimmers, girl gymnasts and debaters (to name a few things they do) and just the most fun loving people you could ever be around.

During the marathon all made sure they were playing when scheduled and yet also got to their jobs if they had one or some made cookies for others to eat in between their game. Others were around to cheer on their fellow players and one girl went to a wedding but got back in time for her turn with her team.

Night and day the ball bounced, pop and food were consumed at great rates, yet on Sunday morning no one in the church could tell they had been there. Bone tired, they showed up for church and served coffee to others in between services.

To say the young adults did it alone would be wrong, for they had many great old adults staying with them and dropping in to cheer them on. Maybe that is the difference between the two stories in the Herald.

They had one more force looking over them and that was their love of God and Christ and the fact that they aren't afraid of saying Christ is there in their lives.

Thank you, young adults of the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, for showing one old adult of "what it's all about."

Hospital thanked

I wish to express my appreciation to the Palatine Fire Dept. for their prompt response to our call for emergency service early in the morning of January 10. Not only were they prompt, but their efficiency and knowledge was most reassuring.

Also, the emergency room staff of Northwest Community Hospital deserves the same credit for promptness, efficient and knowledgeable handling and courtesy. Without the help of these human services, people, others with more serious problems than mine, would suffer a great deal.

I was made comfortable and treated quickly so that my discomfort was minimal.

RTA 'totally unacceptable' to them

Having seen the brief article covering our township board of auditors anti-RTA resolution in The Herald Monday, Jan. 23, I thought that your readers would be interested in the full text of our Jan. 23 resolution:

Whereas, the Schaumburg Township Board of auditors being locally elected, responsible, and responsive to our local township voters and taxpayers, and having demonstrated in our term of office, the flexibility to meet changes in our township as we shifted from rural to suburban township governmental needs,

And whereas, the Regional Transit Authority legislation to come before the voters of our township on March 19, has rather than elected officials, nine appointed governors.

And whereas, these appointed RTA officials have the ability to provide a private sale without referendum, bonding power of up to one half billion dollars on a non-competitive basis,

And whereas, the same nine RTA governing board members have unlimited taxing powers,

And whereas, present gasoline tax of 5 per cent is projected to be raised to 20 per cent,

And whereas, approximately 75 per cent of the $171 million estimated to be the first year cost of the RTA package, will be spent to subsidize the Chicago CTA.

Therefore, be it resolved that the Schaumburg Township Board of Auditors finds this particular RTA proposition totally unacceptable, especially in the powers that it grants to non-elected, appointed officials, and thereby goes on record to urge our Schaumburg Township voters to vote NO on the creation of the RTA on March 19.

Jacoby bid comes to rescue

One feature of the Jacoby two notrump is that the bid is unlimited in strength.

Today's slam might be bid by almost anyone. It also might not, as may be seen from the fact that when it was played in a regional masters' pairs only about half the field got there.

South has a normal, sound spade opening and rebids three notrump to show it. He would have bid three spades with a slightly better hand; four spades with a worse one.

North, with 16 high-card points and very good trumps, felt that his hand warranted a mild slam try even though he knew that his partner held no singleton and did not have a very good hand. He also knew that a four heart cue bid risked nothing since South could still sign off at four spades.

South felt that his hand was good enough to go past game. It seemed to him that five spades would be perfectly safe, so he bid five clubs as a cue bid beyond game. This was enough for North. He went right to the laydown slam.

Note that neither partner used Black-

Veterans' news

Marriage won't hike allowance

Q — What proportion of the adult male population of this country has had military service?

A — There are 55.1 million men aged 20 to 64 in the United States and 26.4 million, or 48 per cent, are veterans of the Armed Forces.

Q — I am a 20-year-old student attending college under the Veterans Administration's program for orphans of deceased veterans. Now that I am married, will my $320 monthly allowance be increased?

A — Sorry, no. Additional educational assistance is not authorized for dependents of participants in that program.

Q — Does the Veterans Administration reduce a veteran's monthly compensation when there are increases in Social Security benefits?

A — No. VA does not count any income against compensation for service connected disabilities, including Social Security payments. Income is counted in determining pensions of veterans with non-service connected disabilities, however.

Q — I understand the Veterans Administration is paying a record dividend this year on "V"-prefixed National Service Life Insurance and "K"-prefixed U.S. Government Life Insurance policies. When may I expect the dividend on my NSLI policy?

A — Your dividend is payable on the anniversary date of your NSLI policy, and no application is necessary. If you have elected to buy paid up insurance with your dividends, you will get a statement of your account rather than a check. Dividends amounting to $303.80 million are payable throughout 1974 on anniversary dates of policies carried by 3.9 million eligible veterans.

Drug 'hotline' concept expanded to crisis service

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully accredited 150-bed psychiatric hospital widely known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

Hot lines, suicide prevention, walk-in houses for drug abusers, rap phones and now crisis intervention. All sound like good ideas but do they serve a useful purpose?

Some do, some don't. Some, such as the "hotline," come and go. People who call suicide prevention centers are not always suicidal. A fad, such as drugs in the 1960s, wanes and a service is no longer needed.

Now "crisis intervention" centers are being set up to handle any kind of call for help. Dr. Myron Mohr, clinical psychologist at the student health service of Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge, explained his crisis intervention program, "The Phone."

"It seemed," he said, "the people calling suicide prevention centers mostly felt lonely, isolated and alienated — not necessarily suicidal. In fact, a specially designated presidential commission found that feelings of isolation and alienation are most frequently seen in mental health settings and are creating the most concern for people. 'The Phone' came into existence through suicide prevention. Crisis intervention counselors are trained to deal with any here-and-now type of problem."

THOSE FEELING lonely and isolated are not the only callers. People call with marital problems, family problems, drug problems and sexual problems to name a few, according to Mohr.

Eighty per cent of the calls received by "The Phone" are problem calls, as opposed to calls for information about something. Mohr explained a problem call as one made by someone experiencing immediate anguish. It is often a call about something that happened in the immediate past, that the person wants to talk over with someone else.

"The Phone" counselors are the understanding listeners. "They're not advice giving," said Mohr. "They intervene here and now in a here-and-now crisis, so that some action can be taken right then. They allow the caller to take a look at the crisis objectively, talk it over and, hopefully, make a decision if a decision needs to be made. They allow the lonely caller to get in touch and help him realize the real feelings he had that made him call."

Mohr related one example of a crisis intervention call: "A student had had a fight with her boyfriend, didn't tell anyone about it, but stayed up all night worrying and wondering what was going on in her life at that time. This was aggravated by the fact that she had an important exam the following afternoon. She called at 7 a.m. anxious, sobbing and upset."

The counselors listened and let her know they understood what she was feeling. She was given the opportunity to look at the situation with them and decide if she wanted to do something, take some action, primarily in terms of her here and now feelings.

SOMETIMES THE problem is handled at the time with the caller giving perhaps just his first name for rapport purposes. And sometimes further counseling is indicated, often with referral to a professional clinic or mental health center.

The counselors in Mohr's program are paraprofessional volunteers from the university and the community. They're initially screened for genuine warmth and concern for other people, then given extensive training. Two counselors are on duty at all times, 24 hours a day, seven days a week. "The Phone" receives an average of 2,000 calls a month from an area with a population of 400,000.

"It's difficult to evaluate the success of a program such as ours," said Mohr. "The callers mostly remain anonymous, for one thing. But the number of calls per month is high for this population density, and we do get feedback from our referral agencies that indicates the rate of followups is around 50 per cent."

Mohr doesn't believe crisis intervention is just a fad. "I believe it will be an ongoing thing. It's especially valuable in a community-campus location such as ours," he said. "I would like to see us ultimately work ourselves out of business, but unfortunately I don't think that's possible."

Applicants need proof of birth

Persons filing for Social Security retirement payments have to give satisfactory evidence of their age. Usually, this is a birth or baptismal record recorded before age 5. Sometimes people don't bother to get this evidence before calling at the social security office, according to Norman D. Jerome, manager of the Arlington Heights Social Security Office. Their claims are then delayed while they write for the record.

Request for birth certificates giving identifying information should be addressed to the proper authority ahead of time. The request should include as much of the following information as possible: a) full name at birth; b) date of birth; c) place of birth; d) sex and race; e) father's name; f) mother's maiden name.

The cost usually is $2 and it is suggested that this be covered by a postal money order. "If a request has to be sent to another state, the correct address and fee can be obtained from the nearest Social Security office," Jerome said.

Requests for baptismal records should be sent to the church where the person was baptized and the same identifying information as mentioned above would be helpful. There usually is no fee but a contribution is well received as it does take time to search and reply to the request.

Other evidence of age is acceptable and can be used as proof of age if a birth or baptismal record before age 5 cannot be obtained. Anyone having any questions on the evidence they have obtained should phone the Social Security office ahead of time. "They have had years of experience dealing with the various types of evidence and can help you," Jerome said.

Gladstone, Realtors has proved a competent Realtor can handle the tight money market. The company's gross sales volume for 1973 totaled $27,838,654, a 16 percent increase over 1972.

Robert A. Poltzer, general manager of the rapidly growing firm with eight offices in the northwest and western suburbs, says, "Money for mortgages is available, only it's hidden. You just have to look harder for it."

"This is the time when the Realtor who is knowledgeable in the field of residential financing can provide his clients with the specialized assistance vital to purchase and market houses successfully," Poltzer adds.

There are many alternate routes to beating the tight mortgage scene. One way is through the Veterans Administration loan.

"Much of our offices' business comes through veterans," Poltzer says. "Bonafide Realtors can be of great help to the veteran desiring a home because the Realtor knows exactly what is needed for speedy processing. First, the property must be realistically priced because it will have to be appraised by the VA appraiser.

"The Realtor should know in advance the information to be procured under the VA regulations so that there is no delay in the transaction, and he should work with a lending institution which will consider processing under the Veterans Administration regulations. If all this knowledge is gathered beforehand, the paperwork can proceed smoothly in the same time as regular financing."

VA loans are usually completed in 45 days, the same length of time as a conventional loan. This compares to 60 days for an FHA. The Federal Housing Administration loan is available to virtually everyone and the advantage is that a much lower down payment is required than for conventional financing.

All veterans of World War II and the Korean Conflict with 90 days active service qualify for a VA loan. Others need 181 consecutive days in service. Both must be honorably discharged. Veterans' widows are also entitled to a VA loan and under certain circumstances the wife of a member of the Armed Forces serving on active duty who is listed as missing in action or is a prisoner of war.

Another solution to the mortgage problem is to obtain a second mortgage from an owner for the difference between the down payment and the amount a lender is willing to advance on a first mortgage.

For instance, a young couple buying their first home had $3,000 saved for a down payment. They were buying a $33,000 home. The lender was willing to give an 80 percent mortgage, which means the couple needed a $6,600 down payment. They were $3,600 short.

The seller had, in this case, no need for all the equity from the sale of his home. He was using a portion to purchase another home and the balance was going to be placed in a savings account. Instead, he loaned $3,600 to the purchaser and this was secured by a second mortgage which he held, with the knowledge of the lender who gave the first mortgage.

The seller received higher interest from the purchaser than from the bank, and he had the security of a second mortgage on the property. The buyer now has his $6,600 down payment, the lender has an 80 percent mortgage, and the seller receives an equitable sale in a tight market.

Still another avenue open to a young couple is to get help from their parents by offering to pay them the same percentage the young people would have to pay on a mortgage. The parents would be lending the money to their children at a higher rate than the money would earn in a savings and loan institution, it would be a secured loan, and the children wouldn't have to take out a second mortgage or possibly overextend themselves.

In numerous such situations handled in Gladstone's offices, the young people deposited their payments to their parents in a savings and loan account, with the parents' money earning additional interest while the children's equity grew.

Poltzer pointed out still another possibility. "Look for homes with existing low-interest mortgages that can be assumed. That way you may be able to avoid today's higher interest rates," he says. "However, when you compare today's interest with six months ago, 7.9 versus 7.25, the actual difference in monthly payments on a $30,000 loan is only $12.72. Less than what many couples spend on smoking," Poltzer figures.

Gladstone, Realtors recently found a home in the $40,000 price range for a family having about $15,000 in cash. The home had a $25,000 mortgage balance. The note of interest on the existing mortgage was 6.9 percent. So the purchaser paid $15,000 down and took over the $25,000 existing mortgage at 6.9 percent.

And the service charge for transferring the mortgage was considerably less than the cost of procuring a new mortgage. The family saved one percent on interest by assuming the older mortgage, the seller had an easy sale and at the same time saved money on prepayment penalties that were waived.

Another solution, if a couple can't find a mortgage to take over or if they prefer a new house, is to scout new developments where builders already have mortgage commitments.

Poltzer attributes part of Gladstone's gain during this difficult period to the firm's Guaranteed Trade-In Sales Plan that allows the prospective buyer to purchase a new home even before he sells his present property.

As Poltzer explains it, "You select your new home subject to entering into a satisfactory guaranteed sale on your present property. Gladstone gives you a certificate guaranteeing you market value for your property within a definite time period. If your property has not been sold during the designated time period, Gladstone will purchase it at the price guaranteed to you, less commission and the usual seller's expenses."

So successful has this program been in the last quarter of the year that approximately 15 percent of Gladstone's sales were homes listed under the guarantee program.

One of the key stimulants of the Chicago area real estate business, especially in the northwest and western suburbs, is executive mobility. Gladstone, Realtors has jumped into the top 10 among 625 members of RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service, the nation's leading real estate referral organization. RELO's program covers more than 7,000 residential real estate markets, including all major cities and their suburbs as well as many small towns and cities.

"Under the referral plan, a member of the community from which a family is moving sends the destination broker a resume of the family's housing needs," Poltzer says. "He also sees that the destination member contacts the family immediately, in order to answer questions about the community and pre-select homes that will meet the family's needs, well in advance of the family's first house-hunting trip."

Through RELO many of the details can be handled in advance. Days and weeks of househunting can be saved, and unnecessary delays and frustrations can be avoided, in contrast with house-hunting from scratch.

"Actually this is the best time to buy," Poltzer advises. "Many experts believe inflation will continue and loan costs will not come down appreciably. Nowadays the prospective buyer can look at a house, think about it overnight, and make a decision without finding that the house has been sold in the morning."

And sellers, knowing the difficulty with mortgage money, are apt to put a more realistic price on the house if they are anxious to sell.

Professional service in selling homes is the Realtor's business. At Gladstone, Realtors all the time-consuming, costly, and intricate problems are handled for the client, and all avenues to mortgage money are followed. Gladstone associates find that the game is the same, but the rules have changed. It takes much more effort, time and know-how, but in the end everyone profits.

Plan real estate course

A four week 36-hour credit course in "Principles of Real Estate Practice" will begin Feb. 25 in the Training Center of Kolo Real Estate, Ltd., 1000 E. North-west Hwy., Mount Prospect.

Offered by the Institute of Real Estate Sales, a Kolo subsidiary, two concurrent sessions, limited to 30 students in each, will be conducted by James S. Regan III, director of training. Space should be reserved as soon as possible by calling 394-0900.

Morning classes will be held from 9 until noon, and the evening session meets from 7 until 10 p.m. every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from Feb. 25 through March 22, according to Regan, a member of the National Society for Programmed Instruction.

At successful completion of the four-week course, a diploma will be awarded certifying 36 hours of credit, and the student is then eligible to take the state examination for a real estate salesman's license.

Persons completing this course in past sessions have averaged 83 to 84 on their state exams, according to Regan, with approximately 90 per cent scoring passing grades.

The real estate principles course and a more advanced 36-hour "Psychology of Selling" course offered by the Institute are both fully accredited by the Illinois Department of Registration and Education, and meet all requirements of State Bill 707.

The Institute of Real Estate Sales courses are also approved by the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction's sub-division of Private Business and Vocational Schools.

Kolo Real Estate, Ltd. has been conducting its training school for those interested in careers in real estate sales for the past three years. Regan took over the direction of the classes from Larry Ham, vice president, in September, 1973. Robert A. Kolo, president, is assistant director of the Institute.

Thanks to a closed circuit television set-up in the training center, students will be able to review any session missed and catch up with the rest of the class if late enrollment is unavoidable. Only prerequisite for the "Principles" course is that students be 21 years or older, high school graduates or the equivalent, and citizens of the U.S.A.

Topics to be covered during the course include: nature of the brokerage business, factors influencing home ownership, historical background of real estate, manner of conveying real estate, financing, closing, and pro-rata of mortgage interest, insurance premiums and taxes.

Regan joined the Kolo organization in June, 1973. A Chicago resident since November, 1971, he is a native of New York City. He graduated from St. Peter's Preparatory School in Jersey City, N.J., Fairfield University in Fairfield, Conn., and also attended Fordham University's School of Law.

At Bolger, Realtors we know that inflation has hit many families hard, and that there seems to be no letup in the foreseeable future. But look at the total picture this way. While interest rates may be at an all time high, the prices of new homes will go only higher over the next few years with the increased cost of construction and materials. You'd be wiser to buy a new home now while you can. Not only will a new home be a hedge against growing inflation, but it will also serve as your own personal savings plan, increasing in value over the years to come. At Bolger, Realtors we think that we may be able to help you out of the current credit crunch, and into a new home. Why not stop by and talk to one of our Realtors today? Schedule ski seminar

A cross-country ski seminar will be held in the clubhouse at The Windings of Person Creek at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday. There is no charge. A limited number of seats are available to the public and must be reserved by calling 887-9400 (ext. 290).

Jim Petry, a professional cross-country ski instructor and consultant for The Branigan Organization, will conduct the one-and-a-half hour program. Petry is on the staff of Wilderness Survival Seminars, Inc., a non-profit organization that teaches outdoor skills. He also is proprietor of the Wilderness Shack, a store in LaGrange, specializing in back-packing and cross-country ski equipment.

Instructor Petry will show how to select and use equipment, demonstrate waxing techniques, have a question-and-answer session, and show a National Educational Television film on cross-country skiing.

"Cross-country skiing is becoming one of the most popular winter sports," says Petry. Some sporting goods retailers estimate that one out of every four pairs of skis sold in the United States this season will be designed for touring.

As downhill ski areas get more contested, outdoor enthusiasts are beginning to appreciate the advantages of Nordic-type skiing. It can be done nearly anywhere there's snow. Ski touring is relatively inexpensive, great exercise and safe for all groups, too.

The Windings of Person Creek is a residential-recreational homesite community just west of St. Charles. To reach The Windings, take Route 64, two miles west of St. Charles. Turn right at Burlington Road, then left at the water tower on Empire Road, two miles to The Windings.

Jim Petry can be reached at (312) 482-8210 or write him at Wilderness Shack, 515 S. LaGrange Rd., LaGrange, 60525.

JAMESTOWN VILLAGE in Schaumburg will consist of 84 one-bedroom and 144 two-bedroom units. Each will have its own washer and dryer, fully automated kitchen with dishwasher and disposal, plus balcony.

Break ground for Jamestown Village

Ground has been broken for a 228-unit apartment development, located on Bode Road and Knollwood Drive just east of Barrington Road in Schaumburg, according to Weisner Realty, Inc., sole brokers in the land transaction.

Ronald Weisner, president of the realty firm, said the sale of the 15-acre site involved two large national out-of-state building companies. The seller was the Klingbell Company of Columbus, Ohio and the purchaser was Case Development Company, located in the Detroit, Mich. area.

Marshall Friedman of Weisner Realty said the development, to be known as Jamestown Village, will consist of 14 two-and-a-half story buildings. The project will have 84 one-bedroom units and 144 two-bedroom units, said Friedman.

Estimated value of the total development when completed will be approximately $4½ million, according to Martin Levine, representative of the developers.

Levine added that every apartment will be equipped with its own washer and dryer. All apartments will also have balconies as well as fully automated kitchens with dishwashers and disposals in each unit, he said.

The complex, which will include a scenic lake, will feature total community and recreational amenities. A clubhouse facility is planned along with a swimming pool and tennis courts.

The developers estimated that the planned development should be open for occupancy this summer. Levine said rentals would be about $225 for one-bedroom apartments and about $270 for two-bedroom apartments.

Celebrate record-breaking year

Annen & Busse, Inc., Realtors, in their 25th year of service to the northwest suburbs, celebrated another record-breaking year with $38 million in real estate sales at their semi-annual dinner recently.

Featured guest speaker was Homes for Living Realtor Hugh Anderson, president of Hugh Anderson Real Estate, Inc., Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Anderson conducted a sales seminar emphasizing the advantages of the Annen & Busse marketing program as it relates to the national market and membership in the Homes for Living Network.

Plaques and awards were presented to more than half of the entire sales staff, including 16 Million Dollar Sales Club Awards, Top Salesman of the Year Awards to the leading associate in each of the firm's four offices, Annen & Busse's President's Club Award to two of the newer members of the firm who achieved outstanding production during their first full year of service, a Silver Cup to one of the newest members of Annen & Busse who has shown the most promise in a very short time of service, and humorous framed cartoons as well as a year membership dues to the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers (NIREB) to the two top listing associates in each of the four offices.

Donald Heidorn, vice president and general sales manager, presented the Top Salesman of the Year Awards to Jane Jackson, Arlington Heights; Del Sears, Mount Prospect; Rosalie Voras, Palatine; and Ken Dubs, Schaumburg.

Special tribute as well as an exquisite silver serving tray was given to Jane Jackson, who reached the goal of $2 million in residential sales during the year 1973.

EXPANSION OF the Simmons Engineering Corporation, 237 E. Prospect Ave., Mount Prospect, is scheduled for completion by April, according to the company's president, Harry M. Gustafson. New executive and general office areas are being added to the front of the building, and 4,000 sq. ft. of additional plant space is being constructed at the rear. Simmons Engineering is a manufacturer of slicing and saw blades used by the bakery, meat and food processing, plastics and other industries.

Predict decline in apartment switching

The traditional spring apartment hunting frenzy is expected to be a lot quieter than usual this year, in the judgment of one Chicago rental authority.

Despite rising rents and the urge for a change of scenery, William D. Sally of Baird & Warner, Inc., believes an unusually high number of renters will sign the lease renewal they'll be getting in the next few weeks and staying put when May 1 rolls around.

Sally is vice president and general manager of Baird & Warner's property management division, one of the leading managers of rental apartments, condominiums and cooperatives in the Chicago area.

Those who will move include mainly people shifting to new job locations in the area, setting up housekeeping for the first time, changing marital status, or moving to smaller quarters to cope with rising costs.

"But there will be fewer vacancy signs than we'd ordinarily expect and less switching because there are more reasons than usual for people to stay put," said Sally. He gave these reasons:

—Rents are going up throughout the Chicago area. Baird & Warner estimates the average rent increase will be in a range of 5 to 7 per cent. "With rents rising across the board there will be fewer rental bargains available and consequently little to be gained by shopping around," said Sally.

He believes the only way to achieve economies is to move to a smaller apartment or to less convenient locations where you can get the same amount of space for less money. Building age by itself is not a factor. A well-located and maintained older building can compete with a new, building less favorably located.

—Moving costs can put a big dent in a budget. As a rule of thumb professional movers say the cost of moving is about equal to one month's rent in your new apartment. One way to eliminate that expense is to rent a truck or trailer and do it yourself, or line up a fleet of friends with autos to haul smaller items. Then there may be incidental expenses of re-hanging draperies, re-installing carpeting, etc.

—The rental unit supply is shrinking in many areas because some rental buildings are being converted to condominiums, and fewer new rental buildings are being constructed. More new buildings are being developed for sale with a proportionate decrease in what's available for rent.

—The gasoline shortage has put a premium on apartments close to public transportation, whether it's a bus line, L-subway, or a commuter railroad. The next best will be an apartment close to the place of work.

—Finally, the fuel shortage is discouraging driving around, especially on weekends, to look for apartments. "Ordinarily one of the most popular ways of looking for a new apartment has been to get into an auto and simply ride around, inspecting neighborhoods and watching for vacancy signs," observed Sally.

Announce top salesmen

Five sales associates have been recognized by Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors, as the first winners of the 1974 Starck Salesman of the Month Award.

As announced by Robert Starck, president of Starck & Co., the winners and their offices are as follows: John Kotleba, Schaumburg; Edna Stewart, Arlington Heights; Charlene Halliher, Mount Prospect; Carol Schaub, Palatine; and Anne Schuerings, Hoffman Estates.

The winners from each office are determined on a point basis that is awarded for listings, listings sold, sales, and referrals sold by other RELO brokers. Starck is the northwest suburban area's largest RELO member.

Gets top honors at Rich Port

Jerry Bouschard, a Realtor-Associate in the Mount Prospect office of Rich Port, Realtor, captured Northwest Division first place awards in three of four categories at the firm's Annual Howie Awards Dinner.

Jerry Bouschard

He received first place in the Howie Salesmanship category for the greatest number of sales; first place in the Howie Lists category and first place in the Howie Sales category for the highest dollar volume of sales and listings sold.

In addition, Bouschard was the winner in the firm's "Paris In The Springtime" contest. He and his wife Mary will receive a one week, all expenses paid trip to Paris, France, as guests of Rich Port, Realtor.

Bouschard and Phyllis Bishop, also from the Mount Prospect office, along with 37 other Rich Port, Realtor associates were honored as $1 million producers; nine were honored as $2 million producers and one as a $3 million producer.

More than 250 Realtor-Associates from 18 Rich Port, Realtor offices, serving the northwest, north, north shore and western Chicagoland suburbs, competed for the awards.

Receives RM designation

Robert M. Kuhn of Mount Prospect has been awarded the RM (Residential Member) designation by the Governing Council of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers.

This professional designation was inaugurated in 1968 to recognize appraisers with demonstrated skill and experience in appraising single family residential property. To receive the designation, Kuhn was required to have at least two full years of experience in appraising residential property as part of at least five years of real estate experience which included at least two years of residential appraising experience.

He also had to pass a technical examination of the Institute, submit an acceptable single family demonstration appraisal report, and have the favorable recommendation of other appraisers familiar with his work and professional integrity.

Kuhn is a staff field appraiser with Bell Federal Savings and Loan Assoc. He also holds associate membership with the Society of Real Estate Appraisers and the Chicago Real Estate Board.

Membership in the Appraisal Institute is limited exclusively to professionally designated appraisers, and the Institute is the oldest and largest organization in North America of appraisers qualified to evaluate all types of commercial and investment real estate and also having members qualified only as residential property appraisers.

The Institute also has an MAI designation (Member, Appraisal Institute) which is awarded only to appraisers qualified to evaluate commercial, investment and other non-residential properties as well as single family homes.

Except for certain salaried members employed by government agencies or by educational or financial institutions, every member of the Appraisal Institute also must be a member of a local Realtor Board of the National Association of Realtors.

R. A. L. joins Matchmaker system

Instant communication with a nationwide organization of Realtors has been instituted by R.A.L. Realty Co., Arlington Heights. Richard A. Lis said R.A.L. Realty Co. is enthusiastic about its recent affiliation with Matchmaker Home Marketing Systems, Inc.

Matchmaker is a new and rapidly expanding company formed by fully experienced real estate professionals to bind together agencies throughout the country to better serve an increasingly transient population.

Matchmaker started in the northeast and has moved to the Middle Atlantic states, midwest, southeast and southwest portions of the country. A westward expansion is now underway. In one year, it's expected there will be more than a thousand Matchmaker firms.

R.A.L. Realty Co. will have ultra modern Xerox equipment installed in its offices here permitting it to transmit pictures of local homes on the market to Matchmaker headquarters and thence to other communities.

In other words, future residents of this region may request in a matter of minutes information on and pictures of homes for sale here as they sit in the offices of brokers in their present home communities. Residents of this vicinity moving away may do the same by stopping at the R.A.L. Realty Co. office.

Many thousands of home data sheets will be stored in the Matchmaker computer banks in the headquarters office. Several other programs beneficial for home purchasers and sellers will also be available to R.A.L. Realty Co. customers through its new alignment with Matchmaker.

Lis said, "In this modern age when new tools are required to serve our customers better, R.A.L. Realty Co. will continue to strive for progress as we have by joining Matchmaker Home Marketing Systems, Inc."

SINCE 1960 A LEADER IN HIGH QUALITY REAL ESTATE ASSISTANCE

Baird & Warner posts all-time sales record

Baird & Warner, Inc., diversified Chicago area real estate company, reported that 1973 sales volume reached an all-time high of $231,692,622 a 7 per cent increase over the $216,143,159 scored in 1972.

The 119-year-old company, with 30 offices serving Chicago and suburbs, achieved this volume on the strength of 3,910 sales participation, the second highest participation figure in company history. The previous high mark for participations was 4,123 units, also registered in 1972.

Robert G. Walters, vice president and general sales manager, residential division, described the 1973 sales performance as "exceptional."

He observed that "to set a dollar record and come within 8 1/2 per cent of last year's production total with the conditions that have existed in real estate since last July is tremendously gratifying and encouraging."

He continued: "Our industry has been doubly handicapped since the middle of 1973. First, there is the fact that mortgage money was not as readily available, higher downpayments were needed, and interest rates rose."

"But even more unfortunate was the gloomy way in which this was being reported to the selling and buying public and the negative way the public reacted. Many, many people just gave up hope and decided it was pointless to put their home on the market, or to go out and look for a house. The 'no-mortgage' fiction was far harsher than the reality."

Walters noted that the facts never supported the fiction. "Very few transactions generated by our company or other leading real estate firms that we have surveyed failed to be completed in 1973 because of the non-availability of mortgage money," he noted. "Some deals fell through because applicants were disqualified. But it was rarely when a real estate company or one of the parties was unable to locate a mortgage source."

He noted that the flow of news from the savings and loan industry and the press since the first of the year has been much more favorable and could spark a very active market.

Sees revival of downtown centers

Shopping centers and suburbs have become virtually inseparable twins in recent years, but new construction patterns emerging as a result of the energy crunch point to a revival of downtown shopping centers.

So observes Marshall C. Dennison, president and chief executive officer of Associated Mortgage Companies, Inc., a nationwide real estate financing and servicing organization.

Dennison notes that "the trend for shopping center development in the past decade has been outward — away from the downtown area toward the far-flung suburban fringes.

"Initially, a few subdivisions and apartment complexes were built in less populated suburban areas and these were quickly followed by shopping center projects."

Dennison explains that these centers would themselves become focal points for continued suburban growth — apartments, homes and office buildings — thus perpetuating the ever-burgeoning cycle.

"However, current gasoline shortages as well as scarcity of some construction materials are slowing these developments."

"The newest trend on the construction scene is recycling of older structures downtown or in the immediate suburbs," he points out.

Builders in 1974 will apply their capital and ingenuity to rehabilitating existing close-in properties. The result: growth of attractive in-town shopping centers which will become the hub of continued metropolitan renaissance.

Dennison forecasts that the profile of this downtown construction will be vertical, as builders opt for high-rise buildings to efficiently utilize scarce and expensive city land.

In contrast, as suburban shopping centers expand horizontally — builders add new one- or two-story buildings as the need arises. Land has usually been available for such outward construction patterns in the suburban fringes.

Downtown development, however, need not be limited to one multi-storied building. "It is conceivable to renovate many structures in several adjacent city blocks," he adds.

Linking these buildings will be covered overpasses which permit people to cross freely from building to building without leaving the large complex.

Similar to their suburban counterparts, Dennison says downtown centers will highlight malls complete with sidewalk cafes, snack bars, water fountains and rest areas, plus department stores, boutiques, movie theaters and service facilities.

Chances for the success of such new projects are excellent, according to Dennison. He calls attention to increasingly brisk lunch-hour shopping "Energy-conscious workers now shop at noontime in order to curtail evening or weekend trips to regional centers."

More significant will be the long-term demand for downtown shopping centers created by the inward migration to apartments and other dwellings nearer workplaces.

"And the growth of these centers will motivate more buyers and renters back into the city and close-in suburbs," he predicts.

"The response of the construction industry to energy-derived shortages in 1974 will cause a 'face-lifting' of our metropolitan areas — and ultimately a new life style for its residents," Dennison concludes.

Two firms lease at Creekside

Fifty per cent of the new Creekside Technical Center, 5050 and 5100 Newport Dr., Rolling Meadows, has been rented with leases executed recently by Sumer, Inc. and Unlimited Printing & Systems, Inc. It was announced by Robert Babbitt, president of Babbitt and Associates, the architects and owners of the new multi-tenant, two-building industrial complex.

Both leases, arranged by Creekside rental agents, Smith-Pipenhagen, Inc. Realtors, are for an initial space of 1,833 square feet. Sumer's lease is for five years with a three-year option and Unlimited Printing signed for three years with another three-year option.

Bruce Anderson, president of Sumer, Inc., and Joseph J. Witry, president of Unlimited Printing & Systems, Inc., both agreed that the prime consideration in their move to Creekside was the "ideal location from the standpoint of proximity to the expressway systems and ease of reaching customers, plus the attraction of being situated in a fast-growing industrial office area with facilities for growth and expansion."

Sumer, Inc., manufacturers' representatives, sell electronic components to producers of process controls, computers, televisions, telephone instrumentation and medical electronics equipment.

Unlimited Printing & Systems, Inc. is an instant printing firm and a full-line business forms house.

In addition to the other conveniences of the Creekside facilities, Anderson cited the loading dock and private entrance features as being "essential to our business."

Witry's concern was a suburban location with easy access to the Loop. "We chose Creekside because it is located two minutes from the Northwest Tollway and 10 minutes from O'Hare International Airport, ideally situated for our sales force and customers alike," he said.

The Creekside Technical Center, which embodies the newest design in factory townhouses, is located near the interchange of U.S. 53 and the Northwest Tollway, just north of Woodfield Mall shopping center and Arlington Park Towers Hotel.

The two low-profile buildings, with a combined area of 44,000 square feet on a three-acre site, that is landscaped with flowering trees and shrubs, look more like offices or professional buildings than factories or warehouses. The buildings were designed as facilities for sub-assembly and light manufacturing, research and development activities, manufacturers' representatives offices, warehouse distribution, regional branch offices and repair and service centers.

Each building accommodates ten tenants, with individual space divided into units ranging from 1,200 square feet to 3,100 square feet. Individual spaces are of a straight-through design, with an office in the front and loading dock at the rear. None of the interior walls are load bearing so that spaces can be adjusted to meet the changing needs of tenants, by removing walls or partitions.

Amenities for each space include sky-domes for natural lighting, individually controlled heating and air conditioning, private entrances, individual recessed and covered loading docks and ample parking for staff and visitors.

Continental names Funk

Robert Funk of Arlington Heights has been named manager of the newly-opened Commercial-Industrial Division sales office of Continental Real Estate, Inc., at 1545 Waukegan Rd., Glenview. The announcement was made this week by Michael P. Brudnak, assistant vice president of Continental, in charge of the Commercial-Industrial Division.

Funk was named to the post by Brudnak after he established an outstanding record in Commercial-Industrial sales from the Wheaton headquarters of the division. The new Glenview office is the third Commercial-Industrial sales outlet for Continental, giving the real estate firm expanded ability to serve all suburban areas in commercial properties, industrial lands and buildings. A second branch operation was opened last fall in south suburban Matteson.

Funk is formerly from Aurora, and operated a retail business there for four years before joining the Continental organization. Funk and his wife, Crystal, recently moved to Arlington Heights from Aurora. They have two children.

Savings gains pick up in January

Savings gains at the nation's savings and loan associations picked up in January after a disappointing December, the United States League of Savings Associations reported.

In December, according to the League, savings and loan associations registered an estimated gain in savings deposits of $3 billion, but $2.5 billion of this was interest credited to accounts. With this interest subtracted, the gain was an estimated $500 million.

"During the Decembers of the past three years, the deposit gain, less interest credited, has run $1.3 billion," said the League. "Thus, 'over the counter' gain in savings deposits last month trailed behind those for December, 1970 through 1972 by 58 per cent."

But the League pointed out that a turn for the better occurred in the turnabout in January as evidenced by a survey of 600 associations representing 42 per cent of the total savings of the business.

"Bearing in mind this caveat about predictive capacity of the sample, and assuming this group reflects the trend of the entire business, the estimated gain in savings for the entire business during the first three weeks in January would have reached $2.3 billion," the League said.

On the mortgage side of the business, the League indicated that mortgage lending was still in the doldrums. It said that the mortgage market reflects the lags and uncertainties seen in the early periods of the 1967 and 1970 recovery.

"Loans closed by associations in December totaled $2.6 billion, down 42 per cent from the $4.6 billion of a year earlier," the League stated. "No early recovery in lending volume is anticipated because of the current low level of construction, the desire of savings associations to recast their balance sheets by improving their liquidity and reducing advances, and the hesitancy of the consumer."

Riley attends exposition

The National Association of Home Builders show (NAHB), the largest exposition of its kind in the world, was attended recently by Albert E. Riley, director of Home Builders Association, Chicago, of Rolling Meadows.

The NAHB exposition, which was held in the Astrodome complex in Houston, Texas, is an annual event that attracts over 3,000 exhibitors and 50,000 builders and manufacturers involved directly or indirectly with the residential construction industry. In addition to viewing the latest techniques and products available, builders attended business seminars to get a feel for the economic outlook and its effects on local housing markets in 1974.

Predicts moderate gains for 1974 construction

There's some good news and some bad news for America's construction industry this year.

But the overall outlook for 1974 — despite energy-derived economic uncertainties — is for moderate gains and notable new directions for construction.

So predicts Marshall C. Dennison, president and chief executive officer of Associated Mortgage Companies, Inc., a nationwide real estate financing and servicing organization.

"The picture looks brightest for the industrial and commercial areas," Dennison says.

He projects: There will be new commercial construction, but expansion and revitalization of existing facilities will account for an increasing percentage of 1974's total dollar value gain.

Higher costs for land, labor and materials will help push the value of new commercial construction to an estimated $15.35 billion during 1974, up about 1 percent from the $15.2 billion now reported for 1973.

The value of new industrial construction should reach $5.9 billion by the end of 1974, up from the $5.6 billion 1973 year-end total.

Overall, the value of all non-residential

"Bill Maybrook will also be responsible for all phases of marketing activities in our Chicago area operations, including evaluation of consumer markets, product analysis and model home merchandising," said Hoffman. The company currently is developing four planned communities in Chicago suburbs.

He lives in Highland Park with his wife and two sons.

Bolger names Hall

Dale Hadaway, vice president of T. A. Bolger, Realtors, Elk Grove Village, has announced that effective immediately

Bob Hall

Bob Hall will be assistant sales manager of that office.

The responsibilities of assistant sales manager will be in addition to his role of advertising manager for T. A. Bolger offices.

Hadaway said the need for an assistant sales manager came about because of the expansion program that T. A. Bolger, Realtors has undertaken. "We have increased our staff already and have more people in training right now. The increase plus the opening of our new Rolling Meadows office just helped to accelerate our plans."

Hall and his wife have lived in the village for 15 years, where he ran his business before joining Bolger.

Snow removal is a pain

Despite the fact that it looks beautiful on post cards and makes for wonderful skiing vacations, snow is a real pain in the ho-zongas when you have to shovel it from your sidewalk. And if you aren't careful, you can end up with more than a pain.

A lot of people, however, are using some basic common knowledge to come up with a safe way to keep their sidewalks and driveways clear. "Heat melts snow," Everyone knows that.

Well, according to the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, they've installed automatic snow melting systems beneath their driveways and walks and watch the falling snow without a worry in the world.

With automatic snow melting, all you have to do is set a dial at the end of summer and know that your shoveling days are over.

If your home has hydronic (hot water) heating, all you need to do is bury a network of piping or tubing beneath the walk and driveway surface, the Council says. Connect this to your house boiler or to its own small boiler. A small pump will circulate a mixture of hot water and anti-freeze to keep the surface warm enough to melt the snow on contact.

Afterward, when snow falls, you can wax lyrical about its beauty. That is, until you have to drive to town.

Rich Port achieves record year

Last year, Rich Port, Realtor had the largest sales volume in its history. Total volume for the 18-office real estate firm increased 19% per cent with the number of homes sold increasing 8% per cent, according to Dick Caruso, president of Rich Port, Realtor.

Caruso also noted that for the 12-month period ending Dec. 31, 92 per cent of all the properties listed by Rich Port, Realtor, were sold within the exclusive listing period and 17 per cent more listings were processed than in 1972.

"1973 was our best year in history, and our ability to continue growing in 1973 has been extremely gratifying," said Caruso. "This gain reflects outstanding performance by our sales staff and a strong market."

In 1973, 49 Realtor-Associates were million dollar producers. One achieved $3 million, nine were $2 million producers and 39 had volume of $1 million or more.

Two new residential sales offices (Darien and Northbrook), a Property Management Division and a new Northwest Commercial Investment Division office were opened in 1973. New sales personnel have been added and will continually be added in 1974.

"On the basis of 1973 results," Caruso said, "we are optimistic and can expect continued growth in '74 for several reasons: first, mortgage money is available. Second, all our 18 offices are located in communities which offer their residents commuter rail line service to downtown Chicago, an attractive plus during this energy crisis. Third, with new home construction diminishing, the pre-owned or existing home market should be up considerably."

LDF leases in Elk Grove

LDF incorporated, a division of Leaseaway Leasing Corp., has leased 40,628 square feet in the one story building at 1301 Mark St., Elk Grove Village. The facility will be used for a distribution center to service LDF's Chicago customers.

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates, represented by Gerald E. Egan, was sole broker in the $335,000 lease transaction. The developer, Trammell Crow & Company, was represented by John Wauterlek. LDF Incorporated and Trammell Crow Company retained house counsel as their attorneys.

Nelson joins Quinlan & Tyson

Ron Nelson has joined Quinlan and Tyson, Inc., Realtors, as a real estate sales representative in the firm's Palatine Area office.

The appointment was announced by Bob Stirn, office sales manager.

An experienced real estate salesman in the Northwest Suburban area, Nelson previously worked 10 years as a sports photographer, including Chicago Bears football games.

A graduate of the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, Nelson has lived in Buffalo Grove for the last four years. He and his wife have five children.

Frech new on staff

Thomas P. Frech of Arlington Heights has joined Quinlan and Tyson, Inc., Realtors, as a real estate sales representative in the firm's Palatine Area office.

The appointment was announced by Bob Stirn, office sales manager.

An experienced real estate salesman in the Northwest Suburban area, he has been an Arlington Heights resident for the last 10 years.

Frech is active in the Arlington Heights Jaycees and attended Culver Military Academy and Hanover College. He and his wife have three children.

Kunkel arranges office leases

Two leases for office space have been arranged by Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, announced Marvin Kingdon, director of Kunkel's commercial-investment division.

A five-year, 2,500 sq. ft. lease in the J. S. Adams Co. building at 1250 Golf Rd. was consummated for Dr. R. W. Donovan, an orthodontist, by Kunkel's Marvin Kingdon and Frank Kotnaur.

The Austin Company signed a two-year lease for 14,000 sq. ft. of space in the Park Ridge Office Center at 1550 Northwest Hwy. in Park Ridge. The transaction was negotiated by Frank Kotnaur of Kunkel's commercial-investment division.

Nickel replacing penny as 'king of coins'

Because of its availability, the Lincoln cent is usually regarded as the king of coins. But the right to that title has long been challenged by the nickel which surprisingly enough, seems to be equally popular among international as well as domestic collectors.

Unlike foreign coins in America, a fine set of United States nickels will bring top dollar abroad, and more often than not, slightly more than the home market.

For example, of the four nickels illustrated above, each represents a specimen of the first year that particular type was issued. Today, these four coins in uncirculated condition are worth more than $200. In proof condition the same dates will return more than $1,600 domestically.

Overseas the same series would fetch $300 and $180, respectively. The same formula applies to pieces in lesser condition when sold together.

The Shield Nickel
Designed by James Longacre, the Shield nickel was the first five-cent piece authorized by Congress. Its basic design ran from 1866 through 1883 with one major design change on the reverse.

The Liberty-head Nickel
Charles E. Barber executed the design for the famous "V" nickel issued from 1883 through 1912. No 1913 nickels of this type were ever authorized by either the mint or Congress.

This coin also had one major correction on the reverse beginning the very year it was first struck.

Collecting coins

by Mort Reed

The Indian-head Nickel
More commonly referred to as the "Buffalo" nickel, this coin ranks the highest in popularity.

It was designed by James E. Fraser who used three American Indian chiefs in his composite profile. With its Great Plains Bison reverse, this is heralded as the true American coin.

The Jefferson Nickel
Designed by Felix Schlag, our current five-cent piece has resisted all efforts to change its image in spite of the fact that it is 11 years over its official 25 year service requirement.

Although the United States issued a five-cent coin from 1794 through 1873 in the denomination of a half-dime, the term nickel was never used until 1886 and directly reflects the alloy used in its production. Nickel is not a monetary terminology.

USE KNIFE, SCRIBER OR A VERY SHARP PENCIL FOR ACCURATE MARKING

FOR VERTICAL LINES USE A PLUMB BOB

LONG STRAIGHT LINES ARE EASY WITH CHALK LINE

Rule No. 1 for projects: measure everything twice

The material for the project is first class, you have the proper hardware, your tools are good and you know how to use them — and yet the project is unmistakably a do-it-yourself job.

Everyone can tell. Shelves are not level. Installations are not plumb. Cuts are not square. Holes are slightly off center.

Sloppy measurements will result in sloppy work. Measuring tools are as important as any others. They are less expensive than most and last a lot longer. Learn to use them.

One rule to remember: measure everything twice. Measure it again if you are the least bit in doubt.

USE THE RIGHT tool. A wooden yardstick with the name of a hardware store or lumber dealer on it isn't much good except for rough measurements. Yardsticks warp and get damaged easily. The ends wear out.

A folding six or eight-foot rule is only eight inches long when closed. It is convenient and accurate. The ends are tipped with brass so they won't wear down and become inaccurate. To keep the rule from collapsing when open it is equipped with spring type locking joints. Keep these joints oiled and clean.

Even more convenient is the flexible steel rule that winds up into a two-inch case. A hook at the end of the rule makes it easy to use. Get one with a flat rather than round case, one that has a movable hook for inside and outside measuring. For inside measurement just add the length of the case.

USE A METAL scriber or a knife or a very sharp pencil to mark a line once it is determined. Dull pencils make lines so thin they aren't accurate.

Use a try square to check the square-

Do it yourself

ness of a joint or a board. The combination square is good for both 90 degree and 45 degree angles.

A sliding T-bevel is a try square with an adjustable blade for angles from 0 to 180 degrees and is used with a protractor to get the proper angle.

If you are putting something up against a wall don't try to get a vertical line by measuring from one adjacent wall to the other. Use a plumb bob, a weight hung by a string, to get a truly vertical line.

OTHER TOOLS to consider: calipers for measuring round objects. Inside calipers measure the inside of a hole. Outside calipers the outside of a round surface. A divider or compass for marking small arcs and circles or measuring equal distances along a line. A compass has two steel points. A compass has a steel point and a pencil.

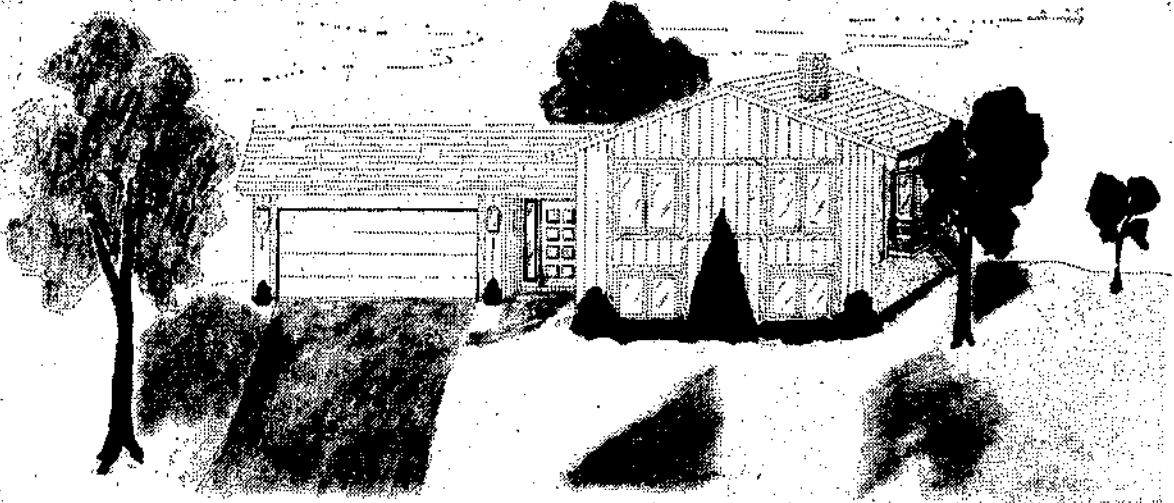

Don't try to draw a long line. Use a chalk line. A piece of string rubbed with blue chalk is stretched between two points. Lift it slightly and then snap it against the surface and you have a straight line. Floor tile and wall tile will be set accurately if placed against such a line.

HOBBIES

For The Fun Of It!

This Souvenir Card is issued in compliment to everyone who enjoys a hobby and to the Hobby Industry and its Convention at Chicago.

E. T. Krasner
Postmaster General

THE COPYING OF THIS PRINT IS RESTRICTED BY TITLE 18, U.S.C., WHICH PROHIBITS THE UNAUTHORIZED REPRODUCTION, IN WHOLE OR IN PART, OF CURRENCY, POSTAGE STAMPS, OR OTHER SECURITIES OF THE UNITED STATES.

Souvenir-card issue honors hobbyists

The U.S. Souvenir Card honoring hobbyists was issued Feb. 3 in Chicago at the National Hobby Industry Trade Show.

It features a message from Postmaster General E. T. Krasner and a reproduction of a block of four stamps issued in 1972 showing colonial craftsmen at work.

The card is available for $1 each plus a 50-cent handling charge from the Philatelic Sales Division, Washington, D.C. 20036.

CURIOSITY SURVEY No. 3: The results from 11 readers. Four named the Boston Tea Party block of four stamps as

Despite the early controversy surrounding the Postal People issue and the black-blotting of it by the American Philatelic Society, the ten stamps in that issue did not garner any least-liked votes. That's surprising, as is the apparent dislike of the Electronics issue.

Anyway, it was fun and our thanks to all who participated in Curiosity Survey No. 3.

TO P.G. OF MOUNT PROSPECT: The U.S. Postal Service does not release official first day covers but collectors can request the number of stamps to be affixed to covers they submit — as in the case of collectors wishing each of the Christmas stamps placed on one envelope. Your best bet now would be to check with your local stamp dealer and see if he has any of these available.

The Postal Service did release 1973 mini-albums containing all the commemorative stamps issued during the year. The Mount Prospect Post Office however reported that their stock has been sold out, although the Philatelic Sales Division, Washington, D.C. 20036 may still have them.

The cost is $3 per album.

WILLIAM BLATT will discuss various stamp-related topics at the next meeting of the Northwest Suburban Stamp Club, Wednesday, Feb. 20. The group meets at 7:30 p.m. at St. Mark's Youth Center, 205 S. Wille, Mount Prospect. Visitors are welcome.

Yes, you can still deduct state gas taxes

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service.

Ask the IRS

Q. Can you still deduct state gasoline taxes on your federal income tax return?

A. Yes. If you itemize on your 1973 return, state and local taxes on gasoline, diesel fuel, and other motor fuels are deductible if they are separately stated and passed on to the consumer. Use the table in your Form 1040 instructions to determine your deduction.

Q. Is there a "revenue-sharing" question on 1973 returns?

A. For purposes of revenue sharing, the only information you have to give on your return is your county of residence. See the instructions for either Form 1040 or Form 1040A.

Q. My son earned more than $750 last year. Can I still claim him as a dependent?

A. If, regardless of his age, your son was a full-time student for some part of each of any five months of 1973 or was less than 19 years old at the end of the year, you can claim him as a dependent regardless of how much money he made. Of course, all other dependency tests must be met, including furnishing more than one-half of your son's total support.

Q. What happened to Schedule B of my tax form — the schedule I used to detail interest and dividend income?

A. Schedule B has been eliminated, since a detailed listing of dividends and interest is no longer required. Simply report your total dividend and interest income in the space provided on the front of your Federal income tax return.

Of course, you should still keep a record of your individual dividend and interest receipts.

Q. I received a short form 1040A in the mail. How can I tell if I should use this short form or the long form 1040?

A. If you received a short form 1040A in the mail, it was sent to you based on the return you filed last year. But your situation may have changed and you may save money by filing Form 1040 instead. This is especially true if your itemized deductions are substantial, or if you are eligible for the retirement income credit. Just use the short formula set out in your Form 1040A instructions to help determine whether your tax could be lower if you itemized deductions.

EVERYBODY STOPS TO READ THE HERALD WANT ADS!

USE CLASSIFIEDS

A girl can dream, can't she?

This time you're absolutely going to save something out of your paycheck. But, then, you really do need that pantsuit, a new coat and, of course, that perfume Eric likes so much.

Before you know it, the money's gone... and all you've got saved are your dreams.

That's why the Payroll Savings Plan is such a good idea for a single girl. When you join, an amount you specify is set aside from your check and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. And, it's all done before you get your check—so you can't help but save.

And then you'll find those Bonds a solid investment for the future, if your dream man ever gets serious.

And if he doesn't—well, at least you'll have a little travel fund stashed away. Who knows you might meet on that wonderful cruise?

Either way, U.S. Savings Bonds can help a girl keep dreaming... and every girl needs to dream.

Clean your humidifier regularly

Now, during the energy crisis, efficient operation of your home humidifier can be more important than ever to your family's comfort, according to Walter R. Stiles, vice president/general manager of Skutumpah Manufacturing Co., a producer of residential humidifiers.

"With our country facing the necessity for conserving energy, all of us have been asked to turn down our heating thermostats this winter, but adequate humidification will make your home more comfortable, even at the recommended 68-degree level," Stiles pointed out, explaining that an indoor relative humidity level of 30 to 35 per cent adds to personal comfort by reducing the chilling effect of moisture evaporation from the skin which can result from too-dry air in the home.

In addition to the comfort angle, a properly maintained humidifier will protect your furniture and home furnishings from the effects of dried-out air, and will help banish those annoying shocks you get from static electricity in winter.

The key to efficient operation of your humidifier is regular periodic maintenance — and you don't have to call a service man to take care of it, unless you let it go too long without attention, Stiles said.

No matter what type of residential humidifier you own, it should be cleaned before the heating season begins. During the season, frequency of cleaning depends on the "hardness" of the water in your area. Generally, humidifiers evaporating water with a high mineral content need cleaning more often. All humidifiers, however, should be cleaned at least once during the winter, in addition to the pre-season servicing.

Failure to perform routine maintenance periodically permits mineral deposits to build up to a point where not only is the unit's efficiency decreased but it becomes necessary to call your dealer for service. It may also require other moving parts, although a protective clutch on some of the newer power humidifiers protects against damage in such situations.

Here are a few tips for cleaning your humidifier. They are usually included in the owner's manuals, and apply to the major types of furnace-mounted models, as well as to console portables:

First, for any furnace-mounted model, shut off the water supply and turn the electrical switch or humidistat to "off."

If you have a plate-type (non-power) unit, the fiberglass evaporator plates should be removed and replaced at least once each season — more frequently if you have hard water. The water pan, plate racks, and water control valve all should be washed. You can use a liquid humidifier cleaner or a 50/50 solution of vinegar and water for cleaning; let it stand in the pan for a while.

The liquid humidifier cleaner is offered by most humidifier manufacturers through dealers, as are humidifier tablets which may be placed in the water pan while the humidifier is operating. They hold accumulated mineral deposits in solution to make cleaning easier, and also help control some odors.

The popular drum-type, furnace-mounted power humidifiers use a rotating drum covered by an evaporator pad to produce humidity. During normal operation, lime deposits accumulate on the pad. This shows that the unit is working as it was designed to work, removing mineral deposits from the water while producing water vapor, thus preventing mineral dust from being distributed through the house.

To clean these units, take the drum out, remove the evaporator pad and either clean or replace it. Either the liquid cleaner or the water-vinegar solution can be used, but if the pad has become too "caked" with hard minerals, you should replace it with a new one from your dealer. The water pan should be drained and cleaned.

The atomizing spray-type humidifier is another furnace-mounted unit. With this model, the critical element is the nozzle, which can become clogged with mineral deposits and fail to atomize properly. "We recommend that the spray nozzle be replaced at the start of each heating season to assure trouble-free operation," the executive said, "and you should watch during the winter for build-up of mineral deposits."

Valentine's Day

Funny or flowery, its message is love

by KAREN THOMPSON

Cupid's last stand?

Not quite. Although valentines have changed over the years, they are still lining the aisles at card shops the nation over with greetings of love for everyone from grandma to the family dog.

Legends differ on how Valentine's Day actually got started. One of the most popular is the story of St. Valentine, a Roman priest who was imprisoned for assisting Christian martyrs. While awaiting execution, he formed a friendship with the blind daughter of the jailer, whose sight he was said to have restored. His farewell message to her on the day of his beheading, Feb. 14, the year 270, was signed "From Your Valentine," hence Valentine's Day.

OTHERS SAY the Romans noted Feb. 14 as the day when birds choose their mates. Or, there is the tale about the pagan days of Rome when young people asked "Who shall my beloved be?" annually at the feast of Lupercalis, where, in honor of their god Pan and goddess Juno, they drew names from an urn to learn the name of their beloved for the year. That lottery was held each year in February.

Despite the beginnings, Valentine's Day is an old tradition, almost as powerful as cupid's bow and arrow.

The earliest valentines were made entirely by hand. Most often they were personally delivered to a lady's doorstep, sometimes even containing a proposal of marriage.

"It is the summer of my life,
Yet I grow older every year;
It's time, I think, to take a wife
Without delay. What think you, dear?"

Examples of artistic talent and excellent taste, early valentines were mulled over and labored on for months, not forgotten and picked up at the last minute as so often happens today. Those were the days when penmanship was a cultivated art and Valentine's Day was a perfect excuse to display it.

VERSES, TOO, were original. Think of the hours that went into the composition of this one entitled "On Paragon of Excellence." Note that the first letter of each line spells out the name of the sought-after lady, Anne Thacher. It was written about 1750 near Philadelphia. Pure mush you say? Not in those days.

"All hail fair vestal, lovely gift of heaven,
Nourished in prudence and in wisdom given.

Neglect not this small present from a friend,
Esteem commences where fierce passions end.

Transcendent Fair respondent star approve,
His pleading reasons who thus seeks your love,

Accept his proffers, take his heart in care.
Cherish his passion in a modest sphere,

How then will heaven our constancy command.
Empyrean bounties happy moments send,
Refulgent blisses crown us to our end."

Not all old-time valentines were sent in love. Take this terse verse from one of cupid's poison arrows sent around 1830.

"Ods bobs, I'll never wed with you,
And leave my rosy smiling Sue.
With all thy self, thou shan't be mine,
Thou ugly, wrinkled valentine."

TO A POMPOUS enemy might go this gem of a jingle.

"You shouldn't hold your head too high,
You are not such a famous guy,
You only think of pride and pelf,
And ought to go down yourself."

By 1850, the love of hand-creating valentine masterpieces had mostly disappeared and with the beginning of the Industrial Revolution the lace-edge variety took over and books of verses made it a cinch for even the not too clever sender.

One of the more eye-catching cards of this era was the heart with a loop in the middle. A place for the inevitable lock of hair.

For the past hundred years, there have been more fads and fashions for the love-lorn on Feb. 14, most of which are congered and pondered by writers who are paid to think (365 days a year) of verses appropriate for the 2 billion people who purchase valentines in the U. S. each year.

RELATIVELY NEW on the scene are the studio cards — sentiment expressed candidly with humor.

"Let me call your sweetheart . . .
I keep forgetting your name."

One tempting character on the rack reads: "How about a nice big fat kiss on Valentine's Day?" Open it and you find the biggest kiss on the market — a burly purple hippo complete with puckered lips.

The sentimental numbers are still there. Gold leaf, velvet ribbons, sparkle and even a pink satin stuffed heart adorn this romantic version.

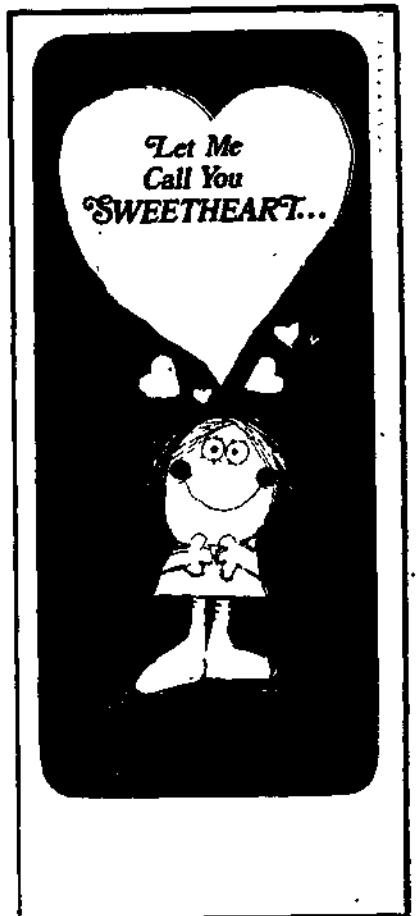

"How do I love thee?

Let me count the ways."

Ecology has even hit the va-

COMIC VALENTINES often are selected for an understanding friend . . . or one with a good sense of humor. The kicker comes when it's opened.

lentine market. Replacing some of the glitter and satin are scenes of nature — a couple walking alone on the beach or out in the woods riding bicycles.

"I love you sweetheart . . . yesterday, today and tomorrow."

They all say "I care," but in a different tone. Consider "A reminder to my husband."

"Gee! I'm glad I gotcha,
To FUSS at now and then,
To FIGHT with when I'm in the mood,

To MAKE-UP with again.
To scheme with and to dream with,
And to have GOOD TIMES with too.

Gee! I sure am tickled
That I FELL IN LOVE WITH YOU."

The handmade variety have been left to the youngsters in school, the real lace is gone and the verses are written by someone else, but the thought is still there — and it's the same — love. Valentine's Day is here to stay.

ART DECO valentine of 1920s features real hair. This one also belongs to Mrs. Mary Low Starkey.

ELABORATE STAND-UP valentines were favored in the 1920s and '30s. There was no mistaking the feelings of the sender either. These were saved from childhood days by Mrs. Mary Low Starkey, Arlington Heights.

MODERN VERSION of a valentine combines old and new . . . sentiment and an ecology message in its design. It's suitable for either sex.

New AAUW branch forming

Women college graduates interested in forming a branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) in Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg and surrounding areas are invited to attend an organizational meeting Tuesday night.

The meeting will convene at 8 p.m. in the office of Rich Port, Realtor, 26 N. Roselle Road, Schaumburg.

A representative from the state division of AAUW will explain the purposes, policies and program of the national organization which has more than 1725 branches in every state, the District of Columbia and Guam and some 170,000 members. She will also provide assistance in the organizing process.

THE AAUW, explained Mrs. Judy Lyons, Schaumburg, is dedicated to enabling college women to continue their intellectual growth and to further the advancement of women as well as encouraging contributions of the educated to society. It also encourages high standards of education.

When AAUW was founded some 90 years ago, membership was restricted to graduates of colleges and universities with high academic standards, a sound liberal education, women on its faculties and in administrative posts, adequate provisions for women students and intellectual freedom, according to Mrs. Lyons. Today all regionally accredited American colleges and universities meet its requirements and are on AAUW's membership eligibility list, she said.

Graduates interested in becoming charter members of the proposed local branch of AAUW may contact Mrs. Lyons, 885-8025, or Ruth Jones, 837-8755.

Multiple pricing no violation

Grocery items which have more than one price stamped on them are not in violation of pricing regulations, contrary to recent reports.

At least one Chicago newspaper has erroneously reported that supermarkets are not allowed to mark up the price of merchandise already on the shelves.

According to John Demme, public information officer for the Price Stabilization Office of the Internal Revenue Service, the question of multiple pricing came up during an impromptu press conference following a recent speech by a price stabilization official.

THE OFFICIAL TOLD reporters he thought multiple pricing might be a violation of price control regulations, Demme said, but upon checking, found that it is not a violation.

However, the official's original comment was already being published by that time and has resulted in a great deal of confusion, Demme said.

As for the several prices on a single grocery item, Demme explained that it may result from "averaging." When a retailer, who has an item on the shelf at a given price, receives a new delivery of that item at a higher price, he may take the average of the old and new prices and stamp that on all his stock.

Or, if a retailer uses an item as a "loss-leader" — that is, features it at special low price for a few days — he may then mark unsold stock back up to its original price.

AS OF MARCH 6, consumers will be able to get full refunds on over a thousand banned toys and other hazardous products.

However, many of the items were banned so long ago that they are no longer in homes. The commission expects the real impact of the refund ruling to be felt in future product bannings.

Under the rules retailers will be required to post a list of banned items previously offered for sale and procedures for customers to get their money back. Consumers are entitled to refund of the full retail price plus "reasonable transportation expenses" incurred in returning the item.

The consumer

However, if consumers can't produce a sales slip or other proof of purchase, they still may have to go to small claims court to get a refund.

The refund ruling will not affect some 13 brands of aerosol spray adhesives, which were banned last year but are due to be removed from the banned list a few days before the refund ruling takes effect. The commission ruled the adhesives do not pose a danger to unborn children, although a Philadelphia couple has filed suit against one of the manufacturers, charging its product caused birth deformities in their infant son.

A CHICAGO DISCOUNT carpet dealer, Carpet Bazaar, Inc., 7050 Cermak Rd. in Berwyn, this week was ordered by the Federal Trade Commission to stop making deceptive advertising claims.

The FTC challenged such claims as: "Carpet your entire home regardless of the number of rooms — $549 buys it all." "... Save 29-57% today on 3,000 first quality remnants;" "Reg. $219 — $68, Reg. $118 — $59."

The FTC charged that the dealer misrepresented the amount of floor space that could be covered for $549 and misrepresented the regular price of carpet remnants and rugs.

Consumers can take steps to protect themselves from similar deceptions by calling the Better Business Bureau before making a purchase. If the BBB has had many unresolved complaints against a dealer, it could well be he is not living up to his promises.

If you find that any retailer has made advertising claims which he then will not or can not fulfill, you should notify the Consumer Fraud Division of the Illinois Attorney General's office or the FTC.

Masking tape seals pipes

Dear Dorothy: I may have a tip for those who (like me) live in apartments and so become alert when an insect appears anywhere. I saw a strange-looking bug on the bathroom floor and got rid of it at once. Several days later I found two more in the bathtub and promptly worried. I got them into a plastic container and dropped it off at a pest control place. They identified the insect as the saw-toothed grain beetle and said I was lucky they hadn't got into the kitchen.

I arranged for spraying but, in examining the bathroom, I noticed the collars on the three pipes leading into the bathroom were loose. I put masking tape under and around every collar — tightly. It's been a month now and no sign of the saw-toothed grain beetle to disturb my psyche. —H. Yarmouth

Dear Dorothy: Do you know anything to prevent those horrid rusty-looking spots that get on white materials packed away in trunks or drawers? — Mary E. Cornette

These spots shouldn't form if the material is laundered thoroughly, rinsed and dried and packed in airtight containers — and that means really airtight. But this isn't easy and so the spots are not uncommon. They come as the result of fumes and sometimes residual elements in the material turning dark. Fortunately, they are usually eliminated by a good laundering.

Dear Dorothy: Many bake potatoes wrapped in aluminum foil and I've found that carrots do well baked the same way. I give them a good scrubbing with a brush, sprinkle on seasoned salt, then wrap in foil and bake for about 30 to 40 minutes — whenever the oven is on for something else. Not only do I not waste

Guidance for gardeners seeking unusual plants

If my husband wouldn't find out, I'm sure I could spend our life savings on seeds, spring plants and equipment. He says I read the spring flower catalogs more religiously than I read the Bible.

One reason is to have the information ready for you, my readers. If someone is searching without success for a source of a hard-to-find seed, wants to replace some treasure that died or desires a sentimental favorite that mother used to grow, I want to have the "where-to-find it" scoop at my fingertips. Why not write me at Paddock Publications, Box 290, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006, if you are playing hide-and-seek with some special elusive seed or plant? And, whenever you do write, be sure to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Speaking of nostalgia — the Spring Hill Nursery people have in their current catalog Chinese lanterns, canterbury bells, clarkia seeds, heath, and bleeding hearts — how apropos for Valentine's Day. Or you can have a primrose path leading up to your doorway with primrose plants. Spring Hill is located in Tipp City, Ohio 45366.

YOU CAN GET salsify, parsnips, harts, snow-on-the-mountain from Jung Seed Co., Randolph, Wis. 53956.

It costs $2 for a catalog from Wayside Gardens, 613 Mentor Ave., Mentor, Ohio 44060, but this catalog is practically an encyclopedia of gardening. Besides, the $2 is applicable towards the price of plants you buy from them. There are 88 pages of perennials alone.

Would you believe a rose-scented catalog? From Jackson and Perkins, the rose people, who else? The J & P catalog offers 18 varieties of tree roses and what particularly caught my eye was a bi-color hybrid tea (not available in tree form, however) called "Snowfire." This beauty is red on the inside of each petal, white on the outside — quite stunning-looking.

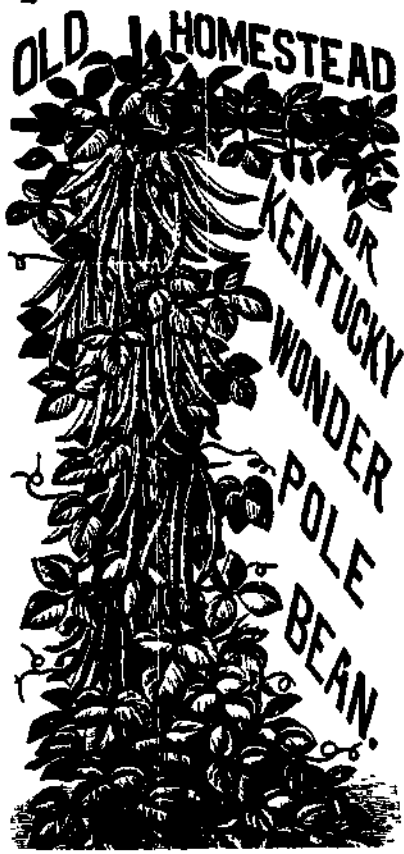

If you have a yen for roses but have trouble keeping them alive over the winter, consider miniature roses. Most grow in a five-inch flower pot, or, do as I do, grow them in a strawberry barrel. Both pot or barrel can be brought indoors for the winter. Moore's Miniature Roses, 2519 E. Noble Ave., Visalia, Calif. 93277, is one source.

AS FOR OTHER specialists, Stark Bros., Louisiana, Mo. 63353, is noted for its fruit trees; Schreiner's Gardens, 3621 Quinby N.E. Salem, Ore. 97303, for iris (catalog 50 cents); Three Springs Fisheries, Lilypons, Md. 21717, for water lilies and aquatic plants (and they sell alligators too); and, of course, Thon's Garden Mums, Crystal Lake, Ill. 60014.

Shumway Seedsman in Rockford, Ill., 61101 offers mushroom spawn, okra seeds, corn and cucumbers galore, among other things. I hope they never drop their interesting old etchings of

by Mary B. Good

INTERESTING OLD etchings used as illustrations in Shumway Seed catalog are an annual treat for nostalgic gardeners. One clever gardener made a collage of the illustrations and gave it decoupage treatment.

vegetables from their catalog. That section of the catalog goes way back. The Shumway people say that onion sets are going to be very scarce this year and suggest customers order onions early. That being the case, it might not be a bad idea to plant for re-sale. Lots of home gardeners find easy-to-sell extra money crops in their own backyard surplus vegetable patch.

Next week, I'll tell you where you can pick up mangels, bird-of-paradise, calla lilies, kudzu and others. Every year, someone always asks, "Where can I find scented geraniums?" so stay tuned for that information and much more.

Spares to cavort at cupid's party

"Cupid's Cavort" is the title of a Valentine party for the Spares Sunday Evening Club, taking place Saturday evening at the Cedar Run-44 Clubhouse, Route 83, Wheeling.

This is a fancy dress affair for the Spares, an area group of single, widowed, divorced and legally separated adults. Tickets are $6 and may be reserved by calling Marge Hancock, Mount Prospect, at 259-5960.

Among the committee members are Jan McGraw, Mount Prospect, and Bob Lehmann, Des Plaines.

Annual meeting for gardeners

The annual meeting of District II, Garden Club of Illinois, will be held Monday, Feb. 25, at the Northshore Hilton Hotel in Skokie.

Following lunch Mrs. Jerome Theander of Mount Prospect will present an interpretative program, "Blow Your Mind," covering modern, abstract, kinetics and the use of lighting.

Mrs. Eugene Tamillo of Des Plaines, president of the Garden Club of Illinois, will be greeting guests and telling of meetings in six other districts which she has attended.

The program will also include a horticulture program and a show and tell of the Punch and Judy puppet show being shown in elementary schools.

Reservations and checks at $6.50, payable to the Garden Club of Illinois, are due next Monday with Mrs. Dale Schaffner, 243 Hampton Court, Palatine, 60067.

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

AND EVERYTHING NICE ABOUT FOOD

Sweet Bread Valentine

Valentine's Day is the most sentimental day of the year. It's hearts and flowers, lacy paper Valentines, garlands and cupids. It's the day, according to Chaucer, "... when every foul cometh to choos his mate."

Since something sweet to eat is the proverbial way to a man's heart, homebaked cakes and breads are a tradition on this day. Usually festive in appearance, they are often shaped into hearts, decorated with frosting drizzled into a lacy pattern, or filled with cherries — the favorite fruit flavor for the day.

A rich sweet dough filled with dark sweet cherries and topped with a crumbly cheese mixture makes an irresistible Valentine's Day dessert. Cherry Cheese Kuchen is prepared by the Rapidmix method which eliminates the step of dissolving yeast in warm water. Instead, undissolved yeast is treated as a dry ingredient and added with some of the flour, sugar and salt. In addition, the method calls for initial beating with an electric mixer, which not only saves work but makes doughs lighter and easier to handle.

No man will be able to resist the warm yeasty fragrance and flavor of homebaked Cherry Cheese Kuchen. If desired, it may be served with whipped cream or ice cream on top.

CHERRY CHEESE KUCHEN

- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup unsifted flour
- 2 tablespoons margarine, softened
- $1\frac{1}{2}$ to 2 cups unsifted flour
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt
- 1 package active dry yeast
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup milk
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup water
- 6 tablespoons margarine
- 1 egg (at room temperature)
- 1 can (17-ounce) dark sweet pitted cherries, drained

Combine light brown sugar, Cheddar cheese, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup flour and 2 tablespoons softened margarine in small bowl. Mix well; set aside.

In a small bowl thoroughly mix $\frac{1}{2}$ cup flour, sugar, salt and undissolved dry yeast.

Combine milk, water and remaining 6 tablespoons margarine in saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are very warm (120 - 130 degrees). Margarine does not need to melt. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add egg and $\frac{1}{2}$ cup flour, or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff batter. Spread mixture into a well-greased 9-inch square pan. Place cherries on top of batter; sprinkle cheese mixture evenly over cherries. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Bake at 350 degrees about 40 minutes, or until done. Remove from pan and cool on wire rack. Makes one 9-inch square cake.

SWEETHEART COOKIES

- 1 cup butter or margarine, softened
- 2 3-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 tablespoon baking powder
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped walnuts

Pink Frosting:

- 2 cups sifted confectioners sugar
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
- 4 teaspoons milk
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon vanilla extract
- 2 to 3 drops red food coloring

Beat together butter and cream cheese until creamy; add sugar and vanilla; beat again. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add to creamed mixture. Stir in oats and walnuts; mix well. Chill several hours or overnight.

Divide into 1-inch balls. To shape into hearts, press to flatten slightly. Pinch bottom end together to form point. With index finger press dough from top edge towards point to make indentation in top of heart. Place on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven 12 to 15 minutes. Cool. Makes 4 dozen cookies.

For frosting, combine sugar, butter, milk and vanilla. Beat until smooth. Add food coloring; blend well. Frost cooled cookies.

Mrs. John Lasoki

by LOIS SEILER

To please her husband, Mrs. John Lasoki of Schaumburg learned to cook in the Polish manner. Much to her delight, she discovered that she enjoyed these dishes as much as John. Although of German descent, Betty Lasocki's specialties have become Polish recipes such as the Pierogi and Crullers featured today.

Pierogi consists of small pastry rounds which may be filled with mashed potatoes, sauerkraut, ground beef or fresh plums. They are rolled in melted butter, fried and eaten hot.

"The pierogi is hearty and a salad is the only accompaniment needed," Betty said. However, it may be served as a side dish with Polish sausage, which Betty and John make themselves, or stuffed cabbage. As the recipe makes a large quantity, pierogi may be frozen after cooking and then fried when needed.

Crullers are a deep fried cookie or pastry made from a sweet, rich egg batter. The batter is rolled out, cut in strips, twisted and then fried in deep oil somewhat like a doughnut.

Crispy and delicious, crullers are sprinkled with powdered sugar. They will keep well for at least a week, but in the Lasocki home they never last that long. Betty serves the crullers for dessert or for coffee parties. This unusual ethnic treat, always makes a hit at neighborhood block parties.

A German recipe Betty obtained from her mother is a delectable apple pie baked in a paper bag. She makes a crust with butter, fills it with an apple mixture and sprinkles streusel on top. Inserted into a brown grocery bag, the pie is baked for an hour.

Rest assured, the bag will not burn and, according to Betty, the apples stay more moist cooked by this method yet the streusel will turn a golden brown. The pie may be served with ice cream, if desired.

All of these recipes are long-time favorites of the Lasocki's children. The family includes two sons, John, 19, Michael, 14, and a married daughter and her husband, Sandra and Jerry McCall of Westville, Ind., and two grandchildren.

PIEROGI

5 cups flour
4 eggs
1 1/2 cups milk
2 tablespoons soft butter
With floured hands, work the ingredients together until the dough no longer sticks to hands. Add more flour to hands if dough keeps sticking.

Cover dough for 15 minutes. Then cut off small pieces of dough and roll out each piece to a 4-inch round. Fill each with 1 heaping tablespoon of mashed potatoes, or sauerkraut, or ground beef browned with any seasoning or a whole plum with seed removed. Fold dough over and pinch edges or press edges with a fork.

Drop in boiling water. When pierogi rise to the top, boil about three minutes. Remove, drain and roll in melted butter. Freeze for later use or fry in butter and heat while hot. Makes five dozen.

CRULLERS

2 cups all-purpose flour
4 tablespoons powdered sugar
4 egg yolks
3/4 cup evaporated milk
(1 small can)
1 teaspoon vanilla or brandy
Put all ingredients into mixing bowl and beat with electric beater until well-mixed. Roll out until about 1/16-inch thick. Cut into 2-inch width strips. Then cut strips diagonally at each end so that each strip will be 4 to 6 inches in length.

Make a 1 to 1 1/2-inch slit lengthwise in the middle of each strip. Take one end and draw through slit to resemble a bow. Deep fry until golden brown in oil 1 1/2 inches deep in frying pan. Turn to brown on each side. Drain on absorbent paper. When cool, sprinkle with sifted powdered sugar. Makes from 2 to 3 dozen. Store in covered container.

APPLE PIE IN A BAG

Crust:

1 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 stick margarine (1/2 cup)
3 to 4 tablespoons cold milk
Sift flour baking powder and salt together once. With pastry blender, cut in shortening until it looks like coarse meal. Gradually add cold milk, working into dry ingredients with knife or your hands.

Turn out on floured pastry cloth and knead a few minutes until mixture holds together. Then roll out and put into a 9-inch pie plate. Flute edges.

Filling:

3 to 4 large baking apples
(about 2 1/2 lbs.)
1/2 cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Pare, core and slice apples. Toss apples to coat well with flour, sugar and nutmeg. Place into pie shell. Drizzle lemon juice over apples.

Topping:

1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup butter or margarine
With knife, cut butter into sugar and flour. Sprinkle topping over apple filling. Slide pie into a large brown paper bag. Fold ends over twice and secure with paper clips. Place on cookie sheet and bake at 425 degrees for one hour. Serves 6 to 8. Top with ice cream, if desired.

Guidelines for saving fuel

Commonplace habits in preparing food can be costly — not only in terms of wasted money but wasted energy. Food preparation usually involves the use of several heat producing appliances which require more energy generally, than motor-driven or motion appliances.

Wise usage of these appliances can save a great deal of energy, according to Extension Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

To conserve energy at the kitchen range start most foods at a higher temperature, then reduce the heat to maintain the desired cooking temperature. Use only utensils which fit the range burners or surface units. Remember, pans with flat bottoms will absorb more heat. Use tight fitting lids and place the utensil on the range before turning on the heat. If you have an electric range, food will usually continue to cook three to five minutes after unit has been turned off.

Another way to contribute to energy saving measures is to plan baking so that several dishes are cooked with one use of the oven.

With a little planning, you can cook all of a meal in the oven. Meat loaf, steamed carrots, scalloped potatoes and baked apples make a good oven meal. For a larger oven, fried chicken, baked rice, baked squash, and a hot fruit dish cook well together. Besides saving energy, oven meals require little watching, freeing your time for other things.

It's important to cook the protein dish — meat, for example — at the recommended temperature. But vegetables and most desserts can be cooked successfully at temperatures 25 degrees lower for a longer time or 25 degrees higher for a shorter time than recommended.

It takes about two to three times longer to cook left-over or canned vegetables

by Fran Heckart

In the oven than on a burner. But if the meat dish takes 45 minutes to cook, most vegetables cut in medium sized pieces and placed in a smaller amount of water in a tightly covered container will cook within that time.

Preheat the oven no longer than 10 minutes, as for cakes, pies or breads. Avoid preheating when not essential. For meats, turn off oven a few minutes before end of cooking time and let residual heat finish the cooking.

One-dish, top-of-the-stove meals may be another way to save fuel. Top-of-Stove Casserole is one easy recipe suggestion for conserving energy in the kitchen.

Chop one small onion and place in pan with one pound ground beef. Cook until meat is browned then drain fat. Add two cups canned tomatoes, one-half cup uncooked rice, one-half cup water and one tablespoon sugar. Cover and boil gently about 25 minutes until rice is tender. Add two and one-half cups cooked split peas, along with salt and pepper to taste. Heat slowly until hot. Makes about four servings.

Menu sunshine from pork platter

Watch a bleak winter day turn to bright sunshine when "Ol Sol" comes to the dinner table. This Sunburst Pork Chop Platter provides menu sunshine to warm up the dining scene. The chops and fruit kabobs share the broiler as well as the platter, making this a quick meal as well as a delicious one.

This appetizing platter is also a bright choice from the viewpoint of good nutrition.

SUNBURST PORK CHOP PLATTER

Place 6 pork chops, cut 1 to 1 1/2 inches thick, on rack in broiler pan so top of meat is 5 to 6 inches from heat. Broil 12 to 17 minutes, season with salt and pepper and turn. Before or while chops are broiling, prepare kabobs using 6 slices bacon, 12 prunes (plumped and pitted) and 2 oranges pared and cut in 6 wedges each. Thread 1 slice bacon back and forth on each of 6 5-inch skewers, threading 2 prunes and 2 orange wedges between the folds of bacon. Place kabobs on broiling pan after chops are turned and continue broiling until chops and bacon are done. Allow 6 minutes for kabobs on one side and 4 to 6 minutes on second side and allow 12 to 15 minutes for broiling second side of chops.

Refrigerate foods

Cooked food should not stand at room temperature for more than two or three hours — including preparation, storage and serving time.

Freezing does not destroy toxins or spores that cause them, but it prevents the germination and growth of spores that could lead to toxin production, says the Institute of Food Technologists' Expert Panel on Food Safety and Nutrition.

When you shop for food, buy fresh meat, poultry, fish, seafood, dairy products and frozen foods last so they won't warm up or begin to defrost before you reach home.

Don't place grocery bags on kitchen counters if they've been on the floor of our car. Or if you do unload that way, wash, rinse and dry the counters before you prepare food on them.

Put perishables away first when you get the groceries home. Prompt refrigeration or freezer storage prevents bacteria normally present in the food from growing.

With few exceptions, the average cost of food is increasing. Prices recorded on Monday show increases of four cents for ground beef and six cents for whole broiler-fryer chicken since Jan. 28. Only one of the four area stores surveyed stocked whole fryers on Monday although supplies are expected. The temporary shortage is related to the trucker's strike since many processing plants have stopped slaughtering until they have means of transportation. Exceptions to the increase are pork chops, down 16 cents, and frozen ocean perch filets which declined four cents. The average cost of bacon also declined one cent although prices still range from 98 cents to $1.65 per pound.

Individual store sales resulted in a decrease of six cents for the average cost of butter. However, other dairy products reflected slight increases.

Increases in produce prices are also related to the trucker's strike. Although hopefully only temporary, lettuce increased nine cents, celery, four cents, and potatoes, two cents. One cent increases were also recorded for tomatoes, pears and orange juice.

With the exception of a one-cent decline in corn flakes, cereals and dry groceries all reflected slight increases.

Prices are based on averages obtained from four area supermarkets to measure general trends.

Top quality recipes from famous restaurant

One of the most widely-read cookbooks in the nation, having gone through 30 printings, reflects the quality of cooking at an equally famous restaurant, Toll House Inn in Whitman, Mass. This place attracts more than a quarter million guests annually.

I share the sentiments expressed by Author Ruth Wakefield in the foreword of Toll House Cookbook (Popular Library, New York). "I still believe in small quantity cooking. I feel it is the only way to flavor, consistency, and general high quality, especially in baking."

Here are some of the top favorites of those who dine at Toll House Inn. For a cocktail, Fruit Shrub, a Wakefield heirloom. Combine one cup raspberry, grape or cranberry juice, with 1-fourth cup fresh lemon juice, one-half cup orange juice, one-half cup syrup from spiced fruit such as peaches or watermelon rind. Add one tablespoon rum. Serves three to four.

Toll House Onion Soup also rates highly with guests. Peel and slice one pound onions. Saute in four tablespoons butter. When browned, sprinkle with one tablespoon flour and stir until well blended. Slowly add six cups rich chicken broth or beef stock, stirring until smooth. Salt and pepper to taste. For each individual serving, float on top a slice of French bread, sprinkled with parmesan cheese and toasted in the oven. Serves eight.

RING-TUM-DIDDY is a popular supper snack. In the top of a double boiler melt two tablespoons butter. Blend in one tablespoon flour. Add one cup tomato soup, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, and two cups finely cut sharp Cheddar cheese. Stir until cheese is melted. Add one beaten egg. Cook until thickened, about four minutes.

Serve the rarebit over squares of toast or heated crackers. Enough for four.

For a delectable dessert, try Toll House Chocolate Icebox Cake. In top of double boiler melt two squares chocolate. Add one-half cup sugar, one-fourth cup

Cranberry pockets are party perfect

A variation on a ham sandwich or finger food for a meeting of the bridge club is called "Cranberry Pockets." Pockets are made simply using slices of bread, boiled ham and jelly cranberry sauce. Bake in oven until crusty.

CRANBERRY POCKETS

- 1 loaf white bread, crusts trimmed (1 pound loaf)
- 1 cup butter or margarine, melted
- 12 to 14 boiled ham slices
- 1 can (8 ounces) jellied cranberry sauce
- Toothpicks

With a rolling pin flatten the slices of trimmed bread until thin and flexible. Brush one side with butter. Trim ham slices so they are the same size as the slices of bread. Put ham slices on top of buttered side of bread. Cut cranberry sauce into 1/2-inch thick slices and cut each slice into halves. Place one half on top of each slice of ham. Fold over to make a triangular shaped pocket. Fasten 2 corners together with a toothpick. Brush both sides of pockets with remaining melted butter. Bake in 400-degree oven for 16 to 18 minutes or until pockets are brown and crusty.

Hawaiian Sweetheart Rolls

Sweet rolls with pineapple a perfect choice for brunch

Hawaiian Sweetheart Rolls are a nice variation on the classic fruited coffee cake. Served warm from the oven, they are the perfect choice for a Valentine's Day breakfast, brunch, coffee break or dessert.

Quick yeast dough is rolled into a rectangle, spread with a filling of canned crushed pineapple, sugar, butter and a touch of orange peel. Long edges are rolled toward each other then the dough is cut down the middle. When sliced for baking, the rolls are dollar-size, enough for two eight-inch pans. Finish with a light pineapple glaze.

HAWAIIAN SWEETHEART ROLLS

- 1 (1 pound 4 ounce) can crushed pineapple
- 1 cake or package yeast
- 1/2 cup hot milk
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 1/3 cup soft butter or margarine
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon almond extract
- 1 egg, lightly beaten
- 3/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour

Pineapple Filling
Glaze
Drain pineapple, saving syrup. Combine 1/2 cup syrup with yeast, and let stand until softened. Meanwhile, combine hot milk, sugar, butter, salt, nutmeg and almond extract. Add beaten egg, 2 cups flour, softened yeast and stir until all of flour is moistened, then beat until smooth. Gradually blend in remaining flour to make a soft dough. Cover, and let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk, about 1 to 1 1/2 hours. Meanwhile, prepare Pineapple Filling. When dough is risen, turn out onto lightly floured board, and roll to a rectangle about 12x18 inches. Spread evenly with Pineapple Filling. Roll up each lengthwise side to center of dough, then cut down center to make two rolls. Cut each into 1/4-inch slices. Place close together, cut-side down in two greased 8-inch heart-shaped pans (or in 8-inch square pans). Let rise until doubled, about 1 hour. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees) 30 to 35 minutes, until nicely browned. Turn out of pan, and drizzle with Glaze while warm. Makes two pans of rolls.

Pineapple Filling: Cream 1/4 butter or margarine with 1/2 cup sugar and 1 teaspoon grated orange peel. Mix in the well drained crushed pineapple.

Glaze: Combine 1 cup sifted powdered sugar with 4 teaspoons pineapple syrup and 1 teaspoon grated orange peel.

Purple dye is safe

Consumers will see the round mark of inspection stamped on meats in purple ink, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) says.

This is due to the USDA approving the first safe purple ink for market meat since the dye use formerly was removed from the market for safety reasons. The unsafe dye was banned last April. The new dye combines several dyes approved as safe.

Watch out for those beef bargains frequently offered by freezer operators. One questionable tactic sometimes used is to offer you a "half" of beef. The half then turns out to be the two forequarters of the carcass — hardly a "half" since most of the best cuts are in the hindquarters, and the front end of the animal has more unusable fat and bone.

It's slip-'n'-slide time on roads again

Icy roads and sudden fog caused multiple car crashes throughout the Northwest suburbs yesterday morning. On one stretch to Ill. Rte. 72 between Ill. Rte. 53 and Arlington Heights Road, eight cars were caused damage during the morning rush hour. In all, county sheriff's police were called on 50 minor incidents in the northern half of Cook County.

In this accident scene, police said what looked like a long pile up of automobiles on Higgins Road was really a series of two-car crashes that tied up traffic and added to the foggy morning blues.

For a full rundown of yesterday's accidents, see Page 8.

Senate committee hearing indicates more trouble ahead

by KAREN BLECHIA

At least one thing is certain about the severe gasoline shortage in Chicago and the suburbs: it will continue.

Officials of major oil companies testified at Senate Commerce Committee hearings in Chicago yesterday that the gas shortage in this area will last through February and possibly longer. The shortage, they said, will go on despite between 6 to 7 million additional gallons of gasoline expected to be funneled to the Chicago area from the State of Illinois' reserves.

The hearings, in the federal building in Chicago, were called in an effort to head off another gasoline marketing squeeze like the one that occurred during the last week of January. Sen. Adlai Stevenson

III, D-Ill., who chaired the hearings, said testimony would help the commerce committee determine whether changes in government or industry policy are needed to avert another squeeze.

OTHER TESTIMONY at the five-hour-long hearings showed

• Chicago and its suburbs are experiencing a much more severe gasoline shortage than the rest of Illinois.

• Officials of the Federal Energy Office (FEO) and the Illinois State Fuel Allocation Office do not have enough information on available oil supplies to design a workable allocation plan for the Chicago area.

• Oil company officials, consumers and gasoline dealers blame each other for the long lines and waits to buy gas.

Oil company representatives also criticized the media for causing "panic buying."

"There is no question that the problems of January will continue," said Charles A. Walsh, Jr., vice president of Atlantic Richfield Co. "As of Feb. 11 in Chicago, 83 per cent of our allocated gallons for the month had been delivered to dealers. As of the 11th, 10 per cent of our dealers had taken their total allocation for the month."

Even if the Arab embargo on oil is lifted, Walsh said, it would take 60 to 90 days until the crude oil starts flowing into U.S. refineries.

H. RINKEMA, regional vice president of Amoco Oil Co., the largest individual supplier of gasoline in Illinois, said the demand for gas in the Chicago area is overwhelmingly heavier than the demand downstate. He said that in January, Amoco sold 39.6 million gallons of gas in the Chicago metropolitan area while it sold 10.9 million gallons in its Springfield district and 8.6 million gallons in its Rockford district.

On Jan. 29, he said 123 Amoco stations in the Chicago area were out of gas, while only three in the Springfield district and 12 in the Rockford district had the same problem.

"None of our work is bringing any more gas into Illinois," said James W. Cook, coordinator for the State Fuel Allocation Office. Cook said his office has

Gasoline by the numbers here?

by United Press International

Gov. Daniel Walker said Wednesday Illinois may join those states basing gasoline purchases on odd and even license plate numbers.

He said the system would be instituted only if the gasoline shortage continues or worsens and that in his view it would not be rationing.

"The odd-even way would be a way of cutting down long lines at gas stations and it would be fair," he said.

Walker also said some of a 12-million-gallon March allocation of gasoline pegged for Illinois priority users such as police, fire departments, hospitals and farm equipment users could go to the state's motorists.

"If we find that we don't need all that amount, I will do my utmost to divert some of it to other uses," he said.

Railroad may not allow annexation of tracks

Landfill scheme may trip on Soo Line right-of-way

by JOE FRANZ

Annexation of a proposed sanitary landfill from unincorporated Vernon Township into Buffalo Grove may have met a roadblock.

The Herald has learned that officials of the Soo Line R.R. are not sure they will allow annexation of their tracks as a means for making the landfill contiguous with the village.

G. T. Bergren, director of real estate for the Soo Line, said yesterday he is not sure what the railroad's decision will be on the annexation request. He said he has talked with one village official about the annexation, but so far no formal request has been made by the village or the landowners.

In most cases, Bergren said, the railroad is reluctant to enter into agreements with municipalities for annexation of its right-of-way. "Our general corporate policy on matters of this nature is not to take a position one way or another," he said. "However, if it's something everyone wants, we would try to cooperate with the community to accomplish it."

BEFORE A DECISION can be made on the annexation request, Bergren said the railroad must receive more information. "We will wait until a formal request is made, and then we will analyze it and make a decision on whether we will go along with it," he said.

Trustee Clarence Rech, chairman of a special committee studying the landfill proposal said yesterday she has mailed information to Soo Line officials concerning the annexation. Mrs. Rech, however, emphasized it is the responsibility of the landowner to arrange contiguity with the village.

Mrs. Rech said she was the official that contacted Bergren and after talking with him is pessimistic about the possibility of annexing the railroad tracks. "After talking with Mr. Bergren, I'm just about positive we can't annex them under any circumstances," she said. She will wait, however, until the railroad responds to her letter before commenting further.

IF THE RAILROAD prohibits annexation of its right-of-way, the only land that will connect the landfill with the existing village would be the Commonwealth Edison easement. Mrs. Rech, however, said that strip of land may be too narrow a corridor to make annexation legal.

Without the railroad tracks, the strip would be only about 210 feet wide at one point. According to one village official, courts very often require a corridor annexation to be at least 300 feet wide.

According to Village Mgr. Daniel Larson, if the railroad refuses to allow the village to annex its right-of-way, the land could still be annexed if a majority of landowners around the property voted to do so in a referendum. The village would have to show a need for the annexation in order for the courts to allow a referendum.

Mrs. Rech said her committee is almost finished studying the landfill proposal and will present its recommendations to the village board shortly. Before a recommendation is made, she said, the committee must resolve the question concerning the annexation of the railroad tracks. The village board is scheduled to consider the recommendation Feb. 25.

"IF THAT CORRIDOR annexation is not approved by the railroad, the whole landfill question might be moot," Mrs. Rech said. If the annexation is not approved, she said the committee will have done a lot of work for nothing.

According to Mrs. Rech, she did not look into the matter earlier because she was told by a number of village officials that annexing the railroad tracks would not be a problem.

The 96-acre tract proposed for the landfill is bordered on the south by Busch Road and is on both sides of the railroad tracks. It is north of Horatio Gardens and Pekara, both unincorporated areas. Some residents in those areas have raised objections to the landfill.

Browning-Ferris Industries Inc., the firm proposing the landfill, has said the site will be used for disposing of garbage for about 10 years. The firm has said it intends to comply with all local, state and federal regulations to prevent it from public nuisance or health hazard.

The firm, however, has said if the village cannot or will not annex the site, it will still go ahead with its plans after receiving a permit from the Environmental Protection Agency. The landfill can be operated legally without local or county approval, providing a permit is obtained.

Village stickers on sale tonight

The Buffalo Grove village hall will be open from 7 to 9 p.m. tonight for last-minute purchase of village stickers.

The deadline for displaying stickers on vehicle windshields is midnight tomorrow.

Motorists who fail to display stickers by the deadline will be fined $15 and required to purchase a sticker. The stickers are $10 each.

Village surveys residents on bus service expansion

Buffalo Grove is conducting a survey of residents to determine if it should consider extending public transportation to areas of the village not now served.

At present, commuter bus service between the Chicago and North Western Ry station and the Villa Verde and Mill Creek areas is provided each weekday morning and evening. However, no other areas are now served.

According to Village Mgr. Daniel Larson, the village is conducting the survey because it has received numerous inquiries about expanding service to other areas.

"The intent of the survey is to see if people want us to increase bus service to their areas. If there's enough demand the village board will look into expanding it," Larson said.

The survey was announced in this month's issue of the village newsletter. The village has set up a special answering service which will be maintained through tomorrow to handle residents' calls. Residents are urged to call 537-4200 to let their feelings be known on the public transportation question.

WHEN RESIDENTS call they should be prepared to answer the following questions:

- The area or subdivision and county where they live.
- The number of adults in the family.
- The number of teenagers in the family.

- Do they think the village should have a public transportation system?
- The type of service the family is most likely to use.

The types of service being considered by the village include railroad commuter service, village commuter service, dial-a-bus service and shopping shuttle service.

The railroad commuter service would be an expansion of that which is being operated between the train station in Arlington Heights and Villa Verde and Mill Creek area. The service would be operated during morning and afternoon rush periods and would meet specific trains.

The village commuter would be similar to the railroad service except that residents instead would be taken to and from destinations in the village or the surrounding area. The service might go as far as Wheeling, Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg.

THE DIAL-A-BUS service would provide door-to-door service to destinations within the village during non-rush hour periods. To get the service residents would have to call the bus company and request it. If the service is successful, village officials said it could be expanded to surrounding areas.

The shopping service would consist of shuttle buses to Randhurst, Woodfield and possibly the Hawthorn Center. Under the system, residents could take a dial-a-bus to certain transfer points where they could board the shopping shuttle.

Larson said the type of service the village will get will depend on the results of the survey.

According to village officials, an expanded transportation system would not only help residents, but would be an asset in attracting light industry and new residents to the village. Bus service would also reduce traffic congestion, the officials said.

Scanlon proclaims Wheeling VFW week

Wheeling Village Pres Ted C. Scanlon has proclaimed next week as VFW week in Wheeling, honoring VFW Post 7178.

The VFW chapter meets at 8 p.m. on the second Saturday of each month at Donovan's, Ltd., 393 S. Milwaukee Ave.

Builder tells of shakedown try by Stavros

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Former Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman James Stavros demanded a payoff to influence zoning for the Cedar Run development in Wheeling, The Herald has learned.

Stavros, under federal indictment in connection with alleged shakedowns of several other developers, made the payoff demand at a March 1970 meeting with a representative of Tekton Corp., developer of the 456-unit quadrominium project.

Company officials said the firm refused to go along with the shakedown attempt but one executive admitted hiring project subcontractors recommended by a village official in Wheeling.

THE TEKTON representative confronted by Stavros with the payoff demand agreed to provide information to The Herald on the condition that his name not be used.

The attempted extortion began five weeks after Tekton announced plans for construction of Cedar Run on the Horcher property north of McHenry Road and east of Buffalo Grove Road. Original plans for the project, announced Feb. 3, 1970, called for rezoning of the 40 acres from single-family residential use to planned unit development with a possible 12-story condominium building.

Stavros met with the Tekton representative in mid-March 1970 at the Black Ram Restaurant in Des Plaines.

"WE MET previously with school board and other local officials," the Tekton representative said. "We were seeking practical suggestions on how to proceed with an application for rezoning." The meeting with Stavros was brief. "I don't know if he (Stavros) even knew about the project. There was no question he was looking for money."

"It was like going to the candy store and asking for some JuJubes," the Tekton representative said. "The question was how much (zoning would cost). It was as simple as that."

The representative said that when national corporations plan a development, advice of local experts is sought in "informal" meetings. Stavros' demand for a payoff "really shocked me," the Tekton representative said.

The company flatly refused to give in to the Stavros demand, company sources said. "We've done nothing wrong," said David Zajick, a Tekton attorney.

"THE DIFFERENCE between our position and that of other individuals (developers) is that they made a cash payoff," said Lewis Wright, Tekton executive vice president.

"We gave all our records to the U.S. Attorney and the FBI. We opened our drawers to them," Wright said.

"We don't deny" that a payoff was demanded, Wright said.

Stavros was indicted two weeks ago by a federal grand jury on charges of extortion and conspiracy to commit extortion. Stavros, 3706 Whirlaway Dr., Northbrook, is charged with extorting from developers more than $111,000 plus real estate, water and sewer lines for his mother's house, liquor and a vacation for William Bieber, Wheeling planning and zoning director.

STAVROS' ATTORNEY, Joel Murray, said he is "totally unfamiliar with any charges other than those contained in the indictments. Mr. Stavros, acting on the advice of his counsel, is refusing to make any comment on any pending matter or on any matter that may be remotely connected with the indictments."

The only mention of Tekton in the six indictments returned Jan. 31 by a special federal grand jury involves Bieber and Rock Road Construction Co.

Bieber denied in grand jury testimony that he recommended hiring of certain subcontractors by developers. "The question is that you never recommended to any general contractor or any contractor in Wheeling that he use a subcontractor?" a U.S. attorney asked. "No, sir," Bieber answered.

The indictment charges Bieber lied when he denied urging Donald Buick of Tekton to "use Rock Road Construction Co."

WRIGHT acknowledged that an unnamed village official "did insist that we use certain subcontractors." However, Buick, who left Tekton in December 1973, said that he was not "coerced or influenced" to hire Rock Road.

Buick, interviewed last fall by an FBI agent, said, "I will not lie for the company, the village or the government. I can't prove a single thing. There were a lot of rumors."

Wheeling officials "never allowed me to buy them lunch," Buick said.

Rock Road was hired to pave Cedar Run streets, although the firm is not listed on the Tekton village building permit. "They did work for us in the past," Buick said.

ASST. U.S. ATTY. Steven Kadison said he will "stand by" the accuracy of the perjury indictment.

A second Cedar Run subcontractor, Dornas Plumbing Co., 106 E. Dundee Rd., also is mentioned in the Bieber perjury indictment. Roman Dornas, a Wheeling zoning board member in 1970 and a former trustee, was recommended by Bieber for Chesterfield Development Co. work, according to the indictment. Another Cedar Run subcontractor, village records show, was excavator Country Service and Supply Co., 3300 Milwaukee, Northbrook, which employs zoning board member Alan Martin.

Stavros and Bieber were both charged in one of the indictments with obtaining subcontracts with Ben Pekin Corp., developer of Tahoe Village, for Rock Road and Country Service.

After Stavros approached Tekton for a payoff, the firm hired attorney John M. Daley to handle its zoning case. Daley, a cousin of Chicago Mayor Richard Daley, became a Democratic ward committeeman in 1967 and sat on the county central committee with Stavros until Stavros resigned his committeeman post in November 1967.

Daley told The Herald he previously represented Tekton in other zoning cases, but he refused to name the projects. He said he did not discuss any extortion attempt with Tekton officials or with Stavros.

Wright said the firm did not meet the payoff demand "because you have your legal rights. The other builders could have stopped this in the beginning. It just took us a heck of a long time to get approval (of zoning)."

Village records indicate no abnormal delays.

Tekton received zoning board approval for the Cedar Run project April 15, 1970, about a month after Stavros' meeting with the Tekton representative.

The Wheeling Village Board unanimously approved zoning for the project July 15, 1970, when the project included 22 one-bedroom, 228 two-bedroom, 182 three-bedroom and 26 four-bedroom townhouses.

CEDAR RUN DEVELOPERS in Wheeling said the townhouse project was delayed by refusal to pay a kickback to former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman James Stavros. The developers, Tekton Corp. of Oak Brook, revealed that they were pressured to use subcontractors recommended by local officials.

IN DECEMBER, 1970, the village and Tekton agreed to split the $120,000 cost of Cedar Run's sewer and water system.

In April 1971, Tekton officials announced a change in project plans by switching to a 114 four-unit quad-home development. The final quadrominium plan was approved Sept. 29, 1971.

Wright said the U.S. Attorney's office "wants to make sure that they can get a conviction. Our case was simply not a strong enough violation of the Hobbs Act," which prohibits interference of interstate commerce by extortion.

Tekton officials later refused additional comment about the development. "It could well be that this investigation is continuing," said Robert Bagdassarian, a New York attorney representing Tekton. "I have advised my client not to comment."

CONSTRUCTION TRUCKS and workmen are filling the halls of Kildeer School in Long Grove, Dist. 96. The oldest building in the district was closed last January for extensive remodeling. Walls are being knocked out to adapt the school for the Individually Guided Education (IGE) program.

Remodeling 'ahead of schedule'

Kildeer School should be completed by December

by JILL BEITNER

Progress on the remodeling of Kildeer School in Long Grove Dist. 96 is ahead of schedule and work should be completed by December, according to Supt. William Hitzeman.

School officials first predicted it would take until January to finish the extensive remodeling of the district's first school, constructed nearly 90 years ago.

Walls are being knocked out and the school's learning center greatly expanded to redesign the building with more open space.

"Our main objective is to open the building in podular areas with the intent of helping us to individualize our program," Hitzeman said. The district two years ago adopted the Individually Guided Education (IGE) program which calls for tailoring instruction to fit the unique needs of each student.

THE OTHER TWO schools in the district, Willow Grove and Twin Groves in Buffalo Grove, are open space schools suited to the program.

Workmen have already begun excavating to enclose the central courtyard at the north end of the school. This will make the present library into an expansive, tiered learning center. Walls also are being removed between several classrooms along the north side of the school to create "pods." Some of these rooms will open directly onto the learning center that is to be carpeted and outfitted as a complete resource center.

The Kildeer remodeling began in January after the school was closed because the current enrollment in the district is not high enough to warrant the operation of all three schools.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS have said Kildeer will probably be reopened in the fall of 1975. Hitzeman said yesterday, however, depending on enrollment when the remodeling is finished, the school may open at that time.

Hitzeman said it is likely children in grades one through four or five will attend Kildeer School.

"Our past history indicates we will probably have more of an increase in enrollment in the primary grades than in junior high because of the age of families in the district," the superintendent said.

Local school census results

Results are beginning to come in from a census of School Dist. 21 residents conducted last fall to aid in projecting enrollments and identifying students with special needs.

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said yesterday some data has been returned from the Northwest Educational Cooperative computer center, which tabulated the results of the survey. He could not say, however, when a report on the census would be released.

The first census conducted by the district in 10 years, the survey was undertaken because changes in building patterns have made it difficult to estimate future enrollments.

The census will also determine how many students in the district need special instruction. In addition to measuring the number of children with mental or physical handicaps, the survey is also to reveal the number of local students who need bilingual instruction.

The census was taken by PTA and PTO members in each school attendance area in the communities served by Dist. 21, including Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and portions of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

Football program open house topic

The Wheeling Park Football Board will sponsor an open house at 7 p.m. Sunday to acquaint residents with plans for upgrading the park's football programs.

The new organization was formed to improve the boys' program and tackle football programs. The group is expected to become active in fund-raising for better equipment, and will also participate in coaching.

The open house will be at Neptune's Den, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd., and will include a presentation of the group's program and informal discussion. Refreshments will be served.

Board candidates can get petitions in school office

Prospective candidates for one of the three seats on the Dist. 96 school board that will be available this year may obtain petitions to participate in the April 13 election in the Dist. 96 business office at Kildeer School, Long Grove.

The petitions must be filed between Feb. 27 and March 22 and contain the signatures of at least 50 registered voters in the district.

The three-year terms of Buffalo Grove school board members Frank Clayton and Jim Duncan will expire this spring. A two-year term will also be available due to the resignation last fall of Jack Landau, also of Buffalo Grove.

Clarke Walser, 831 Twisted Oak Ln., Buffalo Grove was appointed by the school board two months ago to fill Landau's seat until the election.

Clayton, Duncan and Walser are the only persons to pick up petitions. Duncan and Walser confirmed that they plan to try to retain their posts. Clayton could not be reached for comment.

For the first time this year, school board candidates must present a receipt verifying that they have filed a statement of economic interests with the Lake County Clerk's office at the time petitions are filed. The statements of economic interest may be obtained from Dist. 96 Supt. William Hitzeman at Kildeer School.

To participate in the school board elections, candidates must be at least 21 years of age, a registered voter and resident of the district for one year.

Standiford Shattuck succumbs at 72

Standiford Shattuck, 72, a license enforcement officer or the Wheeling Building Department, died Tuesday night after a long illness at St. Therese Hospital, Waukegan.

Shattuck, 812 Old Willow Rd., had been on sick leave from the village since Dec. 28, 1973. He first joined the department in July, 1972.

Funeral services will be at 11 a.m. Saturday in Brazil, Ind. with arrangements being handled by the Moore Funeral Home. He is survived by his wife, Ruth.

It's slip-'n'-slide time on roads again

Icy roads and sudden fog caused multiple car crashes throughout the Northwest suburbs yesterday morning. On one stretch to Ill. Rte. 72 between Ill. Rte. 53 and Arlington Heights Road, eight cars were caused damage during the morning rush hour. In all, county sheriff's police were called on 50 minor incidents in the northern half of Cook County.

In this accident scene, police said what looked like a long pile up of automobiles on Higgins Road was really a series of two-car crashes that tied up traffic and added to the foggy morning blues.

Senate committee hearing indicates more trouble ahead

by KAREN BLECHA

At least one thing is certain about the severe gasoline shortage in Chicago and the suburbs: it will continue.

Officials of major oil companies testified at Senate Commerce Committee hearings in Chicago yesterday that the gas shortage in this area will last through February and possibly longer. The shortage, they said, will go on despite between 6 to 7 million additional gallons of gasoline expected to be funneled to the Chicago area from the State of Illinois' reserves.

The hearings, in the federal building in Chicago, were called in an effort to head off another gasoline marketing squeeze like the one that occurred during the last week of January. Sen. Adlai Stevenson

III, D-Ill., who chaired the hearings, said testimony would help the commerce committee determine whether changes in government or industry policy are needed to avert another squeeze.

OTHER TESTIMONY at the five-hour-long hearings showed:

- Chicago and its suburbs are experiencing a much more severe gasoline shortage than the rest of Illinois.
- Officials of the Federal Energy Office (FEO) and the Illinois State Fuel Allocation Office do not have enough information on available oil supplies to design a workable allocation plan for the Chicago area.
- Oil company officials, consumers and gasoline dealers blame each other for the long lines and waits to buy gas.

Oil company representatives also criticized the media for causing "panic buying."

"There is no question that the problems of January will continue," said Charles A. Walsh, Jr., vice president of Atlantic Richfield Co. "As of Feb. 11 in Chicago, 53 per cent of our allocated gallons for the month had been delivered to dealers. As of the 11th, 10 per cent of our dealers had taken their total allocation for the month."

Even if the Arab embargo on oil is lifted, Walsh said, it would take 60 to 90 days until the crude oil starts flowing into U.S. refineries.

H. RINKEMA, regional vice president of Amoco Oil Co., the largest individual supplier of gasoline in Illinois, said the demand for gas in the Chicago area is overwhelmingly heavier than the demand elsewhere. He said that in January, Amoco sold 39.6 million gallons of gas in the Chicago metropolitan area while it sold 10.9 million gallons in its Springfield district and 8.6 million gallons in its Rockford district.

On Jan. 29, he said 123 Amoco stations in the Chicago area were out of gas, while only three in the Springfield district and 12 in the Rockford district had the same problem.

"None of our work is bringing any more gas into Illinois," said James W. Cook, coordinator for the State Fuel Allocation Office. Cook said his office has

Gasoline by the numbers here?

by United Press International

Gov. Daniel Walker said Wednesday Illinois may join those states basing gasoline purchases on odd and even license plate numbers.

He said the system would be instituted only if the gasoline shortage continues or worsens and that in his view it would not be rationing.

"The odd-even way would be a way of cutting down long lines at gas stations and it would be fair," he said.

Walker also said some of a 12-million-gallon March allocation of gasoline pegged for Illinois priority users such as police, fire departments, hospitals and farm equipment users could go to the state's motorists.

"If we find that we don't need all that amount, I will do my utmost to divert some of it to other uses," he said.

Manpower increases could cost $200,000 more

Fire, police expansion gets initial OK; tax hike likely

by STEVE BROWN

Taxpayers, get hold of your wallets. It looks like Des Plaines officials will have to boost taxes to pay for city services in the 1974-75 fiscal year.

The city's aldermen gave preliminary approval Tuesday to increasing manpower in both the fire and police department for this year. The increases, which could total about $200,000, will probably prompt a tax increase.

The city council, meeting as a committee of the whole to review budget requests, approved the additional manpower requests after hearing presentations supporting the requests.

TENTATIVE approval was given to requests which would add five new patrolmen and one communications clerk to the police force and seven new firefighters and four alarm operators to the fire department.

Des Plaines Police Chief Arthur Hintz had requested nine new patrolmen, but agreed to spread the manpower increases over the next two years.

Fire Chief Donald Corey and Ald. John Seitz (7th) contended the fire department needed all the new personnel that had been requested because the firefighters would be used to man the city's second 100-foot ladder truck.

"We would like to be willing to spread the increases over the next two years, but we need all the men to staff the truck at once," Seitz said.

THE COUNCILMEN also gave tentative approval to a $10,000 boost in the funds which will be available for beautification programs in Des Plaines this year.

Ald. Robert Hinde (4th) agreed that a hike in the real estate tax would probably be needed. The likelihood of the tax hike became apparent even before the city has completed salary talks with police, fire and public works employees.

"We do not have that type of money which we could shift around," Hinde said, speaking of the apparent need to pay the new men.

City officials have estimated that for every $100,000 spent by the city, it must raise taxes $3 per each $10,000 of equalized assessed valuation.

Cupid to visit senior citizens

Wheelchairs will be in motion and the over-50 set will kick up their heels tonight at Golf Pavilion Nursing Home at the Valentine's Night Cupid Ball.

The Golden Tones, a six-piece band composed of Ridgewood High School students, have volunteered to play for the ball.

Nominations for a king and queen of hearts were made at a recent open meeting of residents at Golf Pavilion, 9535 Golf Road, Des Plaines. Elleen Kelly, Donna Lundgren, Elsie Geogel, Walter Baker, Duane Dixon and William Hoffmann are candidates. The king and queen will be honored at the ball when the 1973 king and queen, Frank Hohn and Laurel France give up their crowns.

The woman's organization of Messiah Lutheran Church, Park Ridge, held a rummage sale this week so residents would purchase items for the dance. Proceeds from the sale will be returned to residents who are raising money to buy a movie projector. Women from St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, will provide refreshments for tonight's affair.

Hinde and other officials had hoped to balance the budget this year.

SEVERAL ALDERMEN suggested the city might explore the possibility of finding new sources of revenue or in increasing the cost of city services.

Seitz suggested the city might consider increasing the rate charged for garbage collection, which has not been raised in several years.

Seitz said by raising the rate 50 cents from the present $1.50 monthly charge, a substantial amount of revenue could be obtained. Preliminary estimates indicate the boost in garbage collection fees would bring the city about $30,000 annually.

IN ARGUING for the increase in police manpower, Ald. Kenneth Kehe (2nd), who heads the city council's police committee, said a sharp increase in police calls in past years has caused the need for more police.

"The people of Des Plaines deserve the police protection," he said, adding that he believes the residents will be willing to pay for additional costs.

While Kehe and Hintz agreed to a compromise which would have the city adding the nine new patrolmen over the next two years, Seitz and Corey said it would not be possible to add the new firefighters over a two-year period. They said the city needs the second ladder truck immediately and the crew for that truck must be hired at one time.

"We are facing a problem here, there is no question that we need the additional men, it seems like it is time to call a spade a spade and tell the people about the increase. I imagine there are few people who would not be willing to pay for the extra protection," said Ald. Alan

Glaser won't seek school board seat as independent

Glenn W. Glaser, the Dist. 62 board member who lost caucus backing for the April school board election, will not run independently.

Mrs. Glaser, speaking for her husband, said yesterday he "hasn't made any plans" to run for the board vacancy without caucus support. She said that while her husband was disappointed about losing caucus backing, he still supports the group.

A four-year veteran of the board, Glaser lost the endorsement of the Des Plaines School Board Caucus to newcomer Wallace Meyer. Incumbents endorsed by the group are Stuart Kisten and Philip Bock.

Caucus delegates are selected by secret ballot, with no public discussion among members about each candidate's qualifications. Caucus representatives are asked to vote for one person for each board vacancy or a total of three in Dist. 62. Nominees receiving a majority of the votes are endorsed by the group.

KISTEN AND BOCK won outright on the first ballot with Kisten receiving 27 of 38 votes and Bock 35 of 38. On the first ballot, Glaser earned 16, Meyer, 13. Candidates Lorelei Weller and Charles Cooper received nine votes apiece.

On the second vote, Glaser earned 14 votes, Meyer 15 votes, and Cooper and Mrs. Weller, four votes each. The third ballot gave 15 votes to Glaser, 19 to Meyer and two apiece to Mrs. Weller and Cooper.

Meyer won the endorsement on the fourth vote with 24 votes to Glaser's 14 supporters.

Mrs. Glaser said her husband is happy that "the caucus can't be called a rubber stamp anymore." She said that it "was pretty obvious that the people who knew my husband stuck by him."

GLASER, A 25-year resident of Des Plaines, lives at 61 E. Terrace Lane. A graduate of the University of North Carolina, he is a registered pharmacist and partner at Hynes Pharmacy.

In his years on the Dist. 62 board, Glaser has chaired several committees and was an active worker on the educational referendums. He was a member of the board's negotiation team during the 1973-74 contract bargaining.

He is a member of the Northwest Suburban YMCA, a former Pony League manager and is active in his church youth programs. His name was submitted by the Chippewa Organization of Parents and Educators.

Want to cut food bills?

Desperate to cut your food bills? Maine-Oakton-Niles Adult and Continuing Education Program will offer a two-night seminar on forming an agriculture consumer cooperative, which is a small, formal, non-profit business organization owned and operated by its members, at 8:30 p.m. tonight and Feb. 28, at Niles West High School, Oakton and Edens, Skokie.

Faith Slover, who is the successful director of Poor Richard's, a neighborhood coop in the Evanston/Skokie area, will be chief trainer.

Mrs. Slover estimates that membership in a cooperative can save the consumer up to 30 per cent on weekly food purchases of fresh produce, meats, and dairy products. The seminar will provide training to help the group make their co-operative self-sufficient and successful.

Cost of the seminar is $4 per family. For information or a flyer about the agriculture consumer cooperative seminar, call Gladys Shute at 966-3830.

Kindergarten students and their parents are invited to visit the fair from 11:45 a.m. to 1 p.m. Other grade students and parents are invited to visit after school 3:30 - 4:30 p.m. and in the evening from 6:30 - 8:30 p.m. Parents of preschoolers are welcome.

The North School PTA will sponsor the fourth annual "taste-and-tell" luncheon Feb. 19, in the school cafeteria, at 1769 Rand Rd. The program will begin at 1:15 p.m. with a short meeting to elect new officers for the 1974-75 school year.

Admission to the luncheon will be a dish to serve six to eight persons, in one of the following categories: appetizer, main dish, side dish, Jell-o mold or dessert. If you are unable to bring food, tickets may be purchased at the door.

All entries will be voted on by those attending the luncheon. Prizes, donated by Des Plaines merchants, will be awarded to the creator of the tastiest dish in each category.

Guests are invited. A babysitting service will be provided for a small fee.

Residents try again to get swimming pool

Another appeal was made this week for a swimming pool in the Des Plaines section of the Mount Prospect Park District. Park District commissioners agreed to consider the request when making recreational plans, but are not likely to give the go ahead for a pool.

Thomas Cooper, director of parks and recreation, said yesterday that because the park district's three present pools lost $36,000 last year, another pool probably will not be constructed.

Richard F. Ward, a Des Plaines city alderman and former Mount Prospect Park District commissioner, and four neighbors appeared before the park district board Monday night to ask that a pool be built at Friendship Park, at Algonquin Road and Janice Avenue.

Ward said a pool is needed to serve the 10,000 to 14,000 Des Plaines residents of the Mount Prospect Park District. Cooper said, however, "I don't know where the heck we would get the money to afford it."

Two months ago, Ward had encouraged residents of Des Plaines to push the park district for another swimming pool, but the park district reacted coolly to the suggestion.

Thieves get $5,100 in weekend looting

Weekend break-ins in the city netted burglars in excess of $5,100 in loot and police believe at least two of the break-ins involving cigaret machines were related.

The largest haul involved some $4,350 worth of cash, checks, jewels and clothing stolen from the home of Nick Am-schlinger, 2807 Maple St.

Amschlinger told police he was returning home from work early Monday, noticed a door forced open and saw several rooms of his home ransacked.

The burglars stole a television set, several men's suits and an undetermined amount of jewelry in addition to the cash and checks.

Support refused for former chairman

Caucus backs incumbent, newcomer

by LUISA GINETTI

An incumbent and a nonincumbent have been endorsed by the Dist. 26 caucus for the April 13 school board election.

Incumbent Sylvia Lurie, who has served on the board one year, and Frank G. Smith, who has lived in the district two years, received the backing of the caucus Monday to fill two three-year terms that will be up for election.

Marsha Lupton, a former caucus chairman who has served on the board since last summer, failed to get the group's backing but said yesterday she will still seek reelection.

A fourth candidate who appeared before the caucus, Mary Watters, has withdrawn from the race. Mrs. Watters substitutes in the district and dropped out of the race because of a possible conflict of interest.

The caucus conducted interviews with each of the candidates during the past few weeks. Its decision on endorsements came Monday night following interview sessions with Mrs. Lurie and Mrs. Lupton.

MARY STEMBRIDGE, caucus chairman, did not reveal the actual voting of the membership because it was conducted behind closed doors.

Candidates were asked questions ranging from how they would select an alternative to the Gregory St. site for the new Maryville School to what they felt would be the advantages of having a citizens committee.

Other questions included:

• What is your opinion on the no-grade system?

• What is your opinion on the proposed Rob Roy development project and should the school board take a public stand on it?

• What should the maximum classroom size be for the grades and for kindergarten?

• Is there a drug problem in the district and if so what should be done about it?

• What should school standards of discipline be?

• What is your opinion on open classrooms, the media center and expansion of physical education, band and art programs?

MRS. STEMBRIDGE said these questions were used as a guideline for interviews but did not always represent exact questions asked of each candidate.

Mrs. Stemberidge said the caucus publicity committee will probably meet soon to organize plans for campaigning but no meeting date has been arranged yet.

The filing date for submitting petitions of candidacy opens Feb. 27 and runs through March 22. Petitions must be filed with the district superintendent at the district office, 1900 S. Kensington, Mount Prospect.

Manpower increases OK'd

Abrams (8th).

IN SUGGESTING methods to save the city some money, Seltz also recommended the elimination of the department's volunteer firefighters. He said the city paid the volunteers about $5,000 last year, and some of the volunteers did not respond to any fire calls.

Ald. Joseph Szabo suggested a cut in the city's five-man fire prevention bureau.

"It seems to me that it is more important to have men for the ladder truck rather than in fire prevention," Szabo said.

HE SUGGESTED that some members of the fire prevention bureau might be reassigned to firefighter duty.

"I have received a number of complaints that the inspectors have been obnoxious or overly aggressive in making their inspections," he said, suggesting that possibly the bureau was creating work to justify their manpower needs.

Corey said he had never received a complaint about the inspectors' procedures.

ALDERMEN Thomas Koplos (1st), Charles Bolek (3rd), and Richard Ward (8th) joined Szabo in opposing the manpower increases in a poll taken during the meeting.

Ward had suggested that the fire department might assign some inspectors to work as firefighters and while the inspectors are required to provide back-up assistance for fire calls, Corey said it would not be possible to assign the men to both duties full-time.

"It would be a little like having a man in your job take tickets, load the baggage, push the plane away from the gate, take off and then walk to the back to serve coffee and sew on buttons," Corey said to Ward who is an airline pilot.

Tied to hospital thefts

MEG agents bust drug sale ring

Four former employees of Lutheran General Hospital were selling drugs suspected to have been stolen from the hospital and were acting as connections for sales of other narcotics, said sources in the Metropolitan Enforcement Group.

Agents said a "large quantity" of narcotics valued at some $25,000 were confiscated in a raid on the home of a Des Plaines man, including pharmaceuticals, or prescription drugs, such as amphetamines and barbiturates.

Six area men were arrested in coordinated raids Tuesday afternoon and evening on charges of sale and possession of various narcotics.

All six men were arraigned yesterday in Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court before Associate Judge Jerome Burke, who sets bonds for the men at between $2,500 and $20,000.

THE ARRESTS followed a month-long investigation in which undercover agents worked at Lutheran General to observe the suspects and arranged undercover deals that took place in and out of the hospital, agents said.

Arrested were Edward Miskiewicz, 22, of 8746 Stolling, Niles; Edward Mueller, 21, of 2157 Elmira Ave., Des Plaines; Steven P. Best, 18, of 8974 Western, Des Plaines, and George Nowak, 21, of 1551 Maple St., Glenview. All four men were employees at the hospital but were fired last week.

Neil Fagrellius, 20, also of the Elmira address in Des Plaines, and an Arlington Heights man, Allan Borre, 21, 1106 Waterman, were arrested. The two had not worked at Lutheran General, agents said, but were reportedly involved in the ring.

Mueller, Borre and Fagrellius were arrested at Mueller's home where agents confiscated a variety of illicit drugs in large bottles along with hospital supplies including stethoscopes, surgical instruments and hospital bed linens. The remaining three were arrested at their homes.

A RIFLE, SHOTGUN and an undetermined amount of cash were also seized agents said they were checking registration on the weapons yesterday.

Tracy Stern, a Lutheran General spokesman, doubted that large amounts of drugs were stolen from the hospital, adding, "There is no listing, or no knowledge of anything of any consequence taken from the hospital."

He said hospital officials became suspicious of the four men after an employee discovered about a month ago that a medicine cabinet in a supply room had been tampered with. The matter was turned over to Park Ridge police and MEG agents were later called in to work undercover.

AGENTS SAID yesterday, however, they were still investigating exactly how the illicit drugs were obtained.

Mueller was charged with selling MDA, a hallucinogenic drug, and amphetamines, while Nowak was also accused of selling MDA. Best faces counts of selling marijuana, barbiturates, and amphetamines.

Agents charged Fagrellius with two counts of possession of a controlled substance, while Borre and Miskiewicz were charged with possession of dangerous drugs.

All six were still being held on bond and were scheduled to be taken to Cook County Jail. They will appear Feb. 26 in the Niles Circuit Court branch.

Agents said the case is still under investigation, but expected that no additional arrests would be made immediately.

DEMOLITION CONTINUED yesterday for down- which is part of the site preparation for the $20 continue throughout the week. Developers hope to town redevelopment of Des Plaines. The work, million retail and office structure Superblock will have the facility completed by early 1976.

Action expected within a month

Erviti contract extension likely

by BOB GALLAS

Dist. 59 Supt. James Erviti, rumored a year ago to be on his way out, will apparently have his contract extended again this year, according to informed sources in the district.

Several members of the Elk Grove Township school board, while refusing to comment on the contract, said they expect action on the matter to come within the next two meetings of the board, which meets the first and third Mondays of the month.

Erviti still has two years remaining on a three-year contract, which calls for an annual salary of $34,182 plus a host of fringe benefits.

If the board decides to extend the contract, the entire document will probably be rewritten, which could mean further changes, such as a pay raise or other benefits. His present contract runs through July, 1976. If the extension is approved the contract will run to July, 1977.

ERVITI RECEIVED a similar extension and an 8 per cent pay raise last year. The extension is generally thought to be a vote of confidence in the superintendent by the school board.

Erviti's contract extension last year came as somewhat of a surprise since many in the district believed the board was only going to give Erviti a pay raise, without renewing his contract or in effect, giving him a "hunting" license to look for a new job while remaining as superintendent.

The board met early this week in a closed, executive session to review Erviti's contract as is done every year. Erviti has been with Dist. 59 since 1970.

It's reported the board is split 5-2 or 4-3 over the contract, with the majority favoring extending it by one year.

IN ADDITION to his salary, other benefits in Erviti's present contract include a car complete with license plates, gas and insurance, a $50,000 life insurance policy, cumulative sick leave and four weeks of vacation per year.

He also will receive one month's pay for every year he spends in the district, when or if he should leave.

Cupid arrows seeking wide target range

by LINDA PUNCH

Where do you deliver a cougar's valentine? To Cougar Stadium, of course.

At least that's the answer of West School student Dwight Wells who said he would like to send a valentine to a cougar "because they're slimy and sneaky." Dwight's message to the animal — "Have a slimy Valentine's Day."

Other youngsters in Florence Castle's first-grade class and Dee Bode's second grade said they would like to send Valentine greetings to non-family members ranging from best friends to rats.

Animals were the main theme in the second grade classroom with Brian Bending wanting to send a tiger-shaped card to a tiger while Allison's Jones proposed sending valentine wishes to a lion.

Robin Schachner said she would like to send a Valentine greeting to a rabbit because "he comes to my house." Charlotte Eldredge decided a "Happy Valentine's Day" greeting to a bird would be nice since "they're cute."

DANNY MCCARTHY said he would like to send a card to the squirrels "because I feed them nuts all the time."

"I'd put it by the tree and put ants on it," he said.

Sam Oleott said he would "stick a Valentine behind a tree" for a snake "because he's got wet skin." And Joey Turnbull favors sending cards to a bear "because he's nice and furry."

"I'd leave it in the woods — I'd give him food and write 'Have a Happy, Happy Valentine's Day,'" he said.

Karl Anderson said he would send a

Valentine note to a rat "because he's nice." "I'd leave it in the basement," he added.

First-grade students favored best friends and classmates as recipients of their valentines.

DENNIS SCHIMKA offered a happy Valentine's greeting to his friend Greg "because I like him — he does a lot of things for me."

Danny Brannigan said he would send a card to classmate Steve "because he's my best friend." Danny's message on the card — "I love you."

Kelly Johnsey chose her friend Linda "because I like her." "The card would have hearts on it but I wouldn't write anything," she said.

Carol Harnett's said she will send cards to "all my friends and Mrs. Castle."

"They like me and I like them," she said.

Tom Ginnane also chose Mrs. Castle for a Valentine because "she tells us to put our heads down because sometimes we're tired."

The most cryptic Valentine greeting came from Robby Borgardt who said he will write "To Tom. Good Night."

Des Plaines gives initial OK to boundary accord

Des Plaines city officials have given their unofficial stamp of approval to the tentative boundary agreement worked out with neighboring Mount Prospect.

However, official announcement of the terms of the agreement, originally planned for yesterday, has been put off until Tuesday night when the Des Plaines City Council and the Mount Prospect Village Board will officially ratify the compromise plan.

It is believed that Des Plaines will claim property generally lying east of Elmhurst Road around Algonquin Road, including the Colonial apartments, and that Mount Prospect will take in property west of Elmhurst Road, including the Waterfall and Terranova restaurants. The Elmhurst-Algonquin vicinity has been involved in a tug-of-war between the two suburbs for several months.

The former Dawn Fresh Mushroom Farm property at the southwest corner of Elmhurst Road and Dempster Street, however, was not involved in the boundary agreement, according to Des Plaines officials. Following a lengthy court fight, the property was awarded to Mount Prospect, however, Des Plaines officials may appeal the court's ruling. The 8.9-acre piece of property is to contain 198 apartment units, with groundbreaking scheduled for this spring.

The Des Plaines City Council's tentative approval of the boundary agreement came during a 1½-hour executive session meeting Tuesday night, a week after Mount Prospect village trustees, also meeting behind closed doors, agreed to adopt the compromise.

Announcement of the specific terms of the agreement was expected to be made yesterday, however, Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel said, "The place for the expose of the boundaries is at a public meeting and not in the newspapers."

It's slip-'n'-slide time on roads again

Icy roads and sudden fog caused multiple car crashes throughout the Northwest suburbs yesterday morning. On one stretch to Ill. Rte. 72 between Ill. Rte. 53 and Arlington Heights Road, eight cars were caused damage during the morning rush hour. In all, county sheriff's police were called on 50 minor incidents in the northern half of Cook County.

In this accident scene, police said what looked like a long pile up of automobiles on Higgins Road was really a series of two-car crashes that tied up traffic and added to the foggy morning blues.

Senate committee hearing indicates more trouble ahead

by KAREN BLECHA

At least one thing is certain about the severe gasoline shortage in Chicago and the suburbs. It will continue.

Officials of major oil companies testified at Senate Commerce Committee hearings in Chicago yesterday that the gas shortage in this area will last through February and possibly longer. The shortage, they said, will go on despite between 6 to 7 million additional gallons of gasoline expected to be funneled to the Chicago area from the State of Illinois' reserves.

The hearings, in the federal building in Chicago, were called in an effort to head off another gasoline marketing squeeze like the one that occurred during the last week of January. Sen. Adlai Stevenson

III, D-Ill., who chaired the hearings, said testimony would help the commerce committee determine whether changes in government or industry policies are needed to avert another squeeze.

OTHER TESTIMONY at the five-hour long hearings showed:

• Chicago and its suburbs are experiencing a much more severe gasoline shortage than the rest of Illinois.

• Officials of the Federal Energy Office (FEO) and the Illinois State Fuel Allocation Office do not have enough information on available oil supplies to design a workable allocation plan for the Chicago area.

• Oil company officials, consumers and gasoline dealers blame each other for the long lines and waits to buy gas.

Oil company representatives also criticized the media for causing "panic buying."

"There is no question that the problems of January will continue," said Charles A. Walsh, Jr., vice president of Atlantic Richfield Co. "As of Feb. 11 in Chicago, 53 per cent of our allocated gallons for the month had been delivered to dealers. As of the 11th, 10 per cent of our dealers had taken their total allocation for the month."

Even if the Arab embargo on oil is lifted, Walsh said, it would take 60 to 90 days until the crude oil starts flowing into U.S. refineries.

H. RINKEMA, regional vice president of Amoco Oil Co., the largest individual supplier of gasoline in Illinois, said the demand for gas in the Chicago area is overwhelmingly heavier than the demand downstate. He said that in January, Amoco sold 39.6 million gallons of gas in the Chicago metropolitan area while it sold 10.9 million gallons in its Springfield district and 8.6 million gallons in its Rockford district.

On Jan. 29, he said 123 Amoco stations in the Chicago area were out of gas, while only three in the Springfield district and 12 in the Rockford district had the same problem.

"None of our work is bringing any more gas into Illinois," said James W. Cook, coordinator for the State Fuel Allocation Office. Cook said his office has

Gasoline by the numbers here?

by United Press International

Gov. Daniel Walker said Wednesday Illinois may join those states basing gasoline purchases on odd and even license plate numbers.

He said the system would be instituted only if the gasoline shortage continues or worsens and that in his view it would not be rationing.

"The odd-even way would be a way of cutting down long lines at gas stations and it would be fair," he said.

Walker also said some of a 12-million-gallon March allocation of gasoline pegged for Illinois priority users such as police, fire departments, hospitals and farm equipment users could go to the state's motorists.

"If we find that we don't need all that amount, I will do my utmost to divert some of it to other uses," he said.

Cites added job responsibilities

Plan commission chairman Shannon to resign position

Elk Grove Plan Commission Chairman William Shannon announced plans to retire from the commission at the recent meeting of the Village Board.

Shannon submitted a letter of resignation at Tuesday night's meeting, citing additional responsibility at work as his reason for leaving the commission. President pro-tem Ronald Chernick refused to act on the letter, deferring the action to Village Pres. Charles Zettek.

Zettek, who arrived later in the meeting, said yesterday he will not comment on Shannon's request until he has talked with the commission chairman.

"I don't intend to accept the resignation until I talk with him," he said. "I haven't had an opportunity to speak with him yet."

ZETTEK SAID Shannon had talked

William Shannon

cause added responsibilities on his job "prevent my giving time to chair the commission."

"Rather than do it short, I decided to resign. If I continued, I would do a disservice to the community as well as to the people I work with," he said.

"If I could, I would continue working with the commission. I've enjoyed working on the plan commission and for the village board," he said.

Shannon, 313 Higgins Rd., has served on the plan commission since his appointment in 1968. He was appointed chairman in June of 1971.

Zettek said Shannon will continue as chairman until his resignation is officially accepted. If the commission chairman does retire, the village president will appoint a new person to fill the vacancy.

Schedule mobile intensive-care training

Elk Grove Village Fire Department paramedics and emergency medical technicians and Alexian Brothers Medical Center personnel will participate in a mobile intensive-care training program.

Elk Grove Village officials Tuesday night signed an agreement with the Alexian Brothers Medical Center authorizing on-duty firemen to work with hospital personnel on a rotating basis to improve and refresh their emergency and mobile intensive care skills.

According to Elk Grove Fire Chief Alan Hulett, the training will minimize paramedics' feelings that the medical profession is "slow to accept the fact that firemen are doing jobs ordinarily performed by those in the medical profession."

"Working together, firemen, doctors and nurses can not learn only about each other's work but also the problems they each face in their jobs," he said.

THE TRAINING program calls for two men assigned to the ambulance service to work in the Alexian Brother emergency room on four-hour shifts. Firemen will work with incoming emergency-room patients to see what problems doctors and nurses face.

"Hopefully, they will gain an inner respect for each other that only such inter-related training can bring," Hulett said. "It may also allow the medical profession to gain some confidence in firemen working as paramedics."

Hulett said fire protection coverage and ambulance service will suffer slightly during such training because two fewer men will be responding to calls. He noted that while the men will be technically on duty, they will be assigned to the emergency room and not called out unless additional vehicles are needed.

Mrs. Jackie Carrier, R.N., ambulatory service manager at Alexian Brothers, said the hospital proposed the program so paramedics and EMTs "can continue as students to learn and apply what they have learned."

"They'll have a better idea what happens to the patient once he's in the emergency room," she said.

School officials see big rolls growth

by STIRLING MORITA

Students, expansion of school facilities, more students — that's all Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 officials can see for the near future.

The officials anticipate that the student population in the district will grow about 55 per cent by 1980. School district figures based on area builders' estimates of development completions indicate that the present enrollment will increase from 15,511 to 24,150 in 1980.

At the start of the 1974-75 school year, expected enrollment is 16,800.

Authorization to issue bonds to build new schools and other facilities will be voted on by local residents Saturday. The $16.6 million referendum will be divided into two parts — one for construction of a $700,000 administration center, and the other for construction of four school additions, eight new schools, renovation to eight schools and a nature area center.

THE BONDS WOULD be issued during a five-year period according to the need for a new facility or addition. The bond issue referendum is not expected to raise taxes, but rather the taxes are anticipated to drop $6 for a homeowner of a house assessed at $10,000. School district officials have said taxes would drop between $25 and $30 for the average homeowner if the referendum did not pass.

But officials feel that financial assistance from the state will negate the need to issue some of the bonds and that the resulting drop in taxes might be around $12. The $6-tax drop will be made possible by a tremendous growth in the assessed valuation in the district and retirement of outstanding bonds.

Additions are tentatively planned for Eisenhower Junior High School in Hoffman Estates, Collins School in Schaumburg, Einstein School in Hanover Park, and Link School in Elk Grove Village.

Officials said the new facilities were needed to prevent overcrowding of classes or the undesirable switch to a double-shift system in which the school day is cut and two shifts of students attend the same school at different times. Desired class size is 28 pupils. Presently the average class size is 27.4.

DONNIE RUDD, president of the school board of education, has said if the referendum fails, he will take the bond issue back to the public again because of the need to meet the growth in the district.

Officials have set up a very tentative schedule for construction of facilities. It is subject to change pending completion of various housing in the district.

Renovation of the eight older schools in the district is slated to be between 1975 and 1977 at a cost of about $3 million. Schools involved in this project include Blackhawk, Campanelli, Fairview Lakeview, Hillcrest, Hoffman, Schaumburg and Twinbrook.

A NATURE CENTER building north of Frost Junior High School would be built from 1974 to 1975 at a cost of about $62,000. Between 1975 and 1976, an addition to Eisenhower School and a new school planned for Campanelli Bros. Builders' donated land northeast of Schaumburg High School would be constructed. The addition would cost about $550,000 and the new school about $1 million.

Additions to Collins and Einstein schools would be added from 1976 to 1977 at a cost of about $400,000 each. The new administration center near Schaumburg School and a new school on the Gray farm in western Schaumburg between Schaumburg and Bode roads would be built in this period also. Construction costs for the school are estimated to be about $1.11 million.

NEW SCHOOLS ARE planned for construction from 1977 to 1978 at a site in Hanover Park near Irving Park and Wise roads and at one south of Nerge Road in the Kennedy Construction development. Both schools are anticipated to cost about $125 million each. At the same time, construction for an addition to Link School is planned for about $460,000.

From 1978 to 1979 a new school would be constructed on land donated by Centex Construction Co. in Elk Grove Village south of Nerge Road. Cost is estimated to be about $13 million.

At a site in the Village in the Park apartment area on Valley Lake Drive in Schaumburg and at one near Wise and Roselle roads, elementary schools are planned for construction from 1979 to 1980. Costs for the Roselle Road school are anticipated to be about $15 million and for the other about $13 million.

At the same time, a junior high school would be built either at the Hoover School site on Springinguth Road in Schaumburg or one of the school sites in Elk Grove Village depending upon the growth pattern in the district. Cost would be about $2.55 million.

Where do you deliver a cougar's valentine? To Cougar Stadium, of course.

At least that's the answer of West School student Dwight Wells who said he would like to send a valentine to a cougar "because they're slimy and sneaky." Dwight's message to the animal — "Have a slimy Valentine's Day."

Other youngsters in Florence Castle's first-grade class and Dee Bode's second grade said they would like to send Valentine greetings to non-family members ranging from best friends to rats.

Animals were the main theme in the second grade classroom with Brian Bending wanting to send a tiger-shaped card to a tiger while Allison's Jones proposed sending valentine wishes to a lion.

Robin Schachner said she would like to send a Valentine greeting to a rabbit because "he comes to my house." Charlotte Eldredge decided a "Happy Valentine's Day" greeting to a bird would be nice since "they're cute."

DANNY MCCARTHY said he would like to send a card to the squirrels "because I feed them nuts all the time."

"I'd put it by the tree and put nuts on it," he said.

Sam Olcott said he would "stick a Valentine behind a tree" for a snake "because he's got wet skin." And Joey Turnbull favors sending cards to a bear "because he's nice and furry."

"I'd leave it in the woods — I'd give him food and write 'Have a Happy, Happy Valentine's Day,'" he said.

Karl Anderson said he would send a

Valentine note to a rat "because he's nice." "I'd leave it in the basement," he added.

First-grade students favored best friends and classmates as recipients of their valentines.

DENNIS SCHIMKA offered a happy Valentine's greeting to his friend Greg "because I like him — he does a lot of things for me."

Danny Brannigan said he would send a card to classmate Steve "because he's my best friend." Danny's message on the card — "I love you."

Kelly Johnson chose her friend Linda "because I like her." "The card would have hearts on it but I wouldn't write anything," she said.

Carol Harnett's said she will send cards to "all my friends and Mrs. Castle."

"They like me and I like them," she said.

Tom Ginnane also chose Mrs. Castle for a Valentine because "she tells us to put our heads down because sometimes we're tired."

The most cryptic Valentine greeting came from Robby Borgardt who said he will write "To Tom Good Night."

Circles mark polls in 11 precincts for Dist. 54 referendum tomorrow.

Student, school board 'rap session' scheduled tonight

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Students and board members from High School Dist. 211 will sit down face to face tonight for a rap session on student discipline, the energy crisis, grades and channels of communication between students, the board and the administration.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the district administration center, 1750 S. Roseale Rd., Palatine, with 10 students, two from each high school in the district.

Board members have asked that the chairs in the room be set up in a circle instead of at the usual board table which faces the audience and they have asked that their name plates be replaced with name tags.

Tonight's agenda is a combination of an agenda submitted by board members and one submitted by students. The first category, on school policy, will include discussions on open campus, class scheduling, student smoking, the energy crisis and suspension or expulsion of students from school. The category on curriculum will include discussion on the necessity of required courses and the feasibility of taking some courses for credit without receiving a grade.

IN THE CATEGORY on communication channels, the group will talk about student apathy and the effectiveness of student council. The group will also discuss the effectiveness of counselors and on the need for a fieldhouse, auditorium and swimming pool in each high school in the last category on school staff and facilities.

One of the main topics tonight will probably concern school rules. Students and administrators in each school have been working together for several weeks discussing possible changes in the district's discipline policy. Recommended changes in the policy developed by students and administrators have been submitted to Dist. 211 Supt. Richard Kolze and the board. Most of the reports suggest minor changes except the report from Fremd High School written by student council president Jonathan Nelson. Nelson's suggestions will probably be brought up tonight.

In a letter to the board, Nelson takes issue with the policy of giving students an "F" grade if they are absent from class too often. He suggests some alternatives to the policy and adds "In any case, however, I don't think that an 'F' grade should ever be attached to a student's record unless it reflects a student's lack of ability in that academic area. Discipline records are for discipline problems. Academic records are for academic achievement or problems."

NELSON ALSO objects to removing a student from class if he is absent too often. "I also think that removing a person from class and temporarily revoking his right to public education for merely failing to use that opportunity to its fullest extent, is defeatist," he says.

Nelson had earlier appeared before the board to ask that a student be given a non-voting seat on the board and also asked to be placed on an administrative committee studying discipline.

Village board wrapup

Abandoned-car contract tabled

Elk Grove Village trustees tabled action on Globe Auto Disposal Company's request to contract with the village for removal of abandoned vehicles.

The firm offered to remove abandoned vehicles from streets, alleys, parkways and all public places at no cost to the village. They asked the village to approve their plan to charge the owner of the auto a $15 towing charge and $3 a day storage charge if the vehicle is claimed. The firm has offices at 300 W. Touhy, Des Plaines.

Trustee George Spees suggested the village attorney investigate the firm and their contract. He added that the village is satisfied with the present arrangement with the S&H Auto Disposal Co. and he saw no reason to contract with another firm.

Cop goes to school

Elk Grove Police Sgt. Gerald Walsh will attend a course in police personnel supervision at the Northwestern Traffic Institute Feb. 18 to March 8. Village officials Tuesday approved a $710 fee for the program with the balance of the cost to be paid by the Illinois Local Governmental Enforcement Officers' training board.

Police Chief Harry Jenkins said other sergeants have attended this training program and the department will send others as funds are available.

Centex development talks

A general discussion on Centex Builders plans for development of Section 21, a 101-acre parcel between Meacham and Old Rte. 53, will be at 9 a.m. Saturday. Members of the Elk Grove Village Plan Commission and the Judiciary Planning and Zoning Committee will discuss the builders' preliminary presentation for development of the area.

Referendum split in two parts

$16.6 million school bond vote Saturday

Local residents will go to the polls from noon until 7 p.m. Saturday to vote on a $16.6 million bond issue referendum for Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54.

The referendum will be split into the following two parts:

- $700,000 for a new administration center to be located near Schaumburg School on Schaumburg Road.

- $15.9 million for construction of eight schools, additions for four schools and a nature area building and renovation of the eight oldest schools in the district.

It is expected that the second part of the referendum will provide 220 classrooms to meet the growth in the school district until 1980. Renovation is anticipated to cost $3.06 million, and the nature building about $62,000.

IF THE REFERENDUM passes, the construction will be phased according to population development at various locations throughout the school district.

School taxes for the average homeowner are anticipated to drop $6 even if the bond issue is approved. If it does not pass, officials expect the average tax bill to drop $25 to $30 because of increased assessed valuation in the district and retirement of outstanding bonds.

State funding may be available from the Illinois Capital Development Board, and some of the bonds may never have to be issued, resulting in a greater savings to taxpayers. However, new buildings must be approved before state funds can become available.

The 11 polling places in the district are:

- Precinct 1, Collins School, 407 S. Summit Dr., Schaumburg.
- Precinct 2, Twinbrook School, 400 Ash Rd., Hoffman Estates.
- Precinct 3, Hillcrest School, 201 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates.
- Precinct 4, Hoffman School, 101 Grand Canyon Blvd., Hoffman Estates.
- Precinct 5, Campanelli School, 310 Springguth Rd., Schaumburg.
- Precinct 6, Hanover Highlands School, 1451 Cypress Ave., Hanover Park.
- Precinct 7, MacArthur School, 525 Chippendale Rd., Hoffman Estates.
- Precinct 8, Dooley School, 622 Norwood Ln., Schaumburg.
- Precinct 9, Fox School, 1035 Parkview Dr., Hanover Park.
- Precinct 10, Dirksen School, 116 W. Beech Dr., Schaumburg.
- Precinct 11, Link School, 900 S. West Glenn Trail Rd., Elk Grove Village.

It's slip-'n'-slide time on roads again

Icy roads and sudden fog caused multiple car crashes throughout the Northwest suburbs yesterday morning. On one stretch to Ill. Rte. 72 between Ill. Rte. 53 and Arlington Heights Road, eight cars were caused damage during the morning rush hour. In all, county sheriff's police were called on 50 minor incidents in the northern half of Cook County.

In this accident scene, police said what looked like a long pile up of automobiles on Higgins Road was really a series of two-car crashes that tied up traffic and added to the foggy morning blues.

For a full rundown of yesterday's accidents, see Page 6.

Senate committee hearing indicates more trouble ahead

No quick end to Chicago-area gas squeeze

by KAREN BLECHA

At least one thing is certain about the severe gasoline shortage in Chicago and the suburbs: it will continue.

Officials of major oil companies testified at Senate Commerce Committee hearings in Chicago yesterday that the gas shortage in this area will last through February and possibly longer. The shortage, they said, will go on despite between 6 to 7 million additional gallons of gasoline expected to be funneled to the Chicago area from the State of Illinois' reserves.

The hearings, in the federal building in Chicago, were called in an effort to head off another gasoline marketing squeeze like the one that occurred during the last week of January. Sen. Adlai Stevenson

III, D-Ill., who chaired the hearings, said testimony would help the commerce committee determine whether changes in government or industry policy are needed to avert another squeeze.

OTHER TESTIMONY at the five-hour-long hearings showed:

- Chicago and its suburbs are experiencing a much more severe gasoline shortage than the rest of Illinois.

- Officials of the Federal Energy Office (FEO) and the Illinois State Fuel Allocation Office do not have enough information on available oil supplies to design a workable allocation plan for the Chicago area.

- Oil company officials, consumers and gasoline dealers blame each other for the long lines and waits to buy gas.

Oil company representatives also criticized the media for causing "panic buying."

"There is no question that the problems of January will continue," said Charles A. Walsh, Jr., vice president of Atlantic Richfield Co. "As of Feb. 11 in Chicago, 53 per cent of our allocated gallons for the month had been delivered to dealers. As of the 11th, 10 per cent of our dealers had taken their total allocation for the month."

Even if the Arab embargo on oil is lifted, Walsh said, it would take 60 to 90 days until the crude oil starts flowing into U.S. refineries.

H. RINKEMA, regional vice president of Amoco Oil Co., the largest individual supplier of gasoline in Illinois, said the demand for gas in the Chicago area is overwhelmingly heavier than the demand, downstate. He said that in January, Amoco sold 39.6 million gallons of gas in the Chicago metropolitan area while it sold 10.9 million gallons in its Springfield district and 8.6 million gallons in its Rockford district.

On Jan. 29, he said 123 Amoco stations in the Chicago area were out of gas, while only three in the Springfield district and 12 in the Rockford district had the same problem.

"None of our work is bringing any more gas into Illinois," said James W. Cook, coordinator for the State Fuel Allocation Office. Cook said his office has

Gasoline by the numbers here?

by United Press International

Gov. Daniel Walker said Wednesday Illinois may join those states basing gasoline purchases on odd and even license plate numbers.

He said the system would be instituted only if the gasoline shortage continues or worsens and that in his view it would not be rationing.

"The odd-even way would be a way of cutting down long lines at gas stations and it would be fair," he said.

Walker also said some of a 12-million-gallon March allocation of gasoline pegged for Illinois priority users such as police, fire departments, hospitals and farm equipment users could go to the state's motorists.

"If we find that we don't need all that amount, I will do my utmost to divert some of it to other uses," he said.

On discipline, grades, much more

Student, school board 'rap session' scheduled tonight

Service unit juniors entertain mothers

Seven junior troops from Palatine Service Unit 653 hosted a mother-daughter international dinner yesterday at Fremd High School.

The troops, representing Lake Louise, Virginia Lake and Jane Addams schools, entertained their mothers with songs and dances of foreign countries.

Parks unhappy over gym delays

Palatine Park District commissioners are becoming increasingly upset with delays in construction of the Birchwood Park gymnasium at Illinois and Bennett avenues.

During a meeting Tuesday, the park board instructed architect Joe Bennett to relay the board's displeasure with Warchol Construction Co., the general contractor for the $622,000 project.

The recreation center at the park was originally scheduled to be finished in December, 1973, but a revised deadline set completion for May 1. Warchol representatives later notified the district that the building will not be ready until June 1, but the board is insisting on the May 1 deadline. The delays are creating serious scheduling problems for park administrators, who planned on using the facility for spring and summer programs.

Part of the delay is being blamed on the fact that the heating contractor did not install temporary heating to speed up the start of interior work.

The building was approved as part of a $1.4 million referendum in 1972.

Palatine paramedics give beat by beat explanation of their work.

10% of sales today go to ambulance

"It's 'Have a Heart' day in Palatine as the Palatine Downtown Merchants Assn. will donate 10 per cent of all retail sales today to the village paramedics for the purchase of a new ambulance.

Approximately 28 stores, identified by a sign in their windows, are participating in the event which began yesterday and continues today. The merchants hope to raise several thousand dollars toward the purchase of the ambulance, which is estimated to cost $17,000.

"We are a small family of merchants who feel we should be civic minded," said George Bacher, a downtown merchant and organizer of "Have a Heart" day. Bacher added that the merchants wanted to do something different than the normal Valentine's Day promotions.

The paramedics Tuesday evening demonstrated how they treat heart attack victims by performing a simulation at the Palatine depot. Also, an open house was held to explain to Palatine residents the duties of the paramedics.

Builder tells of shakedown try by Stavros

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Former Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman James Stavros demanded a payoff to influence zoning for the Cedar Run development in Wheeling, The Herald has learned.

Stavros, under federal indictment in connection with alleged shakedowns of several other developers, made the payoff demand at a March 1970 meeting with a representative of Tekton Corp., developer of the 456-unit quadrominium project.

Company officials said the firm refused to go along with the shakedown attempt but one executive admitted hiring project subcontractors recommended by a village official in Wheeling.

THE TEKTON representative confronted by Stavros with the payoff demand agreed to provide information to The Herald on the condition that his name not be used.

The attempted extortion began five weeks after Tekton announced plans for construction of Cedar Run on the Horcher property north of McHenry Road and east of Buffalo Grove Road. Original plans for the project, announced Feb. 3, 1970, called for rezoning of the 40 acres from single-family residential use to planned unit development with a possible 12-story condominium building.

Stavros met with the Tekton representative in mid-March 1970 at the Black Ram Restaurant in Des Plaines.

"WE MET previously with school board and other local officials," the Tekton representative said. "We were seeking practical suggestions on how to proceed with an application for rezoning."

The meeting with Stavros was brief. "I don't know if he (Stavros) even knew about the project. There was no question he was looking for money."

"It was like going to the candy store and asking for some JuJubes," the Tekton representative said. "The question was how much (zoning would cost). It was as simple as that."

The representative said that when national corporations plan a development, advice of local experts is sought in "informal" meetings. Stavros' demand for a payoff "really shocked me," the Tekton representative said.

The company flatly refused to give in to the Stavros demand, company sources said. "We've done nothing wrong," said David Zajick, a Tekton attorney.

"THE DIFFERENCE between our position and that of other individuals (developers) is that they made a cash payoff," said Lewis Wright, Tekton executive vice president.

"We gave all our records to the U.S. Attorney and the FBI. We opened our drawers to them," Wright said.

"We don't deny" that a payoff was demanded, Wright said.

Stavros was indicted two weeks ago by a federal grand jury on charges of extortion and conspiracy to commit extortion. Stavros, 3705 Whirlaway Dr., Northbrook, is charged with extorting from developers more than $111,000 plus real estate, water and sewer lines for his mother's house, liquor and a vacation for William Bieber, Wheeling planning and zoning director.

STAVROS' ATTORNEY, Joel Murray, said he is "totally unfamiliar with any charges other than those contained in the indictments. Mr. Stavros, acting on the advice of his counsel, is refusing to make any comment on any pending matter or on any matter that may be remotely connected with the indictments."

The only mention of Tekton in the six indictments returned Jan. 31 by a special federal grand jury involves Bieber and Rock Road Construction Co.

Bieber denied in grand jury testimony that he recommended hiring of certain subcontractors by developers. "The question is that you never recommended to any general contractor or any contractor in Wheeling that he use a subcontractor?" a U.S. attorney asked. "No, sir," Bieber answered.

The indictment charges Bieber lied when he denied urging Donald Buick of Tekton to "use Rock Road Construction Co."

WRIGHT acknowledged that an unnamed village official "did insist that we use certain subcontractors." However, Buick, who left Tekton in December 1973, said that he was not "coerced or influenced" to hire Rock Road.

Buick, interviewed last fall by an FBI agent, said, "I will not lie for the company, the village or the government. I can't prove a single thing. There were a lot of rumors."

Wheeling officials "never allowed me to buy them lunch," Buick said.

Rock Road was hired to pave Cedar Run streets, although the firm is not listed on the Tekton village building permit. "They did work for us in the past," Buick said.

ASST. U.S. ATTY. Steven Kadison said he will "stand by" the accuracy of the perjury indictment.

A second Cedar Run subcontractor, Dumas Plumbing Co., 106 E. Dundee Rd., also is mentioned in the Bieber perjury indictment. Roman Dumas, a Wheeling zoning board member in 1970 and a former trustee, was recommended by Bieber for Chesterfield Development Co. work, according to the indictment.

Another Cedar Run subcontractor, village records show, was excavator Country Service and Supply Co., 3300 Milwaukee, Northbrook, which employs zoning board member Alan Martin.

Stavros and Bieber were both charged in one of the indictments with obtaining subcontracts with Ben Pekin Corp., developer of Tahoe Village, for Rock Road and Country Service.

After Stavros approached Tekton for a payoff, the firm hired attorney John M. Daley to handle its zoning case. Daley, a cousin of Chicago Mayor Richard Daley, became a Democratic ward committeeman in 1967 and sat on the county central committee with Stavros until Stavros resigned his committeeman post in November 1967.

Daley told The Herald he previously represented Tekton in other zoning cases, but he refused to name the projects. He said he did not discuss any extortion attempt with Tekton officials or with Stavros.

Wright said the firm did not meet the payoff demand "because you have your legal rights. The other builders could have stopped this in the beginning. It just took us a heck of a long time to get approval (of zoning)."

Village records indicate no abnormal delays.

Tekton received zoning board approval for the Cedar Run project April 15, 1970, about a month after Stavros' meeting with the Tekton representative.

The Wheeling Village Board unanimously approved zoning for the project July 15, 1970, when the project included 22 one-bedroom, 226 two-bedroom, 182 three-bedroom and 26 four-bedroom townhouses.

CEDAR RUN DEVELOPERS in Wheeling said the town-house project was delayed by refusal to pay a kickback to former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman James Stavros. The developers, Tekton Corp. of Oak Brook, revealed that they were pressured to use subcontractors recommended by local officials.

IN DECEMBER, 1970, the village and Tekton agreed to split the $120,000 cost of Cedar Run's sewer and water system.

In April 1971, Tekton officials announced a change in project plans by switching to a 114 four-unit quadro-home development. The final quadrominium plan was approved Sept. 29, 1971.

Wright said the U.S. Attorney's office "wants to make sure that they can get a conviction. Our case was simply not a strong enough violation of the Hobbs Act," which prohibits interference of interstate commerce by extortion.

Tekton officials later refused additional comment about the development. "It could well be that this investigation is continuing," said Robert Bagdassarian, a New York attorney representing Tekton. "I have advised my client not to comment."

Westbury decision not expected soon

Site plans for the 386 single-family home portion of the proposed Westbury development in Palatine Township were presented to the Hoffman Estates Plan Commission last night.

The commission will not reach a decision on the plan in less than 30 days, said Richard Regan, commission chairman. He estimated 60 days as a more reasonable time.

Richard Adashek, representing Allister Construction Co., said preliminary plans for the 1,463 townhouse and condominium units on 195.6 acres will be presented to the commission in two weeks. Allister is a subsidiary of Meridian Housing Corp., owner of the land.

The townhouse-condo portion will be a separate subdivision within the development.

FOR THE SINGLE-family home area, Adashek predicted 50 homes will be

Believed to have worked out of hospital

MEG agents bust suspected drug ring

Four former employees of Lutheran General Hospital were selling drugs suspected to have been stolen from the hospital and were acting as connections for sales of other narcotics, said sources in the Metropolitan Enforcement Group.

Agents said a "large quantity" of narcotics valued at some $25,000 were confiscated in a raid on the home of a Des Plaines man, including pharmaceuticals, or prescription drugs, such as amphetamines and barbiturates.

Six area men were arrested in coordinated raids Tuesday afternoon and evening on charges of sale and possession of various narcotics.

All six men were arraigned yesterday in Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court before Associate Judge Jerome Burke who sets bonds for the men at between $2,500 and $20,000.

THE ARRESTS followed a month-long investigation in which undercover agents worked at Lutheran General to observe the suspects and arranged undercover deals that took place in and out of the hospital, agents said.

Arrested were Edward Miskiewicz, 22, of 8746 Stolling, Niles, Edward Mueller, 21, of 2157 Elmira Ave., Des Plaines; Steven P. Best, 18, of 8974 Western, Des Plaines, and George Nowak, 21, of 1551 Maple St., Glenview. All four men were employees at the hospital but were fired last week.

Neil Fagrelus, 20, also of the Elmira address in Des Plaines, and an Arlington Heights man, Allan Borre, 21, 1106 Waterman, were arrested. The two had not worked at Lutheran General, agents said, but were reportedly involved in the ring.

Mueller, Borre and Fagrelus were arrested at Mueller's home where agents confiscated a variety of illicit drugs in large bottles along with hospital supplies including stethoscopes, surgical instruments and hospital bed linens. The remaining three were arrested at their homes.

A RIFLE, SHOTGUN and an undetermined amount of cash were also seized agents said they were checking registration on the weapons yesterday.

Tracy Stern, a Lutheran General spokesman, doubted that large amounts of drugs were stolen from the hospital, adding, "There is no listing, or no knowledge of anything of any consequence taken from the hospital."

He said hospital officials became suspicious of the four men after an employee discovered about a month ago that a medicine cabinet in a supply room had been tampered with. The matter was turned over to Park Ridge police and MEG agents were later called in to work undercover.

AGENTS SAID yesterday, however, they were still investigating exactly how the illicit drugs were obtained.

Mueller was charged with selling MDA, a hallucinogenic drug, and amphetamines, while Nowak was also accused of selling MDA. Best faces counts of selling marijuana, barbiturates, and amphetamines.

Agents charged Fagrelus with two counts of possession of a controlled substance, while Borre and Miskiewicz were charged with possession of dangerous drugs.

All six were still being held on bond and were scheduled to be taken to Cook County Jail. They will appear Feb. 26 in the Niles Circuit Court branch.

Agents said the case is still under investigation, but expected that no additional arrests would be made immediately.

It's slip-'n'-slide time on roads again

Icy roads and sudden fog caused multiple car crashes throughout the Northwest suburbs yesterday morning. On one stretch to Ill. Rte. 72 between Ill. Rte. 53 and Arlington Heights Road, eight cars were caused damage during the morning rush hour. In all, county sheriff's police were called on 50 minor incidents in the northern half of Cook County.

In this accident scene, police said what looked like a long pile up of automobiles on Higgins Road was really a series of two-car crashes that tied up traffic and added to the foggy morning blues.

For a full rundown of yesterday's accidents, see Page 6.

Senate committee hearing indicates more trouble ahead

No quick end to Chicago-area gas squeeze

by KAREN BLECHA

At least one thing is certain about the severe gasoline shortage in Chicago and the suburbs: It will continue.

Officials of major oil companies testified at Senate Commerce Committee hearings in Chicago yesterday that the gas shortage in this area will last through February and possibly longer. The shortage, they said, will go on despite between 6 to 7 million additional gallons of gasoline expected to be funneled to the Chicago area from the State of Illinois reserves.

The hearings, in the federal building in Chicago, were called in an effort to head off another gasoline marketing squeeze like the one that occurred during the last week of January. Sen. Adlai Stevenson

III, D-Ill., who chaired the hearings, said testimony would help the commerce committee determine whether changes in government or industry policy are needed to avert another squeeze.

OTHER TESTIMONY at the five-hour-long hearings showed:

- Chicago and its suburbs are experiencing a much more severe gasoline shortage than the rest of Illinois.

- Officials of the Federal Energy Office (FEO) and the Illinois State Fuel Allocation Office do not have enough information on available oil supplies to design a workable allocation plan for the Chicago area.

- Oil company officials, consumers and gasoline dealers blame each other for the long lines and waits to buy gas.

Oil company representatives also criticized the media for causing "panic buying."

"There is no question that the problems of January will continue," said Charles A. Walsh, Jr., vice president of Atlantic Richfield Co. "As of Feb. 11 in Chicago, 53 per cent of our allocated gallons for the month had been delivered to dealers. As of the 11th, 10 per cent of our dealers had taken their total allocation for the month."

Even if the Arab embargo on oil is lifted, Walsh said, it would take 60 to 90 days until the crude oil starts flowing into U.S. refineries.

H. RINKEMA, regional vice president of Amoco Oil Co., the largest individual supplier of gasoline in Illinois, said the demand for gas in the Chicago area is overwhelmingly heavier than the demand downstate. He said that in January, Amoco sold 39.6 million gallons of gas in the Chicago metropolitan area while it sold 10.9 million gallons in its Springfield district and 8.6 million gallons in its Rockford district.

On Jan. 29, he said 123 Amoco stations in the Chicago area were out of gas, while only three in the Springfield district and 12 in the Rockford district had the same problem.

"None of our work is bringing any more gas into Illinois," said James W. Cook, coordinator for the State Fuel Allocation Office. Cook said his office has

Gasoline by the numbers here?

Gov. Daniel Walker said Wednesday Illinois may join those states basing gasoline purchases on odd and even license plate numbers.

He said the system would be instituted only if the gasoline shortage continues or worsens and that in his view it would not be rationing.

"The odd-even way would be a way of cutting down long lines at gas stations and it would be fair," he said.

Walker also said some of a 12-million-gallon March allocation of gasoline pegged for Illinois priority users such as police, fire departments, hospitals and farm equipment users could go to the state's motorists.

"If we find that we don't need all that amount, I will do my utmost to divert some of it to other uses," he said.

City claim on land may be insufficient

Proposed condo project site annex may be impossible

An effort to have a proposed 21-unit luxury condominium project near Plum Grove School annexed to Rolling Meadows may be legally impossible because the project site barely borders the city.

Teutsch Associates Inc., developer of the proposed condominium project, has approached the city about annexation of a 3.2 acre site on the west side of Meacham Road adjacent to the Dawngate subdivision. The plan already has received a recommendation for approval from a special city zoning commission.

But City Atty. Donald Rose told the Rolling Meadows City Council Tuesday that the proposed annexation may not be

The plan calls for the construction of 21 luxury condominium units which would sell for $70,000 to $80,000 each. The units would be built in seven townhouse-type buildings. A recreational club house swimming pool and tennis courts would be included on the site.

The plan has been opposed by residents of the Plum Grove Woodlands area near the site. The residents have said the project would detract from their residential area.

One of the residents, Jack Davis, 1862 S. Brockway, originally brought up the questionable annexation at a special zoning commission meeting in October.

ROSE WARNED THE council Tuesday that in his opinion, if the annexation is made and later challenged by an adjacent municipality, either Schaumburg or Palatine, the city would lose the lawsuit.

When Mayor Roland J. Meyer brought up the fact that annexations must be challenged within a year, Rose said the one-year limit would not apply if a municipality is ruled to not have legal jurisdiction to annex in the first place.

Teutsch representatives told the council they were aware of the annexation problem but hoped the city would not completely rule out the proposal. They said it would "make sense" for the city to oversee the development because the site would be a "natural extension" of the city's western limits.

At Rose's suggestion, however, the city council Tuesday deferred action on the annexation proposal until a later meeting.

Teutsch has already pledged a financial contribution to Palestine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15 if the project is built. Deputy Supt. Joseph Kiszka told the council of the contribution pledge. He later said the pledge would be $50 per bed in a unit, or a total of about $1,500.

possible unless more land is included in the proposal to substantiate a common border between the project and the city limits.

Only about 3 1/2 feet of frontage on the proposed lot directly borders a portion of the city's western limits.

IN RESPONSE TO a question from Ald. William Ahrens (2nd) on the legality of the proposed annexation, Rose said he forwarded a legal opinion to City Manager James Watson stating there was not sufficient continuity between the property and the city to warrant the annexation.

Rose said the move would constitute a "kitty-corner" annexation, which courts have held to be illegal.

Council rejects nursing home

The Rolling Meadows City Council voted unanimously Tuesday to turn down Roskamp Enterprises' request to build a nursing home on Kirchoff Road west of Ill. Rte. 53.

Robert Roskamp, one of the company's owners, was not present at the meeting when Mayor Roland Meyer opened a public hearing on the matter. When no one appeared to represent the company, Ald. Thomas Scanlan (1st) moved to deny the rezoning request. The motion was approved by a voice vote of the council.

Meyer said afterward that Roskamp agreed to drop the proposal when city officials indicated the project would likely not be approved.

Roskamp had planned to build a sheltered care and apartment-type facility for the elderly on the Kirchoff Road site. The plan had met heated opposition from residents of the Plum Grove Community and Winthrop Village subdivisions adjacent to the site.

A special city council zoning commission had recommended the plan be turned down.

The city currently has no nursing home facility, but several other similar proposals are pending before city officials.

City OKs flower show funds up to $2,000

An expenditure of up to $2,000 has been authorized by the Rolling Meadows City Council to fund city participation in the annual Chicago Flower and Garden Show.

The expenditure was approved Tuesday and will allow the city to set up a display booth at the show which runs March 23 to March 31 at McCormick Place.

The display will be prepared by the city's Recycling, Ecology and Beautification Committee. The expenditure will include an actual cost of about $1,270 for purchase of display materials, the printing of ecology pamphlets to be distributed at the show, transportation costs to and from the show for personnel manning the booth and the hiring of some persons to man the booth when volunteers are not available.

A similar contribution is to be made from the Village of Arlington Heights

An additional $702 in internal city costs are expected, including pay for a policeman at the show and pay for public works employees to set up and take down the booth.

The flower show is sponsored annually by the Chicago Horticultural Society and draws about 500,000 persons each year. City officials have said the show would provide a good avenue of publicity for the city.

Willow Bend School last year participated in the show but could not take part again this year because of the excessive costs to set up and man a booth.

The city will set up a 10-foot-by-20-foot booth and large bulletin boards depicting the city's work in recycling and beautification.

City to help pay for traffic lights

The city agreed Tuesday to again take part in the funding of traffic lights for the intersection of Algonquin and New Wilke Road. Aldermen voted to contribute $20,000 for the installation of permanent traffic lights at the intersection.

A similar contribution is to be made from the Village of Arlington Heights and the state to fund the cost of the signals. The permanent signals will be installed when the extension of New Wilke Road south to Golf Road is completed probably this year.

The city last year contributed jointly with Arlington Heights to fund the installation of the temporary traffic lights that now control the intersection.

Bids on park work to be opened Tuesday

The opening of bids for park improvement work in the Salt Creek Park District was postponed Tuesday because bids were not ready.

The park district board has tentatively planned a meeting Tuesday to open bids and review the submitted costs for the planned improvement work.

The park district plans to improve facilities at all three district parks, Winston Park, Rose Park and South Park. Improvements, including new playground equipment, landscaping, the addition of tennis courts and lighting, are part of the district's master plan of development over the next five years.

Builder tells of shakedown try by Stavros

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Former Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman James Stavros demanded a payoff to influence zoning for the Cedar Run development in Wheeling, The Herald has learned.

Stavros, under federal indictment in connection with alleged shakedowns of several other developers, made the payoff demand at a March 1970 meeting with a representative of Tekton Corp., developer of the 456-unit quadrominium project.

Company officials said the firm refused to go along with the shakedown attempt but one executive admitted hiring project subcontractors recommended by a village official in Wheeling.

THE TEKTON representative confronted by Stavros with the payoff demand agreed to provide information to The Herald on the condition that his name not be used.

The attempted extortion began five weeks after Tekton announced plans for construction of Cedar Run on the Horcher property north of McHenry Road and east of Buffalo Grove Road. Original plans for the project, announced Feb. 3, 1970, called for rezoning of the 40 acres from single-family residential use to planned unit development with a possible 12-story condominium building.

Stavros met with the Tekton representative in mid-March 1970 at the Black Ram Restaurant in Des Plaines.

"WE MET previously with school board and other local officials," the Tekton representative said. "We were seeking practical suggestions on how to proceed with an application for rezoning." The meeting with Stavros was brief. "I don't know if he (Stavros) even knew about the project. There was no question he was looking for money."

"It was like going to the candy store and asking for some JuJubes," the Tekton representative said. "The question was how much (zoning would cost). It was as simple as that."

The representative said that when national corporations plan a development, advice of local experts is sought in "informal" meetings. Stavros' demand for a payoff "really shocked me," the Tekton representative said.

The company flatly refused to give in to the Stavros demand, company sources said. "We've done nothing wrong," said David Zajack, a Tekton attorney.

"THE DIFFERENCE between our position and that of other individuals (developers) is that they made a cash payoff," said Lewis Wright, Tekton executive vice president.

"We gave all our records to the U.S. Attorney and the FBI. We opened our drawers to them," Wright said.

"We don't deny" that a payoff was demanded, Wright said.

Stavros was indicted two weeks ago by a federal grand jury on charges of extortion and conspiracy to commit extortion. Stavros, 3705 Whirlaway Dr., Northbrook, is charged with extorting from developers more than $111,000 plus real estate, water and sewer lines for his mother's house, liquor and a vacation for William Bieber, Wheeling planning and zoning director.

STAVROS' ATTORNEY, Joel Murray, said he is "totally unfamiliar with any charges other than those contained in the indictments. Mr. Stavros, acting on the advice of his counsel, is refusing to make any comment on any pending matter or on any matter that may be remotely connected with the indictments."

The only mention of Tekton in the six indictments returned Jan. 31 by a special federal grand jury involves Bieber and Rock Road Construction Co.

Bieber denied in grand jury testimony that he recommended hiring of certain subcontractors by developers. "The question is that you never recommended to any general contractor or any contractor in Wheeling that he use a subcontractor?" a U.S. attorney asked. "No, sir," Bieber answered.

The indictment charges Bieber lied when he denied urging Donald Buick of Tekton to "use Rock Road Construction Co."

WRIGHT acknowledged that an unnamed village official "did insist that we use certain subcontractors." However, Buick, who left Tekton in December 1973, said that he was not "coerced or influenced" to hire Rock Road.

Buick, interviewed last fall by an FBI agent, said, "I will not lie for the company, the village or the government. I can't prove a single thing. There were a lot of rumors."

Wheeling officials "never allowed me to buy them lunch," Buick said.

Rock Road was hired to pave Cedar Run streets, although the firm is not listed on the Tekton village building permit. "They did work for us in the past," Buick said.

ASST. U.S. ATTY. Steven Kadison said he will "stand by" the accuracy of the perjury indictment.

A second Cedar Run subcontractor, Domas Plumbing Co., 106 E. Dundee Rd., also is mentioned in the Bieber perjury indictment. Roman Domas, a Wheeling zoning board member in 1970 and a former trustee, was recommended by Bieber for Chesterfield Development Co. work, according to the indictment. Another Cedar Run subcontractor, village records show, was excavator Country Service and Supply Co., 3300 Milwaukee, Northbrook, which employs zoning board member Alan Martin.

Stavros and Bieber were both charged in one of the indictments with obtaining subcontracts with Ben Pekin Corp., developer of Tahoe Village, for Rock Road and Country Service.

After Stavros approached Tekton for a payoff, the firm hired attorney John M. Daley to handle its zoning case. Daley, a cousin of Chicago Mayor Richard Daley, became a Democratic ward committeeman in 1967 and sat on the county central committee with Stavros until Stavros resigned his committeeman post in November 1967.

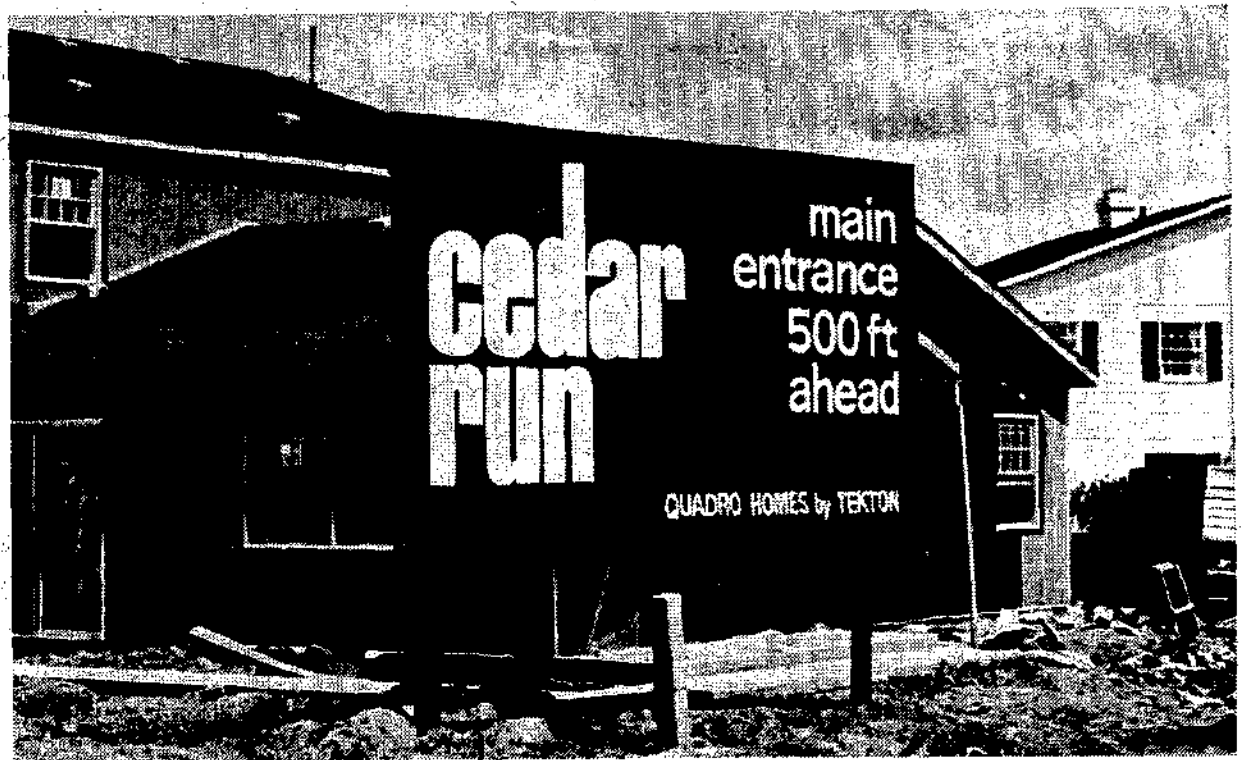

Daley told The Herald he previously represented Tekton in other zoning cases, but he refused to name the projects. He said he did not discuss any extortion attempt with Tekton officials or with Stavros.

Wright said the firm did not meet the payoff demand "because you have your legal rights. The other builders could have stopped this in the beginning. It just took us a heck of a long time to get approval (of zoning)."

Village records indicate no abnormal delays.

Tekton received zoning board approval for the Cedar Run project April 15, 1970, about a month after Stavros' meeting with the Tekton representative.

The Wheeling Village Board unanimously approved zoning for the project July 15, 1970, when the project included 22 one-bedroom, 226 two-bedroom, 182 three-bedroom and 26 four-bedroom townhouses.

CEDAR RUN DEVELOPERS in Wheeling said the townhouse project was delayed by refusal to pay a kickback to former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman James Stavros. The developers, Tekton Corp. of Oak Brook, revealed that they were pressured to use subcontractors recommended by local officials.

plan was approved Sept. 29, 1971.

Wright said the U.S. Attorney's office "wants to make sure that they can get a conviction. Our case was simply not a strong enough violation of the Hobbs Act," which prohibits interference of interstate commerce by extortion.

Tekton officials later refused additional comment about the development. "It could well be that this investigation is continuing," said Robert Bagdassarian, a New York attorney representing Tekton. "I have advised my client not to comment."

City Council wrapup

Police pension fund mandatory

An amendment to the city police pension fund code to require mandatory participation from new patrolmen in the police pension program was passed by the council Tuesday.

Payroll deductions will be made weekly from all patrolmen who join the force from now on. Previously, participation in the program was voluntary.

A similar mandatory participation clause in the fire department pension fund program for fire fighters has been in effect for some time.

City liquor code clarified

A wording change in the city's liquor code was authorized Tuesday when the word "minor" was replaced by the phrase "under 21 years old." The change was required to clarify interpretation of the liquor code as it pertains to illegal sale of alcohol — except beer and wine — to those under 21 years of age.

City Atty. Donald Rose said the state Constitution has interpreted the word "minor" to mean persons under 18 years old and therefore the change in the liquor code was required.

City to buy microfilm machine

A $5,000 3M microfilm reader-printer machine will be purchased by the city and another $2,500 will be spent to place on microfilm the city's building and zoning department records.

The expenditures were authorized Tuesday. Both figures were the lowest of three bids submitted to the city.

Siren system repairs ahead

The city's civil defense and fire siren system, which has been malfunctioning of late, will be repaired at a cost of $2,675.

The work will be done by the Great Lakes Fire and Safety Equipment Company of Barrington. The company will install a set of reeds in the city system to correct the malfunction.

Annexation plan submitted

An ordinance calling for the annexation of three parcels of land to the city was submitted for a first reading Tuesday to the council.

The small parcels are generally located along East and West Frontage roads and are being annexed to close up gaps in the city's boundaries.

Two public hearings postponed

Two public hearings which had been scheduled for Tuesday night's council meeting were postponed.

The hearing scheduled for developer Fredrick Walter's nursing home project near Central Road School was postponed until Feb. 26. Walter will meet Friday with 5th Ward Aldermen Fredrick Jacobson and Kenneth Retzke and area residents to discuss their fears that the project will increase flooding problems on their land.

The other hearing, on a proposed 1,080-unit townhouse development near Harper College, was postponed until next month because one of three developers behind the project has been hospitalized and could not attend the Tuesday meeting.

December sales tax total told

Sales tax collected in the city for the month of December totaled $135,210, it was reported at the meeting.

Westbury decision not expected for 60 days

Site plans for the 386 single-family home portion of the proposed Westbury development in Palatine Township were presented to the Hoffman Estates Plan Commission last night.

The commission will not reach a decision on the plan in less than 30 days, said Richard Regan, commission chairman. He estimated 60 days as a more reasonable time.

Richard Adashek, representing Allister Construction Co., said preliminary plans for the 1,483 townhouse and condominium units on 196.6 acres will be presented to the commission in two weeks. Allister is a subsidiary of Meridian Housing Corp., owner of the land.

The townhouse-condo portion will be a separate subdivision within the development.

FOR THE SINGLE-family home area, Adashek predicted 50 homes will be ready for occupancy by winter. In each succeeding year, 150 units will be completed, he said. He requested both preliminary and final approval for the first phase which includes 29 units, as quickly as possible. Allister is now seeking only preliminary approval of the three remaining phases.

In the four phases, the average lot size will be 3,820 square feet; gross density will be 2.3 units per acre and net density, excluding land which will not support houses, will be 3.4 units per acre.

The first phase on the southwest corner of Palatine and Williams roads will include the model area. Units will be built on lots averaging 6,350 square feet. The phase will include no retention or public use areas.

PHASE II WILL have 129 units on lots averaging 8,775 square feet. It will be immediately south of Phase I. Also in this phase will be donations of 4.4 acres for municipal use, which will include a fire station; a water storage tank and a well.

Phase III, south of Freeman Boulevard and along both sides of Freeman Road, will have 104 units on lots averaging 9,097 square feet. It also will include a retention basin, park land and an 8.6-acre elementary school site donation.

Phase IV on both sides of Freeman Road at the southern extremity of the Westbury property, will have 124 units on lots averaging 8,750 square feet. This phase will be contiguous to the Windemere subdivision in Palatine, the Winston Knolls subdivision in Hoffman Estates and land owned by Centex-Winston Corp. Within this phase there will be more retention area.

ALLISTER PLANS four basic home models with an initial selling price range of $45,000 to $65,000.

The ranch model will have three bedrooms, and two baths and an optional basement. A split-level model also will have three bedrooms and two baths and an optional lower level which will include a recreation room and a fourth bedroom. The raised ranch model will have three bedrooms and one bath with an optional finished lower level including a fourth bedroom and a family room.

The two-story model will have four bedrooms, 2½ baths and an optional basement.

The units will range in size from a total of 2,811 square feet to a maximum of 3,160 square feet including all options. Every unit will have a two-car attached garage.

Coin collectors can keep abreast of new issues and values, every Thursday in the HERALD.

Believed to have worked out of hospital

MEG agents bust suspected drug ring

Four former employees of Lutheran General Hospital were selling drugs suspected to have been stolen from the hospital and were acting as connections for sales of other narcotics, said sources in the Metropolitan Enforcement Group.

Agents said a "large quantity" of narcotics valued at some $25,000 were confiscated in a raid on the home of a Des Plaines man, including pharmaceuticals, or prescription drugs, such as amphetamines and barbiturates.

Six area men were arrested in coordinated raids Tuesday afternoon and evening on charges of sale and possession of various narcotics.

All six men were arraigned yesterday in Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court before Associate Judge Jerome Burke, who sets bonds for the men at between $2,500 and $20,000.

THE ARRESTS followed a month-long investigation in which undercover agents worked at Lutheran General to observe the suspects and arranged undercover deals that took place in and out of the hospital, agents said.

Arrested were Edward Miskiewicz, 22, of 8746 Stolling, Niles; Edward Mueller, 21, of 2157 Elmira Ave., Des Plaines; Steven P. Best, 18, of 8974 Western, Des Plaines; and George Nowak, 21, of 1551 Maple St., Glenview. All four men were employees at the hospital but were fired last week.

Neil Fagrellius, 20, also of the Elmira address in Des Plaines, and an Arlington Heights man, Allan Borre, 21, 1106 Waterman, were arrested. The two had not worked at Lutheran General, agents said, but were reportedly involved in the ring.

Mueller, Borre and Fagrellius were arrested at Mueller's home where agents confiscated a variety of illicit drugs in large bottles along with hospital supplies including stethoscopes, surgical instruments and hospital bed linens. The remaining three were arrested at their homes.

A RIFLE, SHOTGUN and an undetermined amount of cash were also seized agents said they were checking registration on the weapons yesterday.

Tracy Stern, a Lutheran General spokesman, doubted that large amounts of drugs were stolen from the hospital, adding, "There is no listing, or no knowledge of anything of any consequence taken from the hospital."

He said hospital officials became suspicious of the four men after an employee discovered about a month ago that a medicine cabinet in a supply room had been tampered with. The matter was turned over to Park Ridge police and MEG agents were later called in to work undercover.

AGENTS SAID yesterday, however, they were still investigating exactly how the illicit drugs were obtained.

Mueller was charged with selling MDA, a hallucinogenic drug, and amphetamines, while Nowak was also accused of selling MDA. Best faces counts of selling marijuana, barbiturates, and amphetamines.

Agents charged Fagrellius with two counts of possession of a controlled substance, while Borre and Miskiewicz were charged with possession of dangerous drugs.

All six were still being held on bond and were scheduled to be taken to Cook County Jail. They will appear Feb. 26 in the Niles Circuit Court branch.

Agents said the case is still under investigation, but expected that no additional arrests would be made immediately.

It's slip-'n'-slide time on roads again

Icy roads and sudden fog caused multiple car crashes throughout the Northwest suburbs yesterday morning. On one stretch to Ill. Rte. 72 between Ill. Rte. 53 and Arlington Heights Road, eight cars were caused damage during the morning rush hour. In all, county sheriff's police were called on 58 minor incidents in the northern half of Cook County.

In this accident scene, police said what looked like a long pile up of automobiles on Higgins Road was really a series of two-car crashes that tied up traffic and added to the foggy morning blues.

For a full rundown of yesterday's accidents, see Page 6.

Senate committee hearing indicates more trouble ahead

by KAREN BLECHA
At least one thing is certain about the severe gasoline shortage in Chicago and the suburbs: it will continue.
Officials of major oil companies testified at Senate Commerce Committee hearings in Chicago yesterday that the gas shortage in this area will last through February and possibly longer. The shortage, they said, will go on despite between 6 to 7 million additional gallons of gasoline expected to be funneled to the Chicago area from the State of Illinois' reserves.
The hearings, in the federal building in Chicago, were called in an effort to head off another gasoline marketing squeeze like the one that occurred during the last week of January. Sen. Adlai Stevenson

III, D-Ill., who chaired the hearings, said testimony would help the commerce committee determine whether changes in government or industry policy are needed to avert another squeeze.
OTHER TESTIMONY at the five-hour-long hearings showed:
• Chicago and its suburbs are experiencing a much more severe gasoline shortage than the rest of Illinois.
• Officials of the Federal Energy Office (FEO) and the Illinois State Fuel Allocation Office do not have enough information on available oil supplies to design a workable allocation plan for the Chicago area.
• Oil company officials, consumers and gasoline dealers blame each other for the long lines and waits to buy gas.

Oil company representatives also criticized the media for causing "panic buying."
"There is no question that the problems of January will continue," said Charles A. Walsh, Jr., vice president of Atlantic Richfield Co. "As of Feb. 11 in Chicago, 53 per cent of our allocated gallons for the month had been delivered to dealers. As of the 11th, 10 per cent of our dealers had taken their total allocation for the month."
Even if the Arab embargo on oil is lifted, Walsh said, it would take 60 to 90 days until the crude oil starts flowing into U.S. refineries.
H. RINKEMA, regional vice president of Amoco Oil Co., the largest individual supplier of gasoline in Illinois, said the demand for gas in the Chicago area is overwhelmingly heavier than the demand downstate. He said that in January, Amoco sold 39.6 million gallons of gas in the Chicago metropolitan area while it sold 10.9 million gallons in its Springfield district and 8.6 million gallons in its Rockford district.

On Jan. 29, he said 123 Amoco stations in the Chicago area were out of gas, while only three in the Springfield district and 12 in the Rockford district had the same problem.
"None of our work is bringing any more gas into Illinois," said James W. Cook, coordinator for the State Fuel Allocation Office. Cook said his office has

Gasoline by the numbers here?

by United Press International
Gov. Daniel Walker said Wednesday Illinois may join those states basing gasoline purchases on odd and even license plate numbers.
He said the system would be instituted only if the gasoline shortage continues or worsens and that in his view it would not be rationing.
"The odd-even way would be a way of cutting down long lines at gas stations and it would be fair," he said.
Walker also said some of a 12-million-gallon March allocation of gasoline pegged for Illinois priority users such as police, fire departments, hospitals and farm equipment users could go to the state's motorists.
"If we find that we don't need all that amount, I will do my utmost to divert some of it to other uses," he said.

Alleges developer got special treatment

School official charges improprieties in zoning OK

by PAT GERLACH
The board president of Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 has asked for a state and federal investigation of possible perjury charges against a developer who received tentative zoning in Schaumburg this week.
School Board Pres. Donnie Rudd requested the probe in a Feb. 11 letter to Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey, with a carbon copy sent to U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson. Rudd named Ronald Benach, who intends to develop a condominium project under the name Lexington Green on property partly owned by Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher.

"I don't think that this warrants any comment," was all Mayor Atcher would say about the letter yesterday.
Rudd contends Benach told school officials that because Atcher owns the land and the mayor controls zoning, Benach did not need to make the standard cash donation to the school district.

But, according to Rudd, Benach denied having made such statements while he testified under oath at a zoning board hearing.
"THIS IS A LOT of poppycock and misstatement," said Benach when he was informed of Rudd's letter. He said he is seriously considering filing a slander suit against Rudd.
School officials consider Benach's offer of $25-per-unit contributions for 480 condominiums planned at Meacham and Old Schaumburg roads inadequate. The 43-acre parcel, now owned by Atcher and Chicago philanthropist Jack M. Fritzkler, is under contract purchase by Benach.
When the zoning petition was announced, Atcher said he was removing himself from any consideration of the project because of possible conflict of interest.
Rudd said school administrators told him Benach objected to the requests for school, hospital and cultural center donations during a negotiating session and told them he would do his negotiating with the mayor.

THE ADMINISTRATORS advised Benach that Atcher was not involved in the situation and cautioned him against that action, Rudd said.
Rudd, who was not present at the school negotiating session, said Benach denied making such statements while testifying at a zoning board hearing.
"I am not critical of the mayor because I don't think he wanted this to occur," said Rudd, also noting that neither he nor the district has requested a county investigation in the past.
"If what my people are telling me is

Police consultant turns out to be a 'sandbagger'

The School of Hard Knocks opened in a two-door sedan recently when the Hoffman Estates Police Department needed a body, not necessarily warm.
And the experience raised lumps and bruises on the body of Michael Mulcahy, police consultant at Conant High School, when he volunteered for the job.
The department was testing the physical ability of applicants, and following recommendations of state police and fire commissioners, asked the rookie-hopeful to lift 200-pounds of dead weight from the rear seat of a two-door sedan. They started with a 200-pound sandbag, but the dead weight was too strenuous for the men.
The next attempt was made with a 180-pound sandbag, and it worked fine — for the first three men only.

Dragging the sandbag through the auto and dropping it to the ground was rough, and the bag broke. Even a sandbag couldn't take it.
By this time the department was out of sand, and 55 men still hadn't lifted the weight.
Mulcahy volunteered.
The department started over, and Mulcahy was the weight.
Fifty-eight times, he was dragged from the rear seat, over the front seat and out the door.
"I was awfully sore," said Mulcahy, who learned something in his sedan-school. Mulcahy may volunteer again, but he's a cinch to keep quiet if they need a sandbag body again.
His experience "will never be repeated," he now says.

Westbury decision not expected for 60 days

Site plans for the 366 single-family home portion of the proposed Westbury development in Palatine Township were presented to the Hoffman Estates Plan Commission last night.
The commission will not reach a decision on the plan in less than 30 days, said Richard Regan, commission chairman. He estimated 60 days as a more reasonable time.
Richard Adashek, representing Allister Construction Co., said preliminary plans for the 1,463 townhouse and condominium units on 195.6 acres will be presented to the commission in two weeks. Allister is a subsidiary of Meridian Housing Corp., owner of the land.
The townhouse-condo portion will be a separate subdivision within the development.
FOR THE SINGLE-family home area, Adashek predicted 50 homes will be ready for occupancy by winter. In each succeeding year, 150 units will be completed, he said. He requested both preliminary and final approval for the first phase which includes 29 units, as quickly as possible. Allister is now seeking only preliminary approval of the three remaining phases.

School board, students to hold 'rap' session

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Students and board members from High School Dist. 211 will sit down face to face tonight for a rap session on student discipline, the energy crisis, grades and channels of communication between students, the board and the administration.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the district administration center, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine, with 10 students, two from each high school in the district.

Board members have asked that the chairs in the room be set up in a circle instead of at the usual board table which faces the audience and they have asked that their name plates be replaced with name tags.

Tonight's agenda is a combination of an agenda submitted by board members and one submitted by students. The first category, on school policy, will include discussions on open campus, class scheduling, student smoking, the energy crisis and suspension or expulsion of students from school. The category on curriculum will include discussion on the necessity of required courses and the feasibility of taking some courses for credit without receiving a grade.

IN THE CATEGORY on communication channels, the group will talk about student apathy and the effectiveness of student council. The group will also discuss the effectiveness of counselors and on the need for a fieldhouse, auditorium and swimming pool in each high school in the last category on school staff and facilities.

One of the main topics tonight will probably concern school rules. Students and administrators in each school have been working together for several weeks discussing possible changes in the district discipline policy. Recommended changes in the policy developed by students and administrators have been submitted to Dist. 211 Supt. Richard Kolze and the board. Most of the reports suggest minor changes except the report from Fremd High School written by student council president Jonathan Nelson. Nelson's suggestions will probably be brought up tonight.

In a letter to the board, Nelson takes issue with the policy of giving students an "F" grade if they are absent from class too often. He suggests some alternatives to the policy and adds "In any case, however, I don't think that an 'F' grade should ever be attached to a student's record unless it reflects a student's lack of ability in that academic area. Discipline records are for discipline problems. Academic records are for academic achievement or problems."

NELSON ALSO objects to removing a student from class if he is absent too often. "I also think that removing a person from class and temporarily revoking his right to public education for merely failing to use that opportunity to its fullest extent, is defeatist," he says.

Nelson had earlier appeared before the board to ask that a student be given a non-voting seat on the board and also asked to be placed on an administrative committee studying discipline.

Vote split in two parts

$16.6 million school bond referendum set Saturday

Local residents will go to the polls from noon until 7 p.m. Saturday to vote on a $16.6 million bond issue referendum for Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54.

The referendum will be split into the following two parts:

- $700,000 for a new administration center to be located near Schaumburg School on Schaumburg Road.
- $15.9 million for construction of eight schools, additions for four schools and a nature area building and renovation of the eight oldest schools in the district.

It is expected that the second part of the referendum will provide 220 classrooms to meet the growth in the school district until 1980. Renovation is anticipated to cost $3.06 million, and the nature building about $62,000.

IF THE REFERENDUM passes, the construction will be phased according to population development at various locations throughout the school district.

School taxes for the average homeowner are anticipated to drop $6 even if the bond issue is approved. If it does not pass, officials expect the average tax bill to drop $25 to $30 because of increased assessed valuation in the district and retirement of outstanding bonds.

State funding may be available from the Illinois Capital Development Board, and some of the bonds may never have to be issued, resulting in a greater savings to taxpayers. However, new buildings must be approved before state funds can become available.

The 11 polling places in the district are:

- Precinct 1, Collins School, 407 S.

- Summit Dr., Schaumburg.
- Precinct 2, Twinbrook School, 400 Ash Rd., Hoffman Estates.
- Precinct 3, Hillcrest School, 201 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates.
- Precinct 4, Hoffman School, 101 Grand Canyon Blvd., Hoffman Estates.
- Precinct 5, Campanelli School, 310 Springguth Rd., Schaumburg.
- Precinct 6, Hanover Highlands School, 1451 Cypress Ave., Hanover

- Park.

Mr. Bernard Carey
States Attorney of Cook County
2600 South California Avenue
Chicago, Illinois

Dear Mr. Carey:

I am President of the Board of Education of School District 54. It is customary for our school district to enter discussions with developers in the district regarding donations to the school district of offset a detrimental impact by a development.

Recently in such discussions, a Mr. Ronald Benach made the statement that the property he was developing was owned by Mayor Robert Atcher and since the Mayor was in control of the zoning, he need not make the standard donation. When Mr. Benach was placed under oath at the zoning hearing, he testified that he never made any statements regarding Mayor Atcher's involvement in this matter.

I am requesting that your office investigate this matter for possible perjury. The school district has witnesses on both sides who will be willing to discuss this matter with your investigators.

Respectfully,

not true, then I've got some house-cleaning to do," he remarked.

Benach explained he was "flabbergasted" at the amount of money the school district felt it should receive and said he "doubts all builders in the area" have complied with district contribution guidelines.

He said he briefly considered talking with the mayor about "reducing some of the other contributions such as the hospital and cultural center," but discarded the idea.

"I THINK MR. RUDD'S action here was a little strong," said Jim Blankenship, former village liaison to Dist. 54. But Blankenship said he prefers to reserve comment "unless and until an investigation gets under way." Blankenship was present at the negotiating meeting, but said he had no knowledge of Rudd's request for investigation.

Dist. 54 board members Gordon Thoren, Adam Jelen, Brenda Pulla and Arlene Czajkowski said they were not aware of the letter to Carey. Mrs. Pulla and Mrs. Czajkowski agreed with Rudd's action but Thoren and Jelen said they would prefer to know when such correspondence goes out. Board members Mary Hannon and Sherwood Spatz could not be reached for comment.

Laurie Granger, public information director for Carey, said the letter reached her office yesterday and will be referred to an attorney for assessment. No decision in the matter is expected for at least a week, she added.

A spokesman in Thompson's office said the copy had not yet been received and indicated it might take about a week before any decision is made there.

It's slip-'n'-slide time on roads again

Icy roads and sudden fog caused multiple car crashes throughout the Northwest suburbs yesterday morning. On one stretch to Ill. Rte. 72 between Ill. Rte. 53 and Arlington Heights Road, eight cars were caused damage during the morning rush hour. In all, county sheriff's police were called on 50 minor incidents in the northern half of Cook County.

In this accident scene, police said what looked like a long pile up of automobiles on Higgins Road was really a series of two-car crashes that tied up traffic and added to the foggy morning blues.

For a full rundown of yesterday's accidents, see Page 6.

Senate committee hearing indicates more trouble ahead

No quick end to Chicago-area gas squeeze

by KAREN BLECHA

At least one thing is certain about the severe gasoline shortage in Chicago and the suburbs: It will continue.

Officials of major oil companies testified at Senate Commerce Committee hearings in Chicago yesterday that the gas shortage in this area will last through February and possibly longer. The shortage, they said, will go on despite between 6 to 7 million additional gallons of gasoline expected to be funneled to the Chicago area from the State of Illinois' reserves.

The hearings, in the federal building in Chicago, were called in an effort to head off another gasoline marketing squeeze like the one that occurred during the last week of January. Sen. Adlai Stevenson

III, D-Ill., who chaired the hearings, said testimony would help the commerce committee determine whether changes in government or industry policy are needed to avert another squeeze.

OTHER TESTIMONY at the five-hour-long hearings showed:

- Chicago and its suburbs are experiencing a much more severe gasoline shortage than the rest of Illinois.

- Officials of the Federal Energy Office (FEO) and the Illinois State Fuel Allocation Office do not have enough information on available oil supplies to design a workable allocation plan for the Chicago area.

- Oil company officials, consumers and gasoline dealers blame each other for the long lines and waits to buy gas.

Oil company representatives also criticized the media for causing "panic buying."

"There is no question that the problems of January will continue," said Charles A. Walsh, Jr., vice president of Atlantic Richfield Co. "As of Feb. 11 in Chicago, 53 per cent of our allocated gallons for the month had been delivered to dealers. As of the 11th, 10 per cent of our dealers had taken their total allocation for the month."

Even if the Arab embargo on oil is lifted, Walsh said, it would take 60 to 90 days until the crude oil starts flowing into U.S. refineries.

H. RINKEMA, regional vice president of Amoco Oil Co., the largest individual supplier of gasoline in Illinois, said the demand for gas in the Chicago area is overwhelmingly heavier than the demand downstate. He said that in January, Amoco sold 39.6 million gallons of gas in the Chicago metropolitan area while it sold 10.9 million gallons in its Springfield district and 8.6 million gallons in its Rockford district.

On Jan. 29, he said 123 Amoco stations in the Chicago area were out of gas, while only three in the Springfield district and 12 in the Rockford district had the same problem.

"None of our work is bringing any more gas into Illinois," said James W. Cook, coordinator for the State Fuel Allocation Office. Cook said his office has

Gasoline by the numbers here?

by United Press International

Gov. Daniel Walker said Wednesday Illinois may join those states basing gasoline purchases on odd and even license plate numbers.

He said the system would be instituted only if the gasoline shortage continues or worsens and that in his view it would not be rationing.

"The odd-even way would be a way of cutting down long lines at gas stations and it would be fair," he said.

Walker also said some of a 12-million-gallon March allocation of gasoline pegged for Illinois priority users such as police, fire departments, hospitals and farm equipment users could go to the state's motorists.

"If we find that we don't need all that amount, I will do my utmost to divert some of it to other uses," he said.

Purchase of golf course would hike taxes

Village to survey residents on Rob Roy land proposals

by MARCIA KRAMER

Mount Prospect residents will be surveyed on their willingness to pay extra taxes in order to retain the Rob Roy Golf Course as open space.

Village trustees, meeting behind closed doors for three hours Tuesday night, agreed to quiz residents. Trustees hope the village-wide survey will help shed some light on what they should do in view of proposed plans to convert the golf course into a high-density development.

According to Mayor Robert D. Teichert, the survey, which will not be binding on the village board, will offer three options:

- The entire golf course should be bought by the village, at an estimated cost of $8 million to $9 million. This choice would include the stipulation that taxes be raised by an as yet undetermined amount spread over 20 years to finance the purchase.

- Kenroy Inc., Skokie, the contract purchaser of the property, should be permitted to build a planned unit development on the course, but at the same time would be required to maintain open space on the perimeter as a buffer zone to neighboring residential areas. Under this option, the property would be owned by Kenroy, but some control over its use would be exerted by the village.

- Annexation of the property, which is currently in unincorporated Wheeling Township, should be rejected by the village. Under this option, Kenroy would be forced to go to Cook County officials for the necessary zoning change. The county is considered more lenient than local municipalities in allowing multi-family housing.

SPACE ALSO will be provided on the survey for residents to write in any unlisted options they prefer. Exact wording of the survey is expected to be approved by the village board at its meeting Tuesday night, and the form is expected to be mailed to each local household within a month.

It will be accompanied by a cover letter describing the options and the proposed Rob Roy development outlined by Kenroy. Kenroy hopes to build 4,500 apartment and condominium units on the golf course, east of Wheeling Road between Camp McDonald Road and Euclid Avenue. The Kenroy proposal is before the village board of appeals, which will review the plan at a public hearing a week from tonight.

Teichert pointed out that the upcoming survey "is not a referendum. It's just a matter of sampling the temperament of the community." The mayor declined to disclose his preferences for the Rob Roy property, but said the trustees opted for a survey because they could not agree among themselves what position the village should take in view of the Kenroy proposal.

In an informal survey by The Herald after Kenroy's plans were disclosed last month, village trustees generally indicated they opposed any development of the golf course and favored village purchase of the property, but were uncertain whether the public would be willing to foot the bill to keep the property as open space.

TEICHERT DEFENDED the decision to sample village residents, saying he "would never advocate running government by survey. We're not trying to throw this back on the community," he said. "We can make the decision. It's just that an operation this big will have a tremendous impact on the community and we'd like to at least have some indication what people think of it."

The survey forms will not ask for the identity of respondents, but will be color-coded to reflect four or five parts of town so a heavy return from a certain area will not be interpreted as village-wide opinion.

Teichert said he could not estimate the cost of the survey, but said it would be "relatively inexpensive" compared to a full-scale referendum, which costs $4,000 to $5,000.

Des Plaines gives initial OK to boundary accord

Des Plaines city officials have given their unofficial stamp of approval to the tentative boundary agreement worked out with neighboring Mount Prospect.

However, official announcement of the terms of the agreement, originally planned for yesterday, has been put off until Tuesday night when the Des Plaines City Council and the Mount Prospect Village Board will officially ratify the compromise plan.

It is believed that Des Plaines will claim property generally lying east of Elmhurst Road around Algonquin Road, including the Colonial apartments, and that Mount Prospect will take in property west of Elmhurst Road, including the Waterfall and Terranea restaurants. The Elmhurst-Algonquin vicinity has been involved in a tug-of-war between the two suburbs for several months.

The former Dawn Fresh Mushroom Farm property at the southwest corner of Elmhurst Road and Dempster Street, however, was not involved in the boundary agreement, according to Des Plaines officials. Following a lengthy court fight, the property was awarded to Mount Prospect, however, Des Plaines officials may appeal the court's ruling. The 8.9-acre piece of property is to contain 198 apartment units, with groundbreaking scheduled for this spring.

The Des Plaines City Council's tentative approval of the boundary agreement came during a 1½-hour executive session meeting Tuesday night, a week after Mount Prospect village trustees, also meeting behind closed doors, agreed to adopt the compromise.

Senior citizens can get discounts in many stores

Today's the day senior citizens in Mount Prospect can begin shopping in some local stores at reduced rates.

A discount program involving 36 local businesses goes into effect today, offering seniors lowered costs in varying amounts, generally 10 per cent.

Participating stores will be identifiable by stickers in their windows. The stores include beauty salons, hearing aid and optical shops, and pharmacies. In addition, three local banks and one theater are participating.

The program, arranged by Kathleen Stoga, program coordinator of the Mount Prospect Senior Citizens Services office, is designed to help the elderly cope with rising prices while subsisting on a fixed income.

"It gives the seniors an opportunity to stretch their dollars," she said. "I know other people are experiencing problems with income nowadays. But price increases hit seniors, the most, there's no two ways about it."

To qualify for a discount, a resident must be over 65 years of age and must present a medicare card. A list of participating merchants appeared in The Herald Monday and will be available in booklet form at the senior citizen services office, 800 S. See-Gwan Ave., by the end of the month.

Police probing armed robbery reported here

Cook County Sheriff's Police are investigating an apparent armed robbery that occurred yesterday afternoon at the Prospect Heights Cleaners, 15 S. Wolf Rd., Prospect Heights.

Details surrounding the incident were still unavailable from investigators late last night. Police would only confirm that a call was answered late yesterday afternoon, stating that a robbery was in progress at the cleaners.

Early reports said two persons, apparently armed with a knife, were involved.

CHARLES BECK WILL portray Prof. Harold Hill in the Prospect High School production of "The Music Man" scheduled for this week and next. The play will be presented at 7 p.m. Thursday and 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday Feb. 20 and 21 at 7 p.m. and Feb. 23 at 8 p.m. Reserved seat tickets are $2.

The local scene

280 at Centel give blood

Some 280 Central Telephone Co. (Centel) employees donated blood in a program organized by the company that will also benefit the Mount Prospect blood drive. Because the number of donors exceeded 20 per cent of the firm's employees, all employees of Centel and their immediate families, are entitled to an unlimited amount of blood for one year.

Blood donated by residents of Mount Prospect in the Centel drive also will count toward the village's goal of 1,800 pints. If 4 per cent of the village residents give blood, all residents will be able to get blood for one year.

Post Office closed Monday

The U.S. Post Office in Mount Prospect will be closed Monday because of Washington's Birthday. No window service will be available, and no deliveries will be made.

Girl Scout skill day set

Girl Scout Troop 499 of Mount Prospect will sponsor a skills day for junior girl scouts Saturday at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights. Senior troop members will give instruction in songs, games, food preparation, knots, lashing, first aid, firebuilding, tents, campcraft and trailblazing.

Erviti pact extension expected within a month

by BOB GALLAS

Dist. 59 Supt. James Erviti, rumored a year ago to be on his way out, will apparently have his contract extended again this year, according to informed sources in the district.

Several members of the Elk Grove Township school board, while refusing to comment on the contract, said they expect action on the matter to come within the next two meetings of the board, which meets the first and third Mondays of the month.

Erviti still has two years remaining on a three-year contract, which calls for an annual salary of $34,182 plus a host of fringe benefits.

If the board decides to extend the contract, the entire document will probably be rewritten, which could mean further changes, such as a pay raise or other benefits. His present contract runs through July, 1976. If the extension is approved the contract will run to July, 1977.

ERVITI RECEIVED a similar extension and an 8 per cent pay raise last year. The extension is generally thought to be a vote of confidence in the superintendent by the school board.

Erviti's contract extension last year came as somewhat of a surprise since many in the district believed the board was only going to give Erviti a pay raise, without renewing his contract or in effect, giving him a "hunting" license to look for a new job while remaining as superintendent.

The board met early this week in a closed, executive session to review Erviti's contract as is done every year. Erviti has been with Dist. 59 since 1970.

It's reported the board is split 5-2 or 4-3 over the contract, with the majority favoring extending it by one year.

IN ADDITION to his salary, other benefits in Erviti's present contract include a car complete with license plates, gas and insurance, a $50,000 life insurance policy, cumulative sick leave and four weeks of vacation per year.

He also will receive one month's pay for every year he spends in the district, when or if he should leave.

Bible prophecy film set

"A Thief in the Night," a film dealing with Bible prophecy, will be shown at 7 p.m. Sunday at Cumberland Baptist Church, 1500 E. Central Rd., Mount Prospect.

Park board wrapup

Lions Park pool plan accepted

A preliminary floor plan and elevation plan for the proposed renovation of the Lions Park pool were accepted by the Prospect Heights Park District board Tuesday. Specifications of the plans were not immediately available because they remain in the hands of architects James H. Deal and Gerald Page of Prospect Heights.

The pool improvements are planned as part of a bond referendum project which may also include construction of a community center, landscaping, additional tennis courts and other general park improvements.

No cost estimate has been placed on the referendum but officials say it could be as high as $1.1 million.

Deal and Page have been commissioned to draw up preliminary plans for the pool and community center. The completed plans are expected to be ready to present to the board by the end of the month.

Defeat of RTA bill urged

The Prospect Heights Park District board has urged defeat of the proposed Regional Transit Authority bill unless provisions giving the RTA board the right of eminent domain are removed from the proposal.

A resolution objecting to the RTA's right of eminent domain was approved by the park board Tuesday. Eminent domain, which would give the RTA board the power to condemn public parks, state forest and forest preserve district land, is detrimental because it represents an encroachment on public land, the resolution stated.

The park board said its only objection to the RTA bill, which will be voted on March 19, is with the eminent domain provision.

Land sale restricted

A resolution restricting the sale, lease or transfer of three parcels of land next to Lions Park has been approved by the Prospect Heights Park District board.

The resolution, which prohibits transfer of the lands without prior approval from the Department of Housing and Urban Development, was a formality needed in order for the park district to receive a federal grant of $10,950 to help purchase the lands.

Mechanized reading

Lincoln School students have a new set of tools to work on reading skills

Officials at Lincoln Junior High School in Mount Prospect believe they have found a helpful motivational tool to aid students in improving their reading and vocabulary skills — machines.

The equipment plus workbooks and other reading aids, comprises the backbone of the school's developmental reading lab. Seventh-graders spend a full semester working in the lab to improve their reading and eighth graders may elect to participate in the program if they choose.

The machines include tape recorders, controlled readers and projectors which are geared toward improving vocabulary, reading comprehension and speed.

Students spend time on each piece of equipment and work at their own speed according to a program outline developed by reading lab supervisor Pearl Rider.

Mrs. Rider, also the school's language arts chairman, places each student at a certain machine at the beginning of the semester and as he completes his work, he moves on to another piece of equipment.

VARIOUS AREAS of development are focused on at each piece of equipment. For example, vocabulary is stressed on the broadcaster, a tape recorder which can conduct six programs at one time. Reading comprehension is developed on the shadow scope, a screen with a scanning light that moves across the page of a book at a fixed speed, and comprehension is the focus of the controlled readers, small screen projectors used to aid students in reading novels.

"The program is an individual one but it is structured in the sense that there is a certain amount of work students must get done," Mrs. Rider said.

"The students keep a chart of their own progress and we also give them letter grades but the most important thing in the program is their overall reading improvement," Mrs. Rider said. "Our primary concern is that they improve their comprehension and vocabulary. Speed is of the least importance."

THE PROGRAM, which has been in operation at Lincoln for two years, has helped develop positive improvements in the children's reading skills, according to Mrs. Rider. Grades improve steadily and tests taken at the end of the semester show marked improvements in reading ability.

"I think the program operates well because the students have a large space to work in (the lab is a double classroom). They work well on their own and don't abuse their privileges," Mrs. Rider said. "The machines are a good motivational source and if the children do their work, they can't help but improve."

Mrs. Rider added that the lab, which is vested with thousands of dollars worth of equipment, is designed to help not only poor readers but superior students as well. Students using the facility range from those reading classical novels to those working at the third and fourth grade level. The current semester's enrollment also includes learning disabilities and educable mentally handicapped students.

"We have something here for everyone," Mrs. Rider said.

THE PROGRAM also is receiving area-wide attention with other districts asking if they may visit the lab to see how it operates.

"They are all impressed but they admit their problem is in trying to get the money to invest in the program. We did it a little at a time but I have spent almost seven years in planning and developing before we got this lab," Mrs. Rider said.

Lincoln school principal Donald Driver said he is "very pleased" with the progress of the reading program and hopes it can be developed further next year so more eighth grade students will be able to use the lab.

Planning unit tells how schools can save energy

The planning committee of the Dist. 23 school board has recommended further steps the district may take to reduce the amount of energy used in schools to conserve fuel.

The two-page report, presented to the board at a recent meeting, said the district has already reduced its power consumption an estimated 5 per cent by turning off unnecessary school lights and lowering thermostats.

The report listed five steps that could be initiated immediately to further reduce power consumption and listed another three steps as future considerations and three other steps as emergency measures.

AMONG THE steps proposed for immediate action are:

- Consider cutting the use of showers for adult activities now being run on Saturdays and after hours at schools.
- Disconnect power on weekends to cold storage units such as soda pop machines and machines where no spoilage will occur.
- Remove lights on vending machines.
- Look into possible savings by lowering hot water temperatures in showers.
- Schedule copy machines to run in peak copy time only.

AS FUTURE considerations the report listed:

- Consider choice of equipment (new and replacement) on efficiency and efficiency change basis.
- When school hours can be changed, schedule hours for maximum use of daylight hours.
- If possible, set school calendars so maximum heating and cooling periods (seasonal) are not school attendance days.

LISTED AS EMERGENCY measures are:

- Cut night and weekend programs as required to reduce power.
 - Reduce lighting level to the state minimum requirement.
 - Cut school attendance days as allowed without a cut in state aid.
- Board member Vincent Battaglia also suggested the district consider limiting the hours which schools may be kept open for night activities to 10 p.m.

The board accepted the report and agreed to consider the proposals.

CENTRAL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF ILLINOIS

It's slip-'n'-slide time on roads again

Icy roads and sudden fog caused multiple car crashes throughout the Northwest suburbs yesterday morning. On one stretch to Ill. Rte. 72 between Ill. Rte. 53 and Arlington Heights Road, eight cars were caused damage during the morning rush hour. In all, county sheriff's police were called on 50 minor incidents in the northern half of Cook County.

In this accident scene, police said what looked like a long pile up of automobiles on Higgins Road was really a series of two-car crashes that tied up traffic and added to the foggy morning blues.

Senate committee hearing indicates more trouble ahead

by KAREN BLECHA

At least one thing is certain about the severe gasoline shortage in Chicago and the suburbs: it will continue.

Officials of major oil companies testified at Senate Commerce Committee hearings in Chicago yesterday that the gas shortage in this area will last through February and possibly longer. The shortage, they said, will go on despite between 6 to 7 million additional gallons of gasoline expected to be funneled to the Chicago area from the State of Illinois' reserves.

The hearings, in the federal building in Chicago, were called in an effort to head off another gasoline marketing squeeze like the one that occurred during the last week of January. Sen. Adlai Stevenson

III, D-Ill., who chaired the hearings, said testimony would help the commerce committee determine whether changes in government or industry policy are needed to avert another squeeze.

OTHER TESTIMONY at the five-hour-long hearings showed:

- Chicago and its suburbs are experiencing a much more severe gasoline shortage than the rest of Illinois.

- Officials of the Federal Energy Office (FEO) and the Illinois State Fuel Allocation Office do not have enough information on available oil supplies to design a workable allocation plan for the Chicago area.

- Oil company officials, consumers and gasoline dealers blame each other for the long lines and waits to buy gas.

Oil company representatives also criticized the media for causing "panic buying."

"There is no question that the problems of January will continue," said Charles A. Walsh, Jr., vice president of Atlantic Richfield Co. "As of Feb. 11 in Chicago, 53 per cent of our allocated gallons for the month had been delivered to dealers. As of the 11th, 10 per cent of our dealers had taken their total allocation for the month."

Even if the Arab embargo on oil is lifted, Walsh said, it would take 60 to 90 days until the crude oil starts flowing into U.S. refineries.

H. RINKEMA, regional vice president of Amoco Oil Co., the largest individual supplier of gasoline in Illinois, said the demand for gas in the Chicago area is overwhelmingly heavier than the demand downstate. He said that in January, Amoco sold 39.6 million gallons of gas in the Chicago metropolitan area while it sold 10.9 million gallons in its Springfield district and 8.6 million gallons in its Rockford district.

On Jan. 29, he said 123 Amoco stations in the Chicago area were out of gas, while only three in the Springfield district and 12 in the Rockford district had the same problem.

"None of our work is bringing any more gas into Illinois," said James W. Cook, coordinator for the State Fuel Allocation Office. Cook said his office has

Gasoline by the numbers here?

Gov. Daniel Walker said Wednesday Illinois may join those states basing gasoline purchases on odd and even license plate numbers.

He said the system would be instituted only if the gasoline shortage continues or worsens and that in his view it would not be rationing.

"The odd-even way would be a way of cutting down long lines at gas stations and it would be fair," he said.

Walker also said some of a 12-million-gallon March allocation of gasoline pegged for Illinois priority users such as police, fire departments, hospitals and farm equipment users could go to the state's motorists.

"If we find that we don't need all that amount, I will do my utmost to divert some of it to other uses," he said.

Skeet shooting range a possibility

Parks act to get landfill for future development

The first steps toward acquiring the Arlington Heights landfill as a park site are being taken by the Arlington Heights Park District.

The lease agreement with the village is being drawn by park attorney Charles Bobinette. The lease, which must be approved by both the park and village boards, would open the way for development of a park on the site at Schaefer and Nichols roads.

The park, which may include a ski slope, skeet shooting range, various trails and paths and water sport facilities, would encompass the 36-acre landfill, which was closed last summer. Thomas Thornton, park director, said 23 acres of the Buffalo Creek flood plain adjacent to the site may also be added to the park area.

The 79-acre agreement is the latest attempt by the parks to improve the park and population ratio in Arlington Heights. The district is engaged in a struggle to obtain control of the 137-acre Arlington Heights Nike base for use as a golf course. Northern Illinois has been termed the most park-starved area in the country by federal studies, according to park officials.

USE OF THE landfill as a recreational site has been studied for more than two years. Village planner Joe Keeler as well as the park district, has in the past, come up with proposals for a "recreation paradise" on the site, once garbage trucks stopped dumping there.

Thornton said the park would be designated as a "district park" and would serve the entire village. He said the proposed site was large enough to accommodate many varied recreational activities at the same time.

Preliminary discussions for the park have indicated hiking, bicycling trails, nature paths, horse back riding and open field activities would be suitable.

THE LATEST addition to the plans for the park is a skeet shooting range proposed by the Winchester Co., a firearms manufacturer.

Thornton said, "The company seems very anxious to establish something out here. Now you or I may not be aware of it, but there seems to be a tremendous following in the sport."

He said private clubs in Chicago and the North Shore suburbs have long waiting lists for membership.

"I understand in one club the membership is passed along in wills," he said.

Thornton said Winchester would develop the skeet range initially. Thornton placed a "very rough estimate" on the price of developing a skeet range at $25,000 to $30,000.

"We could do it several ways. The park district could operate it or else we could lease it out to some one else, such as a private club," he said.

THORNTON SAID a skeet range would require a section of the park to be closed off, but it would present no hazard to other activities. He said the shotgun pellets used in skeet shooting do not have a long range.

"The noise from a range is not very much. Just a pop really. The studies I've seen say a highway is noisier. It wouldn't be what you'd call a nuisance," he said.

Thornton emphasized the park is still in the "talking stage." He said the lease, which would have to be approved by both the village and park district boards, would be the first concrete step.

"We need to get a budget going for a master plan for it, if we want to start something this next year," he said.

After a lease agreement is reached with the village, the park district board must still approve the concept of the district park.

Cop pay hike 'not enough'

The 5 per cent salary increase proposed for Arlington Heights policemen would be "grossly insufficient" to meet their financial needs, a spokesman for the 76-man police department told village officials Tuesday.

Police Det. Ronald Van Raalte, testified at budget hearings Tuesday night that the five per cent increase, coupled with the federally regulated 5.5 per cent increase from last year's budget, would represent a salary cut because of inflation.

The hearings before the legal committee of the Village Board of Trustees were originally scheduled to be held in a conference room but were moved to the village board room because of the large crowd. The room was filled with policemen and firemen who also asked for a salary increase. Many wives also attended.

Van Raalte said the sharp rise in the cost of living indicated a need for an 11.5 per cent pay boost. To maintain the same buying power, he did not request a set salary increase.

HE SAID THE policemen's salaries in Arlington Heights were among the lowest

Parking space rule may scratch new restaurant

The lack of adequate parking spaces is plaguing a proposed restaurant in downtown Arlington Heights before it even opens its doors.

The Arlington Heights Plan Commission voted last night to defer consideration of a restaurant at 1 N. Vail until the developers appear before the Zoning Board of Appeals for resolution of the building's parking requirements.

The building, one of the oldest in the village, would need at least 40 off-street parking spaces, according to village ordinances. The building would have no off-street parking if the developer's plans were accepted by the commission.

Bill Dorsch and Allan MacFarlane presented plans for converting the old pool hall, at Vail Avenue and Campbell Street, into a two-level restaurant-pub. They said they would restore the brick building with turn-of-the-century furnishings with the aid of the Historical Society of Arlington Heights.

VIRGIL HORATH, of the society, but testifying as a private citizen, said, "I think anything to improve this town one iota is a step forward. I'm definitely in favor of saving this old historic building in downtown Arlington Heights."

Dorsch said the building dating from 1893 would have a family-type restaurant on the first floor and a pub in the basement. The small balcony would also be used for an eating area, he said.

The north and east side yards of the building would, according to plans, be landscaped and surrounded with a hedge-row. Dorsch said an outdoor eating area might be added there in the future.

Under village ordinance, a restaurant in that location would have to provide at least 40, and possibly as many as 100 off-street parking spaces for customers and employees. The village has in the past accepted cash donations in lieu of the extra parking if no space was available. The money goes into a village fund for the creation of a central business district parking facility to be built at a later date.

COMB. ROBERT MILLER asked if Dorsch and MacFarlane could make a contribution of $1,600 per parking space donation to the village as other restaurants have done. Attorney Fredrick Bragiel, representing Dorsch and MacFarlane, said a donation in that amount would make the project impossible.

"There is a $100,000 price on the building and they plan to restore it at a cost of $50,000 to $60,000. A donation like that would bring it to $200,000. We would have to withdraw the petition," Bragiel said.

He said they were meeting with the Zoning Board of Appeals later this month to see if a compromise dollar figure could be reached. He said they were able to make a donation of $5,000 to $10,000 for parking space compensation.

The commission voted to continue their hearings until Dorsch and MacFarlane had an opportunity to meet with the zoning board. A new hearing date for the commission was set for March 6.

Erviti pact extension expected within a month

by BOB GALLAS

Dist. 59 Supt. James Erviti, rumored a year ago to be on his way out, will apparently have his contract extended again this year, according to informed sources in the district.

Several members of the Elk Grove Township school board, while refusing to comment on the matter, said they expect action on the matter to come within the next two meetings of the board, which meets the first and third Mondays of the month.

Erviti still has two years remaining on a three-year contract, which calls for an annual salary of $34,182 plus a host of fringe benefits.

If the board decides to extend the contract, the entire document will probably be rewritten, which could mean further changes, such as a pay raise or other benefits. His present contract runs through July, 1976. If the extension is approved the contract will run to July, 1977.

ERVITI RECEIVED a similar extension and an 8 per cent pay raise last year. The extension is generally thought to be a vote of confidence in the superintendent by the school board.

Erviti's contract extension last year came as somewhat of a surprise since many in the district believed the board was only going to give Erviti a pay raise, without renewing his contract or in effect, giving him a "hunting" license to look for a new job while remaining as superintendent.

The board met early this week in a closed, executive session to review Erviti's contract as is done every year. Erviti has been with Dist. 59 since 1970.

It's reported the board is split 5-2 or 4-3 over the contract, with the majority favoring extending it by one year.

IN ADDITION to his salary, other benefits in Erviti's present contract include a car complete with license plates, gas and insurance, a $50,000 life insurance policy, cumulative sick leave and four weeks of vacation per year.

He also will receive one month's pay for every year he spends in the district, when or if he should leave.

Family problems series set

The Congregational United Church of Christ, 1001 W. Kirchoff, Arlington Heights, will present a series on family intimacy and conflict beginning March 3.

The sessions will be from 7:30 to 9 p.m. and will continue every Sunday until April 7. Church members and the public are invited.

Leader for the series will be Bruce Hartung, director of community pastoral counseling and Consultation Center at Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge. Hartung received degrees from Concordia College and Seminary and his doctorate from the Garrett Seminary of Northwestern University in Evanston.

Fire destroys barn; cause is not known

Fire struck an abandoned garage at 2200 N. Chestnut in unincorporated Arlington Heights yesterday destroying the wood-frame building.

Fire departments from Palatine and Arlington Heights fought the blaze which began at 4 p.m. Fire officials said the cause of the blaze is unknown.

Planning unit tells how schools can save energy

The planning committee of the Dist. 23 school board has recommended further steps the district may take to reduce the amount of energy used in schools to conserve fuel.

The two-page report, presented to the board at a recent meeting, said the district has already reduced its power consumption an estimated 5 per cent by turning off unnecessary school lights and lowering thermostats.

The report listed five steps that could be initiated immediately to further reduce power consumption and listed another three steps as future considerations and three other steps as emergency measures.

AMONG THE steps proposed for immediate action are:

- Consider cutting the use of showers for adult activities now being run on Saturdays and after hours at schools.
- Disconnect power on weekends to cold storage units such as soda pop machines and machines where no spoilage will occur.

- Remove lights on vending machines.
- Look into possible savings by lowering hot water temperatures in showers.
- Schedule copy machines to run in peak copy time only.

AS FUTURE considerations the report listed:

- Consider choice of equipment (new and replacement) on efficiency and efficiency change basis.
- When school hours can be changed, schedule hours for maximum use of daylight hours.
- If possible, set school calendars so maximum heating and cooling periods (seasonal) are not school attendance days.

LISTED AS EMERGENCY measures are:

- Cut night and weekend programs as required to reduce power.
- Reduce lighting level to the state minimum requirement.
- Cut school attendance days as allowed without a cut in state aid.

Board member Vincent Battaglia also suggested the district consider limiting the hours which schools may be kept open for night activities to 10 p.m.

The board accepted the report and agreed to consider the proposals.

Village offering 5 per cent increase in the Northwest suburbs. According to a survey by the Northwest Municipal Conference, 1973 monthly salaries for village patrolmen ranged from $789 to $1,168. The survey said the average monthly salary for a patrolman in the area was $875 to $1,123.

He said the low pay and high housing costs had caused 20 men to leave the department in the past six years.

Police Chief L. W. Calderwood, when contacted for comment yesterday, said, "I think their request was well received. I think the present salary is inadequate when you consider the cost of living in this area and the pay received by others doing similar jobs in other towns. Certainly I support their requests."

Calderwood's salary is not part of the five per cent across the board salary increase for all village employees included in the proposed village budget.

Van Raalte said, "We have gone from one of the highest paid forces to one of the lowest."

He said police in Arlington Heights were also responsible for more population than other area towns. He said there is one policeman for every 960.5 village residents.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, he said, recommends one policeman for every 750 residents.

THE PROPOSED budget also places a freeze on the hiring of additional personnel in all village departments.

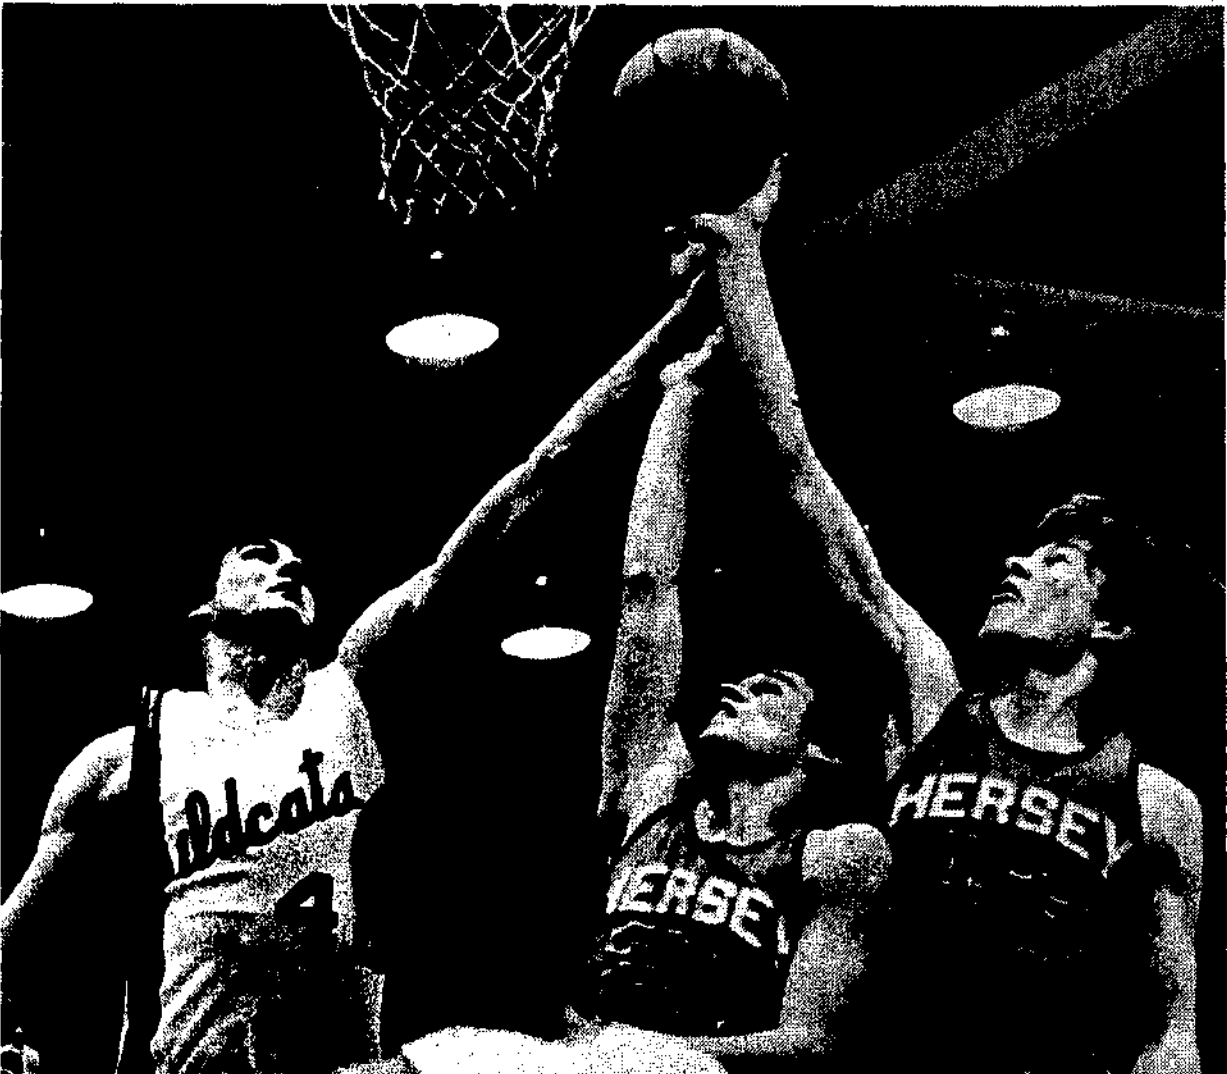

Trustee Alice Harms said, "At times there seems to be a great Chinese wall between the village board and the average village employee. . . . Pride is what's kept you going and doing a great job. But pride won't put food on your table."

Trustee Frank Palmatier, chairman of the budget hearings, said there would be committee response to specific requests during the meetings. He said the hearings were to get "an overall picture" before making recommendations to the village board.

The proposed budget was prepared under the direction of Village Manager L. A. Hanson. The final budget must be approved by the full village board.

The Arlington Heights Firefighters Assn. requested a 10 per cent pay increase plus added hospitalization and health care coverage. The association also asked certified paramedics and engineers be given an extra five per cent raise.

EXCITING ACTION filled the Wheeling gymnasium last night as the host Wildcats and Hersey battled to break a first place deadlock in the Mid-Suburban League North Division. Wheeling defeated Hersey 67-52 and pushed its record to 10-2 in the North. See complete details Friday.
